'FIRE TROOPS' RIP RED FORTS

GERMANS CLAIM KEY TO MOSCOW DEFENSE TAKEN

Victory Reported in 2 Day Battle.

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, July 23 (Wednesday) (AP).—Scores of persons were killed and wounded and several houses, a hospital, and a school were heavily damaged when German bombers attacked the soviet capital last night for the second night in succession, it was reported today. A soviet communique said only isolated planes of the 150 taking part broke thru the city's defenses. At least 22 German planes were shot down. No military objectives were struck, the Russians said.

BERLIN, July 22 (AP). — German shock troops charging forward with flame throwers and hand grenades were reported tonight to have taken key Russian defense positions at Polotsk in the drive toward Moscow, itself battered by the first mass German air raid.

The break thru on the northern wing of the central front was declared to have come after a two day battle in which tens of thousands of Russians were killed or wounded. German accounts said it permitted an infantry advance on a broad front.

[Moscow dispatches indicated the Germans and Finns were pushing toward the Murmansk-Leningrad railway. This drive was believed to be designed to strike at Leningrad from the north while another German force pushes toward the city from the south. Details on page 5.]

Specialists Are Summoned.

The battle was reported by DNB, the official German news agency, as Germans heard details of the aerial assault upon the Red capital, where many fires were claimed to have been set and important buildings destroyed.

Soldier Reporter Lorenz Bersch wrote in the DNB account that specialists in smashing bunkers [forts] had to be called in the battle near Polotsk after Germans had been forced to retreat in their first assault on that section of the Stalin line behind the Dvina river.

The area is about 340 miles from Moscow, and is northwest of the Smolensk sector, where the heaviest fighting had been reported previously. Smolensk is 230 miles from the soviet capital.

Take Isolated Forts.

German infantry divisions came into position Sunday night after two days of forced marching. Early Monday morning, Bersch said, 39 German artillery batteries opened a withering two hours of fire to soften Russian positions. At 5 a. m. German storm troops sprang to the attack. Engineers took isolated fortifications. They worked slowly forward, cutting thru hundreds of yards of barbed wire entanglements.

"Then unexpectedly intensive firing broke out," the account said. "Shelling from heavy machineguns and small caliber cannon came from all sides thru criss-crossed fields which the Russians had cut obliquely from the bunkers thru the underbrush.

"Our engineers in the barbed wire entanglements were unable to advance. Salvos from the Russian bunker cannon were devilishly well-aimed. The foremost company of reenforcing infantry hurried forward.

Nazi Commanders Fall.

"The first battalion sought to turn the flank to the left but the neighboring bunker opened fire. There was no way of breaking thru. One company commander and two platoon commanders had fallen already."

After days of hard fighting, the Germans previously had pushed deep into Russian defenses, but the main fortifications were still in Russian hands, Bersch explained.

Even the German battle headquarters was under Russian machine gun fire while the Germans discussed the situation. Dive bombers were useless because they could not find the excellently camouflaged fortifications in the heavy forest.

Troops Burn Forest.

During the night flame throwers were sent forward and burned away the forest in order to give guns a clear field.

"At the same time, bunker specialists, masters in the use of explosives and flame, stood ready," Bersch wrote.

"At 5 a. m. [Tuesday] the battle

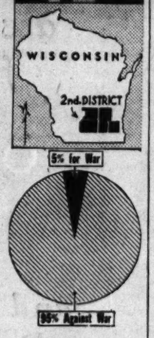
Wisconsin Poll Shows 95 Pct. Against War

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Representative Harry Sauthoff [Prog., Wis.] today told the house first returns of a poll on war sentiment which he is conducting in his congressional district indicate overwhelming opposition to the entry of the United States into Europe's war.



Top: Harry Sauthoff. Center: District polled Bottom: Result of poll

Sauthoff said that his district—the second, which is composed of Columbia, Dane, Dodge, Jefferson, and Waukesha counties—is voting 95 per cent against war on the basis of returns from one-seventh of the district's 157,500 registered voters.

"I am making the results public so President Roosevelt may know that the country does not want him to enter the war by the back door," Sauthoff said.

Sauthoff began the poll last Wednesday and Thursday by mailing postcards to the 157,500 voters who cast ballots in the Presidential election of last November, which returned him to his congressional seat. His district, which includes the state capital in Madison, has a population of approximately 300,000.

Vote on Two Questions.

The postcards asked constituents to vote on the following propositions: "The United States should enter the war" or "The United States should not enter the war."

A total of 23,348 replies was received and tabulated by this morning. The vote was 22,340 opposed to war and 1,008 favoring entry into it.

Sauthoff said he is confident the percentage will be maintained as the ballots keep pouring in.

"We people of Wisconsin were educated against the folly of war years ago by the late, great Senator Robert La Follette, and the lesson of the last war is still with us," he said.

He said he had undertaken the poll to gauge the sentiment of his district and to offer the results wherever they might be of value as a measurement of the war sentiment of one section of the American people.

"I started the poll with a view to helping those on the fence to make up their minds on the war question and with a view to strengthening the might be wavering," Sauthoff said.

"I think every congressman should conduct a similar poll for his own guidance and that of the chief executive."

TROOPS IN MANEUVER TO BE 'GUINEA PIGS' FOR MALARIA TESTS

Memphis, Tenn., July 22 (AP).—The 450,000 soldiers who'll take part in the army's war games in August and September are going to be "guinea pigs" in medical science's long battle against malaria.

Mosquitoes are bad—and the incidence of malaria heavy—in Arkansas and Louisiana, site of the maneuvers, during the next two months, 2d army spokesmen said.

To avert malaria and seek a more proficient and less costly malaria immunity two drugs will be tried. Chinacrin, which medical officers say is cheaper than quinine, will be given to soldiers of the 2d army. The 3d army will use quinine. The chinacrin will cost $90,000, the quinine $150,000.

That Lost Patrol Is Safe, with Us! Reds Tell Nazis

LONDON, July 22 (AP).—The Moscow radio started its German transmission tonight with a call to Lieut. Hoernemann of the 2d company, 372d Germany infantry, to inform him that 15 men he sent on patrol July 18 were safe and well with the Red army and that he need not worry about them. The announcer said the patrol, flying white flags, "stormed towards the soviet, towards their freedom."

U. S. Navy Leases 16 Acres for Bermuda Hospital Site

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 22.—It was learned authoritatively today that the United States navy department has leased 16 acres of land from a private owner as a site for a "mobile" naval hospital.

3 Expert Taps Split Diamond; Save a Fortune

New York, July 22 [Special].—The fabulous Vargas diamond, largest in existence, lay resplendent before a tense workman. The moment had arrived, after three months of computations, when it was to be cut into the first of two million dollars' worth of smaller stones.

The veteran cutter raised his hand. The 726 carat stone would split cleanly or would shatter into fragments. He struck a wedge sharply—once, twice, three times. The gem severed perfectly at the third blow. The cutter breathed a sigh of relief, then fainted.

Arian Grasselly, who has been living on cigars and black coffee for weeks as he thought of the ordeal confronting him, was still weak today as he told of the operations which took place yesterday.

Three Blows Instead of One.

He explained that his tension was unusually high because of the three blows necessary. A diamond usually splits with one blow, The ticklish work took place in the Fifth avenue office of Harry Winston, the owner.

"All day long we had worked at grooving the stone in just the right place," Grasselley related. "When we were ready I took a square edged knife and fitted it into the groove. I did not think my usual hammer was heavy enough, so I used the axle from an old motor that was handy."

After the first blow there was a split only three millimeters deep. Grasselley struck again, and the cut deepened only a few more millimeters. The third time he hit harder. The stone split as calculated.

Third Largest Ever Found.

The diamond, the third largest ever found, was discovered in 1938 by two Brazilian diamond hunters. They got $250,000 for the rough stone. Winston bought it for $700,000.

Rough and blue white, the diamond measured 2½ by 2 by 1 inch. It was heavier than the famed Jonker diamond which yielded 12 stones, the largest 126 carats.

The Vargas stone, named after President Vargas of Brazil, will be cut across grain with a saw and may be split with the grain four or five times more before all the cut gems, the largest one of 160 carats, are obtained.

TELLS HOW U. S. ARMING LAGS AS BRITISH GET AID

Admiral Bares 20% Navy Plane Drop.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, intimated today that the United States is neglecting its own rearmament program in supplying aid to Great Britain.

Admiral Towers.

Testifying before the house naval affairs committee, he disclosed that deliveries of naval planes in the first six months of this year fell 20 per cent below schedule and declared the army's program for construction of four engined bombers cannot fail to have an adverse effect on the navy's building.

Most of the army bombers are going to Britain under the New Deal's lease-lend program. Noting that these planes have a higher priority rating than the navy craft, Towers asserted that the impending effect of the army program is of grave concern to the navy department.

Voices Uncertainty Over Future.

"Unless there is a change in the priority setup," he declared, "the navy's building program will be slowed immeasurably. Under the circumstances, it is impossible to define the extent to which future deliveries will fall short of meeting original schedules."

"Then," interposed Representative James W. Mott [D., Ore.], "what we are doing is slowing down our own defense program in order to give these bombing planes to some other nation."

"There are many people in high places in Washington who do not feel that we are slowing down the program," the admiral replied. "I do not share that optimism."

Altho he refused to amplify, the conclusion was inescapable that Towers referred to President Roosevelt, Secretary of War Henry Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox as among those in high places whose optimism he does not share.

Loses Hope of Catching Up.

The admiral explained that originally it was estimated 1,995 planes would be received by the navy between Jan. 1 and June 30, whereas actually there were deliveries on only 1,547. He said he no longer entertained any hope that the navy's total schedule of deliveries for 1941 could be met.

"With world conditions as they are today, it is logical to expect that the navy will be called upon to meet the initial impact of any hostilities in the Atlantic, the Pacific, or both oceans concurrently, he said. "It is only proper that the fleet, including its components, should be adequately and effectively equipped for such eventualities."

Meanwhile the committee unanimously approved a 300 million dollar authorization bill providing for vast expansions of naval shore facilities.

Great Lakes Facilities Included.

The measure contains an authorization for $5,623,000 in improvements at the Great Lakes naval training station, Great Lakes, Ill. These proposed facilities, Representative William Wheat [R., Ill.] explained, include barracks, officers quarters, galley, mess hall, service school buildings, recreation buildings, rifle range, new roads and walks, enlargement of dispensary, and sewage modernization.

Among the larger items in the bill are provisions for many new outlying submarine and airplane bases, fleet anchorages, and added housing facilities for enlisted men and officers.

Proposed Bases Enumerated.

The bill authorizes construction of submarine bases, destroyer bases, or fleet anchorages at Vieques, Puerto Rico; Charlotte Amalie, Virgin Islands; Coco Solo, Canal zone; Kodiak and Unalaska area, Alaska; San Diego, Cal.; Pearl harbor, Midway Island, and Wake Island. Among the ammunition depots for which it provides is one at Burns City, Ind., and one at Hawthorne, Nev. There also is provision for numerous air bases, one at Barbers Point, Hawaii, to cost $18,605,000, being the largest.

HOW NEW DEAL OBEYS ITS OWN 'SAVE GAS' EDICT

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—While Oil Dictator Harold L. Ickes has been ordering the public to use automobiles less and reduce consumption of petroleum products a third, a good start could be made within the administration, a survey showed today.

High government officials, including some of the leading war mongers, also rank high as consumers of oil and gasoline.

It is commonly acknowledged that the fuel shortage along the east coast is caused by transfer to Britain of 50 tankers which formerly served the east coast from gulf ports. A conference was held here yesterday concerning the possible transfer of another 50 to 100 tankers. Ickes withheld information on the proposed transfer claiming that this constituted "vital military information."

British Embassy Uses 100 Cars.

However, the British, for whom the United States is giving up oil and gasoline because of the shortage in transportation, are operating 100 automobiles among their embassy staff here, according to an official estimate. Lord Halifax, the ambassador, has two cars.

Officials of the Office of Production Management have declared it unpatriotic for a person to operate a yacht or two automobiles when one will do. However, the White House has 12 large cars assigned for use by the President, his family, and staff.

The shiny White House caravan includes seven Cadillacs, three Packards, one Lincoln, and one Oldsmobile. They are provided by the manufacturers under an arrangement by which they rotate replacements and the only cost to the White House is maintenance.

Big Roosevelt Fuel Bill.

Mr. Roosevelt runs up an extensive fuel bill thru his frequent trips. Lately these have been mostly to his mother's estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., but wherever he goes White House and secret service cars are sent on ahead of his arrival, if traveling by special train. Over weekends he often takes a cruise on the $350,000 yacht Potomac, furnished him by the government. The yacht is powered by Diesel engines and is a heavy consumer of fuel oil.

One of the President's secretaries, Stephen T. Early is among the two car operators now in disrepute. In addition to his personal car, Early has a sedan furnished him for his use by a motor manufacturer.

Each member of the cabinet or head of an administrative agency has a showy limousine, furnished by the government for personal use.

Some Have Own Cars, Too.

Ordinarily the government is limited to $750 each in purchasing automobiles. But in the case of cabinet officers and heads of important agencies they are allowed cars costing $1,400 to $1,800 each. Cars are also furnished lesser officials for official use only. Some of the higher officials have their own cars in addition to the government automobile.

The oil dictator, Ickes, lives on an estate in Maryland about 20 miles from Washington and it has been suggested that he move to the city if he wants to set a good exxample on saving gasoline. Associates declined to say whether Ickes uses any automobile besides the government car.

One of the leading war shouters in the cabinet is most "unpatriotic,"

DEMOCRATS TO EAT HOT DOGS JUST LIKE F. D. R. SERVED KING

Milwaukee, Wis., July 22 [Special].—Wisconsin Democrats with high regard for the royal families will have the hot dogs served Sunday at their picnic at Muskego lake cooked just the same as they were for King George and Queen Elizabeth when they visited President Roosevelt at Hyde Park. Fish chowder, served on the recommendation of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be prepared by the Roosevelt recipe.

Mrs. Laura Schwalbach, vice chairman of the state Democratic committee, wrote to Mrs. Roosevelt to ask exactly how the hot dogs were prepared for royalty. The answer was: "We parboil them for a few minutes and then barbecue them over charcoal."

PLANS TO SEIZE DAKAR OPPOSED AS TOO RISKY

Deal with Republic Held Possible.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Altho President Roosevelt today disavowed any intention of sending any more of our armed forces overseas at this time it transpired that Liberia, on the western coast of Africa, has been under consideration for some time as a possible American naval and military aviation base.

Liberia is the tiny Negro republic founded in 1847 under auspices of American societies interested in establishing a colony of freed American slaves. It has close relations with the United States and Britain and presumably could be induced without much difficulty to enter into arrangements for the construction of a base in its territory.

The information that Liberia is under consideration leaked out of an administration conference. Altho administration officials refuse to discuss the matter the indications are that Liberia came into the picture as an alternative to French Dakar, to the north of Liberia on the western bulge of Africa.

Threat to U. S. Seen.

In his May 27 fireside chat the President intimated that he would seize the Portuguese Azores and Cape Verde Islands and Dakar in order to forestall occupation by the Nazis if Hitler should invade the Iberian peninsula [Spain and Portugal]. Occupation of such outposts by the Nazis, he said, would be a threat to the safety of the United States.

Arguments advanced against an attempt to seize Dakar stressed our unpreparedness to reduce and afterwards hold this strongly fortified place. In addition to a modern fort there is the French battleship Richelieu with eight 15 inch guns in the port.

Army and navy experts are of the opinion that it would take not only a strong naval force but not less than 30,000 men to reduce and occupy Dakar. In the case of Liberia the undertaking would be merely that of constructing a base, once the arrangements were made, tho the strategic location and harbor facilities are far inferior to Dakar.

Freetown Also Suggested.

Another suggested site of an American naval and air base in Africa is Freetown in British Sierra Leone. Freetown already is a base of sorts. At Monrovia, Liberia, there is nothing but some ancient docks.

In addition to the base obtained in Iceland the United States is now constructing a base on the north coast of Ireland and is reported to be planning another in Scotland.

Mr. Roosevelt's assurances that he is not now contemplating any further extension of the operations of our armed forces into the war zones were given to Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], who will succeed to the chairmanship if George should take the late Pat Harrison's place as chairman of the finance committee. Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles also attended this conference.

At his press conference the President said legislative matters were considered in his discussion with the senators. Repeal of the neutrality act was considered, but the decision was to do nothing. Senator George recently served notice on the President in a senate speech not to take the country into war without consulting congress.

Still Seeking AEF Powers.

It transpired during the day that the administration has not entirely abandoned the notion of getting congress to modify the restriction of service of citizen soldiers to the western hemisphere. The administration resolution to extend the service period of draftees, National Guardsmen and reservists was introduced in the senate by Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah]. Under its terms citizen soldiers could be sent outside the hemisphere with their consent. This provision is regarded by the anti-interventionists as a joker. It is contended that great pressure would be brought to bear on draftees to get their consent to go overseas. Those who refused consent would be taunted with slacking, etc.

Men who volunteered for one year enlistments rather than wait for the draft have no more of a contract with the government that they can maintain than the draftees and National Guardsmen, it was learned today.

All in the Same Boat.

The proposed legislation for extending the terms of service of draftees and Guardsmen would cover them as well as the regulars who enlisted for the full three year period. All are in the same boat, a war department spokesman said, and all would be subject to retention in the armed forces if the bill passes.

Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] submitted to the senate military affairs committee an alternative to the administration plan for extending the service period. Set forth as a "United States army policy," the Taft plan would release draftees after serving 16 months.

The Taft plan contemplates having under arms at all times 1,272,000 officers and men of whom none shall have had less than nine months' training. To accomplish this, Taft said, it would be necessary after Jan. 1, 1942, to have 1,948,000 officers and men under arms, including those with less than nine months' training.

Increase Regular Army.

The regular army would be increased gradually from its present strength of 510,000 officers and men to 793,000 officers and men by April 1, 1943. This would equal the present combined strength of the regular army and the National Guard. The National Guard would be released gradually during the building up of the regular army to 793,000 officers and men.

Conscripts would be released at the rate of 75,000 a month, beginning Feb. 1, 1942, and would be replaced by the same number each month. New conscripts, aggregating 450,000, would be inducted prior to Jan. 1, 1942, to increase the total strength of the army from 1,498,000 to 1,948,000.

SENATORS AGREE TO FIGHT CALL FOR EMERGENCY

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.], speaking for a group of more than 50 members of congress opposing United States intervention in the European war told reporters tonight that the group had agreed to oppose in every way any possible declaration by congress of a national emergency.

Taft said that while there was strong sentiment against any type of extension of the service of draftees as proposed by President Roosevelt, the attitude of the group was not universal on this point and a committee was to be appointed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] to draw up a policy on this point.

Taft said the group was in agreement that the nations should maintain an army completely adequate for national defense, but that there was some difference as to procedure. He said the meeting was in accord on opposition to sending troops or authority to send troops outside the hemisphere, joint action with the British in Iceland, and that there should be no letup in the United States in combatting communism.

ALUMINUM CUP FEAT WINS PRIZE FOR POLICEMEN

Lieut. Leroy Steffens of the Warren avenue station went to Milwaukee yesterday on the Chicago Patrolmen's club boat trip and arrived to find himself famous.

He dropped in at the Milwaukee city hall with two fellow officers, introduced himself there, and was hailed by a man whose name he failed to catch:

"You're the fellow whose station got the aluminum eyecup," the stranger said, referring to a newspaper story about the eyecup, given in the national aluminum drive.

Steffens said he was, and the stranger beamed.

"I felt sorry for you," he said, disappeared a moment and returned to say: "Here's a present for you." And he handed Steffens an aluminum object that was a familiar adjunct in preplumbing households. Steffens, blushing a little, thanked him, and the stranger promised to wrap and mail the article to the Warren avenue station.

Alva Lumpkin Takes Oath for Byrnes' Senate Seat

Washington, D. C., July 22 [Special].—Alva M. Lumpkin of Columbia, S. C., who resigned from the federal bench to accept appointment by Gov. Burnet R. Maybank as temporary United States senator from South Carolina, today was sworn in as a member of the senate. He took the oath soon after being introduced to President Roosevelt by Gov. Maybank. Lumpkin replaces James F. Byrnes, who resigned as senator to accept appointment to the United States Supreme court. Gov. Maybank has called a special election for the end of next month to select a successor to serve out Byrnes' unexpired term.

CAPT. BARRY TO LEAVE HOSPITAL.

Capt. Eugene Barry of the Brighton Park police district, who is recovering from an eye ailment in Michael Reese hospital, will leave the hospital this week-end, his physicians said yesterday.

Studied for Base

Liberia and British Sierra Leone, on the west coast of Africa. Establishment of an American military base at Monrovia, Liberia, or Freetown, in Sierra Leone, has been under consideration in Washington.

An indication of the location of Liberia with relation to New York, the Cape Verde Islands, the Azores, Portugal, and Spain.

LIBERIA—A LAND OF SNAKES, RAIN, HEAT, CRUELTY

Proposed Air Base Is Mostly Jungle.

The black republic of Liberia on the west coast of Africa, where the United States is considering building an air base, is naturally a country of extreme heat, heavy rainfall, and snake infested jungles. Despite efforts at civilization it is also a place of throbbing tomtoms, native rituals, and tribal cruelty.

One of the two Negro republics in the world [Haiti is the other], Liberia covers approximately 41,000 square miles. It extends along the coast about 300 miles, from the British colony of Sierra Leone to the French colony on the Ivory Coast. Its inland width varies considerably, up to about 200 miles.

Seacoast Is Dangerous.

The coastline, all of which fronts the sea route from Europe to South Africa, is without a single good harbor and much of the seaboard is dangerous because of sharp rocks which lie near the surface. As most of the rivers have rapids or falls, they are, with the exception of the Cavalla, useless for penetrating far inland.

Altho little of the coast actually is swampy, natural canalization connects many of the river mouths with each other. The whole of this part of Africa from Cape Palmas northwest to the Senegal suggests a sunken land. Outside a coastal belt of about 20 miles, the country is one vast uninhabited forest except where natives have cleared land.

The climate is equatorial, rainfall in the western half being about 150 inches a year and in the eastern half about 100 inches.

No figures were available on the temperatures in Liberia, but at Freetown, Sierra Leone, near by, the mean temperature last year was 80.3 degrees and the rainfall 174.4 inches.

Cobras, Pythons, Scorpions.

The fauna includes seven kinds of poisonous snakes—two cobras, two puff adders, and three vipers—the large west African python, a rare Boine snake, scorpions more than six inches long, large fruit bats with monstrous heads, a variety of monkeys, leopard, pygmy hippopotamus, antelope, and buffalo.

One-third of the male population belongs to the "devil bush," one of the largest and most powerful secret organizations in Africa. Many members go into the bush for a year at a time, some for five years. No effort is made to abolish the society.

As late as 1932 it was claimed that a Liberian frontier military force burned alive 81 men, 49 women, and 29 children belonging to tribes of the Kru coast. It was termed "necessary action" to maintain order.

The tiny republic had its origin in the efforts of several American philanthropic societies to make permanent provision for freed American slaves by establishing them in an African colony.

Find 'Totalitarian' Peril to President of Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 21 (AP).—Police reported tonight they had discovered totalitarian activity which threatened the person of President Rafael Calderon Guardia. Totalitarian elements were said to have attempted to block administrative policies of the government because of its adherence to the foreign policy of President Roosevelt.

HOW NEW DEAL OBEYS ITS OWN 'SAVE GAS' EDICT

according to OPM standards. He is Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, 67 year old interventionist. He not only has the government automobile provided him but also a 104 foot yacht, Sequoia, furnished him by the navy for his personal use. He lives on it during the summer, keeping it anchored at the navy yard when not on cruises. It is powered by oil, as is the President's yacht.

Welles Has 3 or More Cars.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau has a private automobile in addition to the one furnished by taxpayers. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who at 69 is among the principal advocates of intervention, also operates two automobiles, one of them in Mrs. Hull's name. His undersecretary, Sumner Welles, who has ardently beat the war drums, is well fixed with automobiles. Three big cars are listed for his town house alone. His wife, a railroad heiress, has a Rolls-Royce and two Packard limousines in her name. They also have an estate in Maryland and additional cars may be listed under Maryland tags. Both Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson operate personal cars in addition to those furnished.

In all, the federal government owns 143,175 motor vehicles, according to 1940 figures.

BROTHER SEES SISTER FOR 1ST TIME SINCE 1894

A dinner was held last night in the home of Mrs. Belle Glaser, 1805 Hastings street, celebrating the reunion of her father, Harry Cohen, a commission merchant, and his sister, Mrs. Rose Kramerman of Roxbury, Mass., whom he had not seen for 47 years.

In 1894, when Cohen was 18 years old, he left home in Shipatofly, Russia, to come to America. A brother, Frank, followed him seven years later, but his sister, Rose, did not arrive in this country until 1912. She married a building contractor in Boston.

Not until this week, however, did Mrs. Kramerman try to find her brothers. She knew Harry was in Chicago, but it required two days to find him thru eliminating all other Harry Cohens in the city. Harry gave her Frank's address in St. Louis. She will leave tomorrow to visit him after a separation of 40 years.

Panama and Costa Rica Act to Fix Disputed Border

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 22 (AP).—The government announced today that Costa Rica and Panama have agreed to ask the Chilean government to designate an engineer to survey disputed portions of their boundary. Both countries will name boundary commissions to fix the new frontier.

WELLES HURLS PEACE WEDGE AT GERMAN PEOPLE

Says U. S. Aims at Fair Deal After War.

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—In an apparent attempt to drive a wedge between Adolf Hitler and the German people and to encourage eventual revolt in Nazi conquered countries, the United States tonight proclaimed its postwar aims in the most definite terms yet.

Emphasizing that there could be "no peace until the Hitlerite government of Germany has been finally and utterly destroyed," Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, plainly addressed his words on the postwar world to the people of Nazi controled countries.

Millions, he said, were asking what the future held after this struggle—millions in England, in China, "millions of enslaved peoples in Norway and in the other countries now temporarily occupied, millions in the countries which have not experienced war; yes, and millions in Germany and Italy."

Peace—but Not with Hitler.

He then outlined the kind of world for which the United States stood—apparently a definite offer by this country to use its influence in behalf of a "fair peace" once Hitler and "the satellites who surround him" were removed.

Dedicating a cornerstone of a new wing at the Norwegian legation, Welles described "the great ideal" for which he said all people of good will should now be striving.

The broad objectives he outlined bore close resemblance to some of the famous "Fourteen Points" or Woodrow Wilson which were considered a major factor in promoting peace sentiment among the German people in the last war.

Urges a New League.

Welles, in fact, paid high tribute to Wilson and the "splendid vision which he had held up to the eyes of suffering humanity." Like Wilson, too, Welles advocated an "association of nations"—such a league of nations as Wilson conceived, but not as it finally operated, as "a means of maintaining the status quo."

Welles called for abolition of "offensive armaments" and a reduction and limitation of "defensive armaments" with some rigid form of international supervision.

The other major point he stressed was equal economic enjoyment, fair access of all nations to the world's natural resources and raw materials.

Push "V Clubs" Drive.

The Welles declaration came as the British claimed success for their "V for Victory" propaganda campaign, clearly intended to stir uprisings in Nazi controled countries. An organization of V Clubs of America also has just been formed and its president, William V. C. Ruxton, said in New York that as an auxiliary of the British-American ambulance corps it had the approval of the state department.

Peace aims have been discussed only in general terms by both British and American officials and none yet has touched on the complicated problem of territorial adjustments arising from Germany's seizure of many continental nations.

POLICE HERO QUITS HOSPITAL.

Sergt. Michael Curtin, police hero who was wounded March 9, 1940, in a gun battle with Andrew Foster, colored, was released yesterday from St. Anthony's hospital, where he was taken July 14 after he suffered a relapse. He was taken to his home at 4635 Drexel boulevard to continue his convalescence.

SENATE VOTES PRIVATE POLICE FORCE FOR KNOX

Bill Denounced as Start of U. S. Gestapo.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—By a vote of 41 to 14 the senate today passed a bill authorizing an annual appropriation of 1 million dollars for the employment of a secret police force by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox. Opponents of the measure expressed fears that it will lead to the creation of an American gestapo like Adolf Hitler's terrorist organization.

Sen. David I. Walsh.

The bill authorizes secret agents to investigate "any existing or threatened espionage or sabotage" and to inquire into subversive "or other activities" deemed contrary to the interests of the United States.

Knox Fears Told.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee and manager of the bill, read to the senate extracts from secret testimony by Secretary Knox who made charges of suspected or possible espionage and sabotage by employés of German extraction in the navy yards. Knox made these charges in support of his request for legislation authorizing the employment of a so-called "plant protection force" of some 300 men.

"Nazi and communist sympathizers abound on both the east and west coasts," Knox told the naval affairs committee. "Their numbers and identities are practically unknown. We must find them and rout them out of our establishments as soon as possible."

Sabotage Efforts Told.

Knox testified that in February, 1941, "deliberate efforts were made to sabotage trains leaving the naval powder factory at Indian Head, Md." He said the commandant of the fifth naval district believed that a fire in the communications center at the Norfolk operating base, causing damage of $150,000, was "deliberately set and was an act of sabotage."

"The 2 million dollar fire beginning in a lumber yard in Philadelphia and spreading thruout the area near the shipyards in May, 1941, is believed to have been an act of sabotage," Knox continued. "There have been in the last 12 months several small fires and industrial accidents in naval establishments where sabotage has been suspected but not definitely ascertained."

Knox said the number of civilian employés at the Boston navy yard had increased from 2,500 to 15,000 since September, 1939, and that "66 of these have been complained against as being friendly to Naziism or communism." He testified that the New York navy yard currently employs 25,000 civilians, of whom "the number who are communists or Nazis is not known."

400 Suspects at Mare Island.

At the Mare island navy yard, on the west coast, 18,000 civilians are employed, Knox said. "The danger of sabotage here," he added, "lies in the fact that a great number of these workers are of alien and German extraction and that the headquarters of German espionage in the United States is located in San Francisco. The estimated number of civilian suspects in that yard at present is approximately 400."

The reading of this testimony by Senator Walsh, a noninterventionist, made it difficult for other noninterventionists to vote against the bill, regardless of their apprehensions. Privately some of them said they did not dare oppose the bill for fear of being smeared by interventionists as Nazi sympathizers.

Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.] told the senate that "Mr. Knox is totally irresponsible so far as an organization of this sort is concerned." He described the proposal as "the veriest poppycock and the veriest nonsense that ever was tortured into a so-called defense article."

Ridicules Knox.

Johnson ridiculed Knox by citing lines from H. M. S. Pinafore, the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera. Knox, he said, will wear a four-cornered hat and parade up and down the quarter deck saying: "I am the captain of the Pinafore." To which his private army will be expected to respond, "and a right good captain, too," Johnson said.

Senator George Norris, the Nebraska radical, expressed the fear that the bill would result in the beginning of an American gestapo.

"Hitler controls the great empire of Germany to a very great extent by means of secret investigators," Norris said. "Recently I have read a good deal about the activities of the secret police in Germany and in Russia. I cannot escape the conclusion that in the end such measures as the pending bill would lead to great difficulties. I confess I do not want to live in a country in which I do not know but that every other man I pass on the street may be a secret officer.

"He may be listening to everything I say. He may be breaking into my office or my home to look over anything I may have. He may pass judgment as the result of half consideration, when, if all the evidence were taken together, there would be a complete defense. However, the hysteria which eventually will come will mean that it will be almost impossible for one charged by a secret organization of this kind to obtain justice in our own liberty loving country."

CHICAGO ALUMINUM PILE IS ESTIMATED AT 50,000 POUNDS

The pile of aluminum in the Congress street plaza, which is accumulating in the name of national defense, grew yesterday as the contributions of housewives were carted downtown from police stations, ward yards, and other collection points.

An estimate that 50,000 pounds had been collected on Monday was made by the Chicago Commission on National Defense, which is directing a drive to obtain 500,000 pounds by Saturday night. Periodically, trucks drove to the plaza where Boy Scouts and other volunteer workers dumped pots, pans, blackened percolators, automobile hub caps, and other odds and ends on the growing heap.

A martial atmosphere was provided the central dump yesterday by the presence of three naval reservists in uniform, standing at east with bayoneted rifles in front of the pile. Four hour watches were kept by successive trios.

HUNT VANISHED KEY FIGURE IN CALDWELL CASE

Bare Union's Use of County Hospital.

A story told between sobs by an invalid mother yesterday brought to light a strange mystery in the affairs of local 1248 of the Retail Clerks International Protective association which with its $910,000 treasury has been ruled for four years by Max Caldwell, former bootlegger and waiter.

Michael Savachka.

This story, describing the disappearance at dawn one morning in early June of Michael Savachka, secretary-treasurer of the local, was only one facet of the Caldwell disclosures yesterday. Others featured the revelation that Caldwell received $1,000 a month in a lump sum from one chain grocery firm for the dues of part time workers; that he ran up a union bill of $4,000 in one hospital and paid nothing on it; that he and his aids used political influence to get their sick into the county hospital, and that a politician who serves both as an alderman and a county commissioner helped Caldwell along this line.

Asks Police Help.

Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford, who has been investigating the disappearance of the union books dealing with estimated revenues of $910,000 in four years, asked police aid in finding Savachka, whose friends fear he may have met with harm.

"All the evidence," said Crawford, "indicates that the missing Savachka was only a stooge for Caldwell and that if he engaged in anything illegal it was under compulsion. I urge him to come in, if he can, and aid us. If he doesn't, it may soon be too late. Anything might happen to him."

Savachka's mother is Mrs. Eva Savak of Rome, N. Y. She is now in Chicago, penniless and the recipient of treatment as a nonpaying patient of the Cook county hospital clinic. She is staying at 5415 South Laflin street, where her son boarded.

"Michael would never leave me like this if he could come back," she said. "Some one must be keeping him away."

Missing Man's History.

As Crawford unraveled the story yesterday he learned that Savachka, a former grocery clerk, is 28 years old. That he graduated into the union official ranks by picketing a store during a strike, for which he was fired, and that as secretary-treasurer of the union he handled the $910,000 paid in over the last four years.

As the mother told it, she came here about June 1 and joined her son. Her first husband and two other sons were killed in auto accidents in recent years. Michael, she said, was glad to see her. A few days after her arrival, however, he disappeared. This was at the time the search for the books and records of the union was launched.

She said that she had asked the union officials where he was and that Michael Pollack, a brother of Caldwell, whose real name also is Pollack, told her he had left town. She told Pollack of her illness.

Aid from Alderman.

"He told me he would give me a letter to Ald. Fred Fischman and he would send me to the County hospital," Mrs. Savak said. "The letter came, and I went to the alderman's office. He sent me to the hospital."

Fischman, who succeeded to the council seat of Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th] and is a county commissioner, said last night that he did not remember the letter or Mrs. Savak. He said that he had known Caldwell years ago, but had never met Mike Pollack. Fischman admitted he had sent union members to the hospital on officers' recommendations.

"Lots of them," he said; "I have a special form for such cases."

Mrs. Peter Kommer, in whose home Savachka lived, said he was quiet; that he did not drink or smoke, and spent much time in his room, in which the police seeking him found several prayer books. She, too, was sure he was being detained by circumstances beyond his control. He had kept the same room for five years, she said.

His Parting Words.

"He told me he was going away but would return in a few days," Mrs. Kommer added.

This was a few days after Caldwell was exposed thru the revolt of his members, who filed a suit for an accounting of the huge revenues.

The hospital which reported the union bills overdue is the American, at 850 Irving Park road. Officials said that Caldwell pleaded poverty when he asked to be allowed to send in his members for treatment two years ago. He put up the same plea this spring, the officials added. His line of credit was halted at the $4,000 figure, it was explained, and little hope of a settlement is entertained.

"We'll just call it charity," was the officials' explanation.

Assistant State's Attorney Crawford said he wanted to find out whether the American hospital's patients were really union members or just friends of the Pollack brothers. He has had many stories of union members asserting they were bludgeoned into "hospital fund" dance ticket purchases.

Store Official's Story.

The information about the lump sum payment of $1,000 a month was given by Laurence Calkins, labor relations director of the National Tea company, at a hearing before a master in chancery, Daniel Covelli. Covelli is hearing testimony in the $910,000 accounting suit.

This sum, Calkins said, was to represent the "work permit" payments to Caldwell of 500 part-time workers, some of whom received only a few dollars a week but had to pay the full $2 a month. It was made, he said, to avoid having union agents collecting in the stores during busy Friday afternoons and Saturdays.

He testified that a contract was first signed in January, 1939, and that the lump sum payments [the company deducted the part-time workers' fees from their pay] have been made only since Jan. 1, 1941.

Tells of Firings.

The store executive explained that he signed with Caldwell when the labor boss told him he represented a majority of all workers of the company. He had not counted the list, he said, but was assured by his own field men that it was accurate. Union membership, he said, was a condition of employment, and that he had discharged "10 or 15" clerks when Caldwell said they were not in good standing.

Crawford announced that he had asked other chain stores, including A. and P., Kroger, Jewel, Royal Blue, and Walgreen, to tell him today whether they had made any payments of dues in lump sums to Caldwell.

Attorney Stanley Evans yesterday asked Judge Michael Feinberg to order the records of the union produced. Judge Feinberg told the Caldwell counsel, Harold Marovitz, to bring them in within 20 days. Evans represents the clerks who revolted against the rule of Caldwell and secured his ouster.

BOLIVIANS NIP 'TOTALITARIAN' INDIAN REVOLT

Nab Dozen as Leaders; Nazi Envoy Leaves.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 22 (AP).—Reports of a pro-totalitarian revolt by about 40,000 Bolivian Indians reached the capital today as German Minister Ernst Wendler, expelled for alleged participation in a purported Nazi conspiracy to overthrow President Enrique Penaranda, left by train for Antofagasta, Chile.

The Indians, in Cochabamba province, were reported to have revolted at the instigation of elements seeking to promote a totalitarian conspiracy. The disturbance presumably was suppressed with the arrest of 12 Indian leaders.

200 on Guard as Envoy Leaves.

It was in Cochabamba province that Defense Minister General Miguel Candia last night reported the arrest of several Bolivian military officers, several civilians, and a German citizen in connection with the alleged plot.

Two hundred armed guards kept order among a large crowd at the railway station as Wendler left after turning over his legation to Dr. Hans Haller, chargé d'affaires.

Nazis Expel Bolivian.

Alfredo Flores, the Bolivian charge d'affaires in Berlin, was ordered today by Germany to leave the country within three days and Bolivia instructed him to go to Switzerland. Jose Saavedra Suarez was named to the post.

Police announced they had found a radio sending station in a raid on a German commercial house. They reported seizure of a woman operator, several men, and lists of persons to whom Nazi propaganda was to be sent.

WIDOW FOUND HANGED IN HOME.

Mrs. Alice Pause, 49 years old, a widow with two children, was found hanged yesterday in her apartment at 907 Armitage avenue. A daughter, Alice, 17, told police she had been despondent because of ill health.

FUGITIVE FREED HERE IS ORDERED BACK TO PRISON

Gov. Green in Springfield yesterday signed an extradition warrant for the return to the Indiana state farm at Putnamville of Charles Wilhite, 23 years old, who escaped from the farm Dec. 24, 1937, while serving a 1 to 10 year sentence for assault to commit rape. Wilhite was arrested by federal authorities in June for questioning on the transportation of a stolen auto across state lines, but was not prosecuted. He was turned over to Chicago police. On July 17 Chief Justice James F. Fardy in Criminal court ordered Wilhite's release on a writ of habeas corpus. The court found that papers from the Indiana prison asking Wilhite's return lacked a seal. Police began a new search for the fugitive yesterday when informed by Indiana authorities that a new warrant will be sought.

GENERALS LASH AT CAVALRYMEN WHO MISS BATTLE

Slowpokes in Desert 'War' Criticized.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

With the Cavalry in the New Mexican Desert, July 22.—The immediate need of further and more intensive training of the 17,000 men and officers engaged in the current cavalry maneuvers in this desert country was emphasized today by Lieut. Gen. Walter Kreuger, commander of the 3d Army, and Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift, commander of the 1st Cavalry Division and chief of the war games.

The two high army leaders addressed more than 300 officers of units participating in the war games at an open air critique held in the blazing hot desert, 30 miles northeast of Fort Bliss, Texas. Gen. Krueger, German born professional soldier who rose from the rank of private to that of three star general, arrived yesterday to watch the cavalry games.

The principal fault found by the two generals was slowness in the movement of troops to the attack and in the transmission of vital combat information from scouting parties to command posts behind the lines.

Too Late for Battle.

At times, because of this slowness of moving units, regiments entirely missed the battle in which they should have figured.

Another criticism was that the common soldier often had no knowledge of what was going on during the games. It was stated that this was due to neglect on the part of officers who should have given their forces a picture of what they were facing and what would be expected of them.

Irked because his command of 12,000 men was unable to protect a 45 mile stretch of the Southern Pacific railroad from a guerilla force of only 3,500 men in the mock battle which ended last night, Gen. Swift's criticisms were sharp.

"The cavalry is not making use of its mobility, its greatest advantage over foot soldier units," Gen. Swift said. "Cavalry action should always be characterized by surprise, and to achieve this element of surprise the cavalry must utilize its mobility to operate against the flanks and rear of its enemy.

Whole Brigade Too Late.

"In one instance in the last problem, a whole brigade of about 3,000 men was directed to move to the attack at 4:30 a. m.," said Gen. Swift. "It did not do so, and as a result arrived too late to be of service.

"Again, a squadron of mounted cavalry was told the night before an attack to load its horses into vans and move out the next dawn," Gen. Swift continued. "It also started too late. As a result, an enemy unit which it was supposed to have contacted slipped by the squadron and succeeded in 'destroying' a section of the railroad.

"Another example of this slowness occurred when a regiment was ordered back to division reserve. Two hours after it started for the rear, it was found only two miles from its starting point."

Mechanized reconnaissance units of scout cars, bantam buggies, and light tanks also were criticized by Gen. Swift. He declared that these units, which move ahead of main troop bodies in combat, did not transmit the information which they picked up about the enemy to higher officers in time for it to be of service.

"At times we were forced to contact the reconnaissance units and ask them for information which they should have sent back to us long before without us asking for it," Gen. Swift concluded.

Krueger Urges Realism.

Gen. Krueger asserted "A lot needs to be done before the cavalry can do fine work." He said he agreed with Gen. Swift's criticisms and added:

"Beyond this, realism is lacking in the maneuvers. I found instances where crews of armored cars, spotted to defend vital zones from enemy air attack, left their machine guns unmanned. In real war, with attacking planes flying at 400 miles an hour, such crews would not have time to climb back into their cars and man their guns.

"Again, I found scout cars mired down in mud after rains," said Gen. Krueger. "This is foolish. There is no law against sending men from the cars ahead on their two tootsies in muddy country to pick paths for their cars."

The last battle problem of the war games begins at dawn tomorrow and is scheduled to end late Thursday. The two week maneuvers will be concluded Friday with a final critique.

Division Sweetheart

MISS HELEN CUSACK.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22 [Special].—Miss Helen Cusack, 17 years old, of Indianapolis, has become the "sweetheart" of 18,000 soldiers at Camp Shelby, Miss. She was selected as the prettiest girl who has been writing to men of the 38th division. Her photograph was chosen from those of a dozen girls. Miss Cusack is expected to arrive at the camp tomorrow as guest of the soldiers. She will be crowned queen at a ball Friday evening.

FOUR SHOWGIRLS GET GUGGENHEIM MILLION ESTATE

New York, July 22 (AP).—The Daily News said tonight that four show girls were to inherit the entire estate of William Guggenheim, copper millionaire who turned to song writing at 71, under terms of his will soon to be filed in Probate court.

William Guggenheim.

The will of the former philanthropist, who died June 27, left nothing to Mrs. Guggenheim or to his son, William, the News reported.

The widow's attorney, Abraham L. Bienstock, said that under New York law Mrs. Guggenheim could claim one-third of the estate, regardless of the will. He said he did not know what action she would take.

Estate Valued at Million.

The News said the girls, identified as Mildred Borst, Mary Alice Rice and Florence Sullivan, all of New York, and Lilyan Andrus of Hollywood, Cal., were to share alike in the estate, valued at more than 1 million dollars.

By terms of the will the executors could sell Guggenheim's mansion at 3 Riverside drive or anything else in the estate. The executors were named as Simon Guggenheim, a brother, and Harold A. Content, attorney.

Family Provided for.

The provision concerning the widow, Aimee Steinberger Guggenheim, whom he married in 1904, and the son, included the statement that "I have made ample provision for them during my lifetime."

A member of the wealthy family whose fortunes began in copper mining developed by the late Meyer Guggenheim, William Guggenheim retired from mining in 1901. He gave much of his time to philanthropy and was a prolific writer of letters to the editor. His songs included "You're a Glamor Girl," written in 1940.

GERMANS BREAK STALIN LINE WITH FLAME ATTACKS

Claim Victory in Battle on Moscow Front.

broke out anew. Where an impenetrable forest stood yesterday, there now were only blackened tree stumps—a landscape of ashes. Far behind, in the smoke, were the reinforced concrete positions of the enemy.

Heavy Guns Start Shelling.

"Antiaircraft guns [apparently machine guns] began a direct onslaught. Farther back heavy guns of the German artillery shelled until noon.

"Again the shock troops advanced, working forward under the protection of artillery fire. Then, at a moment's notice, the German batteries ceased fire. Only a few bunkers were still intact. These, however, defended themselves to the last man. They had to be put out of action by flame throwers and hand grenade charges before the infantry was able to advance on a broad front thru the breach.'

Bersch said that prisoners who were examined later reported that picked Russian troops had practiced fighting in these positions for years.

Bomb Retreating Reds.

DNB, in an earlier description of operations in the Smolensk area, said German air attacks on Russian columns retreating east toward Moscow resulted in "bloody losses."

In addition, the air force directed destructive attacks against retreating Russian columns, railway lines and stations, and tank concentrations along the entire front. Railway lines south of Cherkasi and Kremenchug, Ukrainian cities on the Dnieper 100 and 175 miles below Kiev, the Ukrainian capital, were destroyed. Trains traveling between Moscow and Leningrad were derailed.

German dive bombers were credited with sinking three heavily laden Russian supply ships on the Dnieper.

Other successes claimed by the Germans included the destruction of 98 Russian tanks in the Porkhov area, the disabling of 73 tanks in the Vitebsk region—both in the central sector of the front—and the seizure of 10,000 prisoners and the capture or destruction of 220 tanks in a Dniester sector.

Soviet Defense "Torn."

The high command's announcement of land operations merely said: "Break-thru operations of the German armed forces and their allies have torn the soviet defense front into a number of disconnected units."

The high command declared that the dusk to dawn raid on Moscow was made by "strong combat units in rolling attacks."

Twenty spreading fires were seen east of the Kremlin. The entire region of the Moscow river bend, site of communist party administrative offices and power plants, was described as aflame.

Explosive bombs of all calibers and thousands of incendiaries "fell on vital objectives," a spokesman said.

Retaliatory Attacks.

The high command said the attack was in retaliation for Russian raids on "the open capitals of our allies, Bucharest and Helsingfors."

"Buildings of high soviet executive and administrative importance were destroyed or badly damaged," it added.

German war correspondents who flew with the Moscow raiders reported seeing great flames in the Russian capital.

Correspondent Anton Mueller-Engstfeld said that the burning of the city generally could be compared only with the conflagrations lighted in Birmingham and Sheffield, English cities raided many times. Another journalist, Egon Kieffer, said he was 95 miles from Moscow when he first saw the blazing city.

Kieffer said that there was "a boiling sea of fire" in the heart of Moscow.

Mueller-Engstfeld, stating that his group of bombers had as their target buildings of the Soviet army, the comintern [communist international], and the GPU [Soviet secret police], said huge fires were started in the region of these objectives.

This writer said Smolensk, which the German high command reported taking July 16, was still burning last night.

A BIG BERLIN STORY: F. D. R. IS A FREE MASON

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 22.—"The greatest battle in history" has been pushed off the front pages of Berlin newspapers by huge headlines revealing to the German public the "astonishing news" that the President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a 32d degree Free Mason.

Inch-high letters spread the cry that Roosevelt has been "unmasked." A large photograph shows the President seated in a group of the New York Architects' lodge members, including his two younger sons, John and Franklin Jr., as well as the mayor of New York, Fiorello La Guardia.

The German story claims that "secret documents" sent from Oslo, Norway, exposed President Roosevelt as the "chief instrument of Freemasonry."

The Voelkischer Beobachter leads an editorial with a claim that "the Norway document discovery will play no less an important rôle in the history of this war than the documents of the secret archives of Warsaw [Poland] and La Charite [France]."

Official comment at the foreign office failed to reveal what the significance of the discovery may be, aside from the vague statement that the "document" was "typical."

[Who's Who in America lists Mr. Roosevelt as a Mason, as do most of his biographers.]

HELP OF U. S. WILL NOT SOON PROVE DECISIVE, SAYS HORE-BELISHA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 22.—Altho stating that Britain's position was better than at any other time since the fall of France, former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha today warned a Plymouth audience: "Let us not delude ourselves that American aid in the near future can be decisive."

The reasons for the improvement, he said, were the "growing support of America," which was announced on Friday by Harry Hopkins, lend-lease supervisor, and the fact that Germany is now fighting on two fronts.

Maximum productivity here and in the United States, he asserted, "will determine the duration, if not the issue, of the conflict," adding that "another factor is United States aid in shipping." Only "the most convincing arguments can justify" the suppression of news of British shipping losses, Hore-Belisha argued, as American opinion must be informed before it can be expected to give fullest support to replenish the losses.

2 Army Flyers Lost, Third Saved in Hawaii Air Crash

HONOLULU, T. H., July 22 (AP).—Two army flyers were missing and one was rescued today after a training plane and a pursuit plane collided and plunged into the sea. Fishermen rescued Lieut. Paul R. Crawley, 23 years old, of Terre Haute, Ind., one of the two occupants of the trainer. Missing were Second Lieutenant Maxwell Hearn of Norfolk, Va., pilot of the pursuit plane, and Second Lieutenant Ronald A. Findley of Akron, O., the other occupant of the trainer.

EAST KARELIANS CAST OFF SOVIET RULE, JOIN FINNS

Finnish Forces Push Drive to Recover Territory.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VUOKKONIEMI, Finland, July 20 [By courier to Helsingfors] [Delayed].—Seated on a grassy hillock, a small group of Karelian peasants today heard their leaders declare that the eastern Karelian provinces of Viena and Aunus had seceded from soviet Russia and now were united with the Finnish republic.

Dressed in rags and barefooted, the Karelians were the survivors of what formerly was a prosperous farming community under the régime of the Russian czars. Under bolshevism they had been organized into collectivized farms. Working for the soviet state they became poorer each year. The one thing they had kept from former time was their language.

Pass Four Resolutions.

The meeting passed four resolutions in the Finnish language:

1. Addressed to Field Marshal Mannerheim, thanking him for their deliverance from soviet slavery and promising Karelian support for his forces, which were marching eastward toward the new frontier of Finland.

2. Addressed to the Karelians and told how the war on Russia would help them to settle accounts with the bolsheviks who had enslaved the Karelian people. It reminded the Karelians of their long struggle for freedom against both czarist and bolshevik Russia and of the attempts made by the Russians to exterminate this Finnish tribe. It recalled how thousands of Karelians had to flee and live in Finland as refugees, how other thousands perished in soviet prisons and concentration camps, and how their churches had been destroyed.

Call for Reconstruction.

It proclaimed the freedom of Karelia from soviet rule and her adherance to the Finnish state and called on all citizens to work to repair homesteads destroyed by the fighting now in progress. Calling upon all Karelians to rally to the spirit of the Finnish army, which has many Karelians fighting in its ranks, it closed by proclaiming that Karelians banished to distant parts of Russia soon would be able to return to their land.

3. Addressed to the people of Finland, related how the freedom promised by the soviets was a mockery and how communism had crucified the Karelians. It thanked the Finns for taking to arms against Russia.

4. Addressed to all free nations, telling of the Karelians' desire for freedom and their wish to unite with Finland.

The meeting elected an independence committee of ten Karelians, all of whom have lived for many years in Finland as refugees. The meeting closed with Maj. Gen. Hjalmar Siilasvuo reviewing a guard of honor.

Accident Victims

Military services for Maj. Eugene L. Baker, member of the 108th Medical regiment at Camp Forrest, Tenn., who was killed Sunday night in an automobile accident near Fayetteville, Tenn., will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow from his residence at 334 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, to St. Edmund's church in the suburb.

Military and Masonic services for Capt. Ernest C. Day, also of the 108th Medical regiment, who was killed in the same accident, will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday in the chapel at 3905 Lincoln avenue, with burial in Acacia Park cemetery.

Capt. Day was 40 years old. He lived at 2226 Wilson avenue, and was in medical practice at 4753 Broadway. Maj. Baker, 42 years old, was associated with his father, Dr. Henry L. Baker, in practice at 4458 Madison street.

German Plane Shot Down by Turks, Ankara Hears

ANKARA, Turkey, July 22. — Unofficial reports here tonight said a German reconnaissance plane was shot down yesterday by Turkish anti-aircraft fire into the Black sea near Karadjadagh. The German plane, according to the reports, apparently was surveying Turkish fortifications. The three members of the crew were killed.

GERMAN-FINNISH DRIVE MENACES LENINGRAD LINE

Reds Report Battle Near Murmansk Railroad.

MOSCOW, July 23 [Wednesday]—(AP).—A German-Finnish thrust close to the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad was indicated by the Red army today. In a communique, it declared the German-Russian front was essentially unchanged, and proclaimed a successful defense of Moscow against the first Nazi air raid on the soviet capital.

The communique reported "heavy fighting" in the region of Petrozavodsk, a town which lies 250 miles above Leningrad on the important rail line to Murmansk, Russia's ice free arctic port. The town is northeast of Lake Ladoga and 140 miles inside Russia's frontier with Finland.

[Other Nazi troops are fighting upward along the Baltic area southwest of Leningrad.]

Heavy Fighting on Three Fronts

There was heavy fighting also in the Porkhov, Smolensk, and Zhitomir regions—the areas of fierce battles for days against German forces driving respectively toward Leningrad, Moscow, and Kiev.

[Informed British sources said in London that a German thrust down the west bank of the Dnieper river from the Kieve front was developing and that if it is successful might cut off the Russians in Bessarabia. German occupation of that region, it was said, might change the tempo of the war. Once the Ukraine was taken, it was added, the Germans might well be able to keep the remainder of the soviet armies engaged with a smaller Nazi force and turn their attention to England.]

Moscow emerged relatively unharmed from Monday night's 5½ hour raid by 200 planes, and Josef Stalin in a special order of the day praised the people of the capital for their work against the raiders.

As people's commissar for defense, Stalin lauded the "fine work" by night fighters and the ground defenses. He also paid tribute to the fire fighting services and the militia who were busy thruout the raid. Stalin said that 22 German planes were shot down during the raid.

Bombs Drop in Fields.

The German craft beat at the capital with both explosive and fire bombs in an effort to burn it out, but daylight showed that despite the fury of the assault it was relatively harmless.

Today's post-midnight communique said the German planes "dropped most of their bombs on woods and fields outside Moscow."

"Not a single military objective was touched nor was any damage done to municipal enterprises," it added.

A big bomb crater in Mochowaja street in front of the United States embassy was the only sign of damage in the center of the city. The Kremlin and other public centers were not touched. Many buildings were hit, but apparently all were private dwellings.

Toss Bombs Off Roofs.

Civilian fire defense operated in relays, throwing incendiary bombs off rooftops and extinguishing fires as they sprang up.

The government described the raid flatly as a failure, adding: "Only isolated enemy planes broke thru defense detachments. Several private dwellings were set afire and a small number of persons were killed or wounded."

All fires were out after dawn and the bomb craters were filled.

Moscow Bombed in New Raid

HOPKINS SEEKS TO ERASE SNAGS IN U. S. WAR AID

Co-operation Not Going Smoothly, British Hear.

BY CRAIG THOMPSON.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 22.—Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the American lend-lease act, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill today had an audience with King George on the heels of the latest British cabinet change, which left many here dissatisfied because nothing was done about unifying production.

There is belief here that the technical assistance being exchanged between Britain and the United States is not leading to a unified effort. Despite many rumors that Churchill intended to name a new production manager, he has not done so. There are many reasons to believe coöperation between the United States and Britain is not going smoothly.

Some Equipment Inadequate.

Some types of American equipment—it is forbidden by the censorship to give details—have been found inadequate for the jobs they were to perform.

This information is believed to be primarily important to the United States in its effort to arm itself. If the United States has planes and other materials which are unable to meet combat conditions, then the people of the United States should be informed, but information is consistenently denied here. The British take the attitude that, since the United States has been so helpful, even American correspondents must not report what the operators of these implements report their capacity to be.

Too Weak for Invasion.

After two years of intense effort it is still evident that Britain does not have available a sufficient quantity of men and materials for the job now open—the invasion of the continent. In spite of its tremendous output, Britain cannot provide the men and materials essential for an expeditionary effort and at the same time maintain what it considers to be a necessary home guard.

These factors are believed to enter into Hopkins' visit and into the return from the middle east of W. Averell Harriman, coördinator of United States aid to England. Both of them are preparing reports. Harriman's will deal with the quantities of American goods that reached the middle east and were used by the British in North Africa, Crete, and Syria. Hopkins is trying to find what Great Britain needs and when the needs shall be delivered.

Oil Is One Problem.

Among Hopkins' inquiries there are many factors. One involves food deliveries; another has to deal with the demand for more oil from America, altho London streets are filled with public and private cars burning gasoline.

Most important, probably, is the effort to put the main stream of American production in bombers, while Britain makes fighters.

The fact that Hopkins and Churchill visited the king suggested the possibility that a new sort of administration to work out coöperative problems may be proposed.

German Objectives

Russo-German war scene superimposed on map of midwest, with Moscow at Chicago. Objectives of three main German drives (directions shown by arrows) are Leningrad, Moscow, and Kiev. Mileages shown are distances between war fronts and objectives.

PICKS ROSENBERG AS GOVERNOR OF UNBEATEN RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 22.—German confidence that soviet resistance will collapse soon was reflected today by Adolf Hitler's appointment of a "reichsminister for the east." He is Alfred Rosenberg, a native of Russia and Hitler's chief of culture and world outlook.

Erich Koch, former Nazi governor of East Prussia, was named governor of unconquered Moscow. Heinrich Lohse, governor of Schleswig-Holstein, was chosen special commissioner for the former Baltic countries of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia. This indicates that these countries may be incorporated in Germany.

Karl Kaufmann, governor of Hamburg, was appointed governor of the Ukraine, Russia's granary.

RESCUED NURSES TELL OF 12 DAYS' TORTURES AT SEA

5 Saved from U-Boat Attack Reach U. S.

Norfolk, Va., July 22 (AP).—The story of 12 days and 11 nights in an open boat in the north Atlantic after their ship, en route to England, had been torpedoed, was told tonight by survivors landed here by a navy transport.

Four were American Red Cross nurses and the fifth a marine corporal who were picked up by an American destroyer July 5 and taken to Reykjavik, Iceland, for medical care.

Put ashore at the Norfolk navy yard, the group was removed to the Portsmouth Naval hospital. Naval officers said at the time they were taken aboard the destroyer they were suffering from nervous exhaustion and some of gangrene.

Sailed from New Orleans.

The four nurses, members of a party of 10 who sailed as the only passengers aboard a 7,000 ton vessel from New Orleans, La., June 5, were reported safe July 9.

The nurses were Marion Blissett of Detroit, Mich.; Victoria Pelc of Auburn, N. Y.; Rachel St. Pierre of Boston, and Lillian Pesnicak of Albany, N. Y. The marine corporal is E. H. MacAllister.

Shortly after the sinking of the ship six men and the four girls were transferred to the captain's boat, which then carried 14 persons. The other six persons remained in the first boat.

Disappointment came after disappointment for the weather beaten drifters. The day of the sinking they sighted another convoy, but distress rockets went unsighted. The nurses said they saw the submarine come to the surface again later that day, but it paid them no heed.

Set Sail for Greenland.

"For two days we drifted around in apparent calm," the story continued. "Then the third day a breeze sprang up and we set sail in the hope of making Greenland. . . . From this time on the sea was rough and it rained much of the time, and we were continuously tacking.

"Our feet were never dry during this time. We started away from the ship with one hardtack each. Later this was cut to one-half. At noon every day the captain opened a can of meatballs and divided them equally among us 14 persons. We were given about five ounces of water over each period of 24 hours.

"We celebrated the Fourth of July by sitting in the rain. After the rain washed the salt off the canvas covering we utilized the empty meat cans to catch the rain water as it dropped off the canvas. This water was used to brush our teeth with two toothbrushes that we had saved."

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID SHIPBUILDING YARDS IN NORTHERN FRANCE

LONDON, July 22 (AP).—British bombers, sweeping almost unhindered over northern France today, attacked shipbuilding yards near the mouth of the Seine river, and their escorting Polish fighters shot down four German planes. The raiders attacked German airdromes, hangars, grounded planes, and a ship off the coast, and claimed a direct hit on one coastal anti-aircraft battery. Other targets were attacked between Calais and Boulogne.

Three British planes were missing from the daylight operations and one plane failed to return from heavy overnight attacks on objectives in western Germany, Denmark, the Netherlands, and Belgium. Frankfurt, Mannheim, Cherbourg, and Ostend were among the cities bombed. A German bomber and an RAF plane collided over Britain during the night and the crews of both planes were killed.

[The Germans claimed they shot down eight British planes in fighting over the channel yesterday without loss of their own. They said Britain's two day losses were 20 planes.]

WARN BELGIANS OF FIRE MENACE IN BRITISH RAIDS

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 22 (AP).—Belgian farmers were warned by the agriculture department today to keep spades and fire fighting tools handy to protect crops and sheds against incendiary tablets dropped by British night raiders.

Crops in the field or in sheds have been set afire often by these chemically treated cardboards, about two inches square and one-fifth of an inch thick.

[About a year ago the Germans reported the royal air force was scattering the cardboard incendiaries over Germany and that persons had been burned when they picked them up. The cards are wet when dropped and ignite when they dry.]

REQUIRE GARBAGE DUMPING TO FILL SITE FOR AIRPORT

The city council finance committee yesterday recommended that the council approve contracts submitted by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, which provide for dumping sites for city refuse. Three of the contracts, which relate to loading stations at which garbage and refuse is dumped into railroad cars and hauled to outlying dumps, specify that the cargoes be hauled to the north end of Lake Calumet and dumped to fill in the site where the city plans to create a south side airport. Formerly loading station contracts permitted the contractor to haul the refuse to any dump he wished.

Recover Bodies of 2 Men Drowned in Park Lagoon

Coast guardsmen yesterday recovered the bodies of two young men drowned last Friday in the Burnham park lagoon near 17th street when a borrowed dinghy in which they were rowing out to their sailboat capsized. The victims were Frank Nilles Jr., 19 years old, and James Wolf, 21, both of 1837 21st place.

EARL OF ATHLONE ASSERTS BRITAIN NEVER WILL QUIT

TORONTO, Ont., July 22 [Special].—"We shall win this war. We shall utterly destroy our enemy," King George's uncle, the earl of Athlone and governor-general of Canada, declared today while addressing the annual meeting of the South Carolina newspaper editors' convention.

"Tho that enemy may lay our cities in ruins, tho he may bring tears and tribulation to our people, we shall never give up. We shall cling steadfastly to the tattered shreds of our civilization and in the end we shall win."

In that "we" the governor-general said he included all free people. "Which one would you say," he asked, "is doing more damage to the Germans—an engineer in an aircraft factory in the United States turning out bombers for the royal air force or a soldier on guard on the coast of England? It is quite possible that Hitler would prefer the destruction of your 'neutral' engineers to the destruction of a company of British infantry."

NAZIS SAY F.D.R. RECRUITS LATINS TO STRIKE AT AXIS

BERLIN, July 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt's message to congress yesterday and Bolivia's ouster of the German minister were coupled by authorized spokesmen and the German press today as "new proof" that "Roosevelt is planfully proceeding against the axis and Europe, and in so doing is endeavoring to make South American states his stooges."

The comment was by Dienst aus Deutschland, the authoritative commentary.

"Once again," the commentary said, "the President has made a completely senseless claim of an axis threat to the western hemisphere. In reality, it was not the axis which sought bases in the western hemisphere; on the contrary, the President of the United States continuously meddles in the affairs of the eastern hemisphere and secures one base after another."

"Mother and I Both Approve FANNIE MAY CANDY!"

MISS JACQUELYN WRIGHT, of LaGrange, Illinois, after a visit to the Fannie May kitchens, issued this statement for publication:

I guess the reason I approve Fannie May Candy is—I just love it! But Mother says she approves it because she knows Fannie May Candies are fresh—and pure, with no preservatives. And say—you should have been with me in the Fannie May kitchens to see the caramels being made—four different kinds, vanilla, black walnut, chocolate, and licorice. Um-m—did I have a swell time! Hope I'm invited back for another visit to Fannie May!

CONCERN VOICED IN WASHINGTON OVER JAP MOVES

Officials Profess Fear of Thrust at Singapore.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Government officials tonight professed concern over what was described as indications of new Japanese moves in the far east threatening the security of British Malaya and Singapore, outposts of the British empire.

Revelation of the supposed moves was believed to have been timed by the Roosevelt administration to coincide with congressional debate on the proposed extension of service for draftees and National Guardsmen in the hope of averting a militant countermeasure.

Jap Censorship Reported.

Developments in the last 24 hours which government officials considered to be carrying United States-Japanese relations toward a critical point were:

1. President Roosevelt announced that he had been advised that the Japanese government has imposed complete censorship of radio and cable, a move which he said he regarded as significant.

2. It was disclosed that Senators Walter F. George [D., Ga.] and Tom Connally [D., Tex.] discussed the Japanese situation with the President earlier in the day in the presence of Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state.

3. An unscheduled call at the White House by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau led to increasing speculation as to possible economic moves contemplated by the administration against Tokio.

Believe Demands Sweeping.

4. Reports reaching officials in the capital from Vichy, France that negotiations on French Indo-China had been started with the Japanese were interpreted as indicating that sweeping demands for economic and military concessions had been made by the Tokio government.

5. United States officials were informed that Tokio newspapers are charging that Indo-China, Thailand [Siam], and the Dutch East Indies are to be attacked soon by British, Free French, and Chinese forces.

Piecing the picture together, officials here saw renewed collaboration between the Vichy government and Tokio, putting the Japanese in easy striking distance of the great raw material resources of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies.

Informed by Navy.

President Roosevelt received the first word of the Japanese censorship this afternoon in a naval intelligence dispatch just before his press conference. He lost no time in telling correspondents and refused to elaborate on a statement that he regarded the move as highly significant.

Immediate speculation following Mr. Roosevelt's announcement was whether the censorship was imposed to conceal a sudden thrust by Japanese forces into Indo-China, allowing time to get such a drive rolling before the British or "Free French" could block it.

Some government officials suspected Tokio may be gambling on growing opposition in congress to the administration's latest war dictatorship measures. They said the Japanese apparently believed Mr. Roosevelt would be slow in making a warlike move now, lest he alarm congress and bring about defeat of his bills.

It was reliably reported that this was one of the topics discussed with Welles, George, and Connally. Warnings given to Mr. Roosevelt by the senators of the possible consequences on Capitol hill of any untoward moves in meeting the Japanese situation are said to have resulted in plans for economic reprisals.

Gets Auto Order

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. MOLLY BAUMGARTNER.

John Baumgartner, 26 years old, turned up in Judge Michael Feinberg's court yesterday with his arm in a sling, pleading that his incapacity prevented him from working, and that was the reason why he was in arrears $185 for the support of his daughter, Charlotte, 9 months.

Joseph H. and Norman Becker, attorneys for Baumgartner's wife, Molly, 25, of 1246 North Dearborn street, then informed the judge that, ailing or not, Baumgartner was driving around in a fancy automobile which his wife had given him. They suggested that if he couldn't work to support his child, he shouldn't be permitted to waste money on gasoline.

Judge Feinberg agreed and ordered the car turned over to Mrs. Baumgartner for sale, the proceeds to be applied against the arrearage. Mrs. Baumgartner is asking separate maintenance on grounds of desertion and nonsupport.

PROF. MOULTON FIGURES WRONG AND IS ARRESTED

Prof. Elton J. Moulton, former dean of the Northwestern university graduate school and a mathematician of national standing, who recently was charged with assault and battery after a reported fist fight with a neighbor, made another slight error in computation yesterday and found himself arrested for driving thru a stoplight.

He was stopped by Policeman William Miller at Colfax avenue and Sherman street, in Evanston, and his driver's license was taken to secure his appearance today before Municipal Judge Harry H. Porter.

The charge of assault and battery against Dr. Moulton had been continued until Aug. 5 by Judge James M. Corcoran. Dr. Moulton surrendered July 7 after a complaint had been filed by Robert A. Sellery, whose home at 1113 Grant street backs on an alley across from Dr. Moulton's property at 1114 Colfax avenue. Their fight was occasioned by a fence erected by Dr. Moulton which blocks Sellery's access to his garage.

ASSERTS BRITAIN AND U. S. 'AGREE' ON INDO-CHINA

Believe Japs May Attempt Seizures This Week.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23 [Wednesday].—Discussions between the United States and Great Britain regarding steps to be taken should Japan strike out for additional bases in French Indo-China have "ended in complete agreement." This was the belief expressed by Vernon Bartlett, a member of parliament, writing in this morning's News Chronicle.

According to information reaching London, he declared, Japan "before the end of this week is likely to take action to obtain control of Camranh bay and other naval and air bases in Indo-China."

He said significance attached to the fact that the government of Thailand [Siam] was "quite wrongly alleged by the Japanese to be coming under British-American control and that De Gaullists [Free French]—equally wrongly—were alleged to be unduly influential in Singapore."

Hints at Joint Blockade.

The "Inside Information" column of the Daily Sketch said that plans for a "joint British-American blockade of Japan if she commits an act of aggression against Russia or Indo-China" were among important matters discussed by Harry Hopkins, American lease-lend coördinator, during his present visit in London.

Japan and France were reported negotiating over French Indo-China, and British sources heard that the negotiations concerned Japanese demands.

British sources in Singapore, expressing surprise over Japanese charges that the British were preparing to invade Indo-China, said the reports "possibly are being circulated to pave the way for Japanese action. An attempt may be made to justify Japanese demands on Indo-China by the bogey of British intervention," these sources said.

A British radio broadcast said reports of large scale mobilization thruout Japan and requisitioning of horses and motor trucks indicated "big developments are imminent."

Charge Invasion Plan.

TOKIO, July 22 (AP).—The Japanese press, which often reflects official opinion, charged today that Chinese, British, and "Free French" forces were prepared to invade French Indo-China and carried an unusually heavy mass of other dispatches concerning that territory which is listed in Tokio's "greater East Asia" program.

Domei, the official Japanese news agency, asserted in a report datelined Hongkong that Chinese forces in Yunnan and Kwangsi provinces, "Free French" units of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and British native troops in Malaya were prepared to go into the French oriental country.

[Neutral military observers in Shanghai said they were skeptical of the origin of the report, saying they doubted the British Hongkong censor would pass such a story.]

Curtail Rail Service.

SHANGHAI, July 22 (AP).—Further restrictions on travel thru North China and Manchukuo were reported today by foreign sources here who said all daytime train service between Peking and Corea had been stopped.

Meanwhile, however, Japanese shipping offices in Shanghai have resumed ticket sales for vessels leaving for Kobe, Japan, after Friday, following a 10 day ban. Some observers said this indicated that if the Japanese have been carrying out troop or ship movements in the Kobe vicinity they are nearly completed.

TYPHOON WHIPS JAPAN; 35 DEAD; MANY HOMELESS

TOKIO, July 22 (AP).—Thousands in Japan were homeless and 35 were dead after a typhoon lashed portions of the island today in the wake of week long rains.

Most severely punished were the prefecture of Shizouka, 150 miles southwest; the city of Ashikaga, north, and the town of Tsuchiura, 40 miles northeast of Tokio.

Thirty-four were reported dead and 38 injured at Shozouka, where 26,000 homes were flooded. The people fled Ashikaga when high water surged into the streets. At Tsuchiura troops were called out to assist the inhabitants from their homes. There was one death in Kanagawa prefecture, where 23 houses collapsed.

The typhoon was veering toward the Sea of Japan and was expected to miss Tokio, but 12,000 homes were flooded here.

NYE FORECASTS ALL-OUT FIGHT ON DRAFT EXTENSION

Warns F.D.R. Demand Will Mean War.

An all-out fight more determined than that against the so-called lend-lease bill will be directed in congress against the President's demand for passage of a national emergency resolution. This was the statement of Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], who paused in Chicago yesterday on the eve of a speaking tour thru four central western states.

Sen. Gerald P. Nye.

"Passage of that resolution will mean undeclared war and dictatorship," Senator Nye asserted. "It will mean an American expeditionary force to any spot the President may choose.

Cites Foreign Policy Peril.

"That resolution would sustain his own unlimited emergency proclamation of May 27 and would make him commander-in-chief in fact of our armed forces. It would broaden and extend his perilous foreign policy.

"At home it would mean absolute control of industry. It would bring censorship a step closer. It is certain that the President would have absolute control of the nation's radio.

"The fight over this resolution will be the last stand against the forces of chaos. It must not fail."

Of the resolution's provision for retention in the service of America's draft army, Senator Nye said there is good reason to believe that the government is afraid to release the draftees because of what they can tell the country about conditions in the new army.

Confers with Stuart.

The senator conferred in Chicago yesterday with R. Douglas Stuart Jr., national director of the America First committee, and other committee officials.

Senator Nye's itinerary will take him to Detroit, Mich., for a speech tonight, and to Chippewa Falls, Wis., tomorrow night. He will speak at Mankato, Minn., on Saturday; at Watson, Minn., on Sunday, and at Grand Forks, N. D., on Monday. Mrs. Nye is accompanying the senator.

Miss Gertrude Coogan will speak tonight at 1618 Devon avenue at a meeting sponsored by the Rogers Park chapter of the America First committee. She will discuss the effect war would have upon the American small business man.

ROTC CADETS HIT BOMBER TARGET AT FT. SHERIDAN

University of Illinois ROTC cadets celebrated the conclusion of their fifth week of summer training in anti-aircraft defense at Fort Sheridan yesterday by shooting down a cloth sleeve target being towed by an army bomber at an altitude of 10,000 feet.

The 15 pound shrapnel projectile, fired from a 3-inch anti-aircraft gun, cut away the 40 foot target and dropped it into Lake Michigan. This afternoon the cadets will be guests of P. K. Wrigley at the Cubs-Braves baseball game.

Get a toe hold on automatic heat at its best

Put in that Stoker now!

● "Look, ma . . . here's where I felt coldest last winter: my feet and the rest of me that was on the floor. You see, the kind of automatic heat that lets the fire go out until the thermostat says you need more may be all right for you. But down here at the floor level where I live it's always cold. Now if we burned coal it would be different. Coal, even when it's automatically fired keeps a constant heat flow going and that means even warmth from floor to ceiling. And another thing, ma, with a stoker burning low-cost coal, our old man wouldn't be fiddling with the thermostat every time an economy streak struck him."

• • •

Considering automatic heat? Then consider this too! With a stoker you get automatic firing . . . plus a continuous, even heat flow . . . plus unlimited heat reserves . . . plus a 40% to 60% saving over other forms of automatic heat on your fuel bill. With other forms of automatic heat you get mechanical firing . . . and that's all! Ask your coal merchant for the facts and let him help you pick your stoker. He is experienced and can arrange favorable terms.

"You Can't Do Business With Hitler!"

We seven—without the knowledge of or consultation with the author of this book or its publishers—are printing this advertisement at our own expense. We urge you to read what we believe to be the most revealing document yet written about Nazi Trade Policies...how they are sure to change your own daily way of life.

We, whose names appear at the bottom of this advertisement, are sharing the cost of this space in order to urge our fellow citizens to buy a book whose author we do not personally know and with whose publisher we have no connection.

The book is "You Can't Do Business With Hitler"; the author, Douglas Miller, for many years American Commercial Attache in Berlin, six under the Nazis. The publishers are Little, Brown & Company, Boston. This advertisement is printed without their knowledge or consent.

* * *

Many of our citizens—patriotic and sincere—appalled at the destruction of life and property involved in what seems a useless struggle between England and Germany, have hoped for a negotiated peace.

Custodians of property and business instinctively shrink from mounting taxes and the concentration of Government power involved in our policy of aid to Britain. Many see in this process the destruction of our economic system and the loss of our own Democracy in trying to save it.

Why shouldn't England and Germany come to terms? Aside from the emotional stress, basically, and from the standpoint of trade, it is asked—what difference does it make whether Germany or England wins? Neither's past relations with us has been ideal.

If Germany wins, why can't we trade with her? She will need our products with which to rehabilitate Europe. Didn't we trade with Germany under the Kaiser? Haven't we always traded with peoples ruled by dictators?

* * *

Mr. Miller out of his unique experience answers these questions in "You Can't Do Business With Hitler" in a way as startling and revealing as Mr. Hitler's "Mein Kampf" itself.

No American save Miller could have made the picture so vivid, for no other American has had the same opportunity of observing so closely Nazi methods of doing business and their ultimate purposes.

Mr. Miller makes it clear, as it has never been made clear before, that the future of every American—rich and poor alike—is endangered in a Hitler world.

We feel every American—particularly those who believe we can do business with Hitler—should read this book.

If you are as impressed as we, write ten of your friends to buy it and urge them likewise to write ten of their friends.

The best Life Insurance you can buy is insurance that you can continue life as you now know it. "You Can't Do Business With Hitler" will make finally clear to you how a Nazi world would end that opportunity. By all means get this remarkable book ($1.50) at your dealer today.

SAGES WHITTLE OUT THE ANSWER TO VILLAGE FEUD

Band Night and Sheriff's Auto Collide!

BY THOMAS MORROW.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., July 22.—Tubas, French horns, an occasional flute, and restricted parking reared their heads today in the Christian county slot machine battle.

Arrow locates Taylorville in Christian county [black area]

The engagement, a weight and age event for county and village officials, already has caused $50 damage to the city jail, brought the summary arrest and later release of Police Chief Ed Zemke, and distracted some attention from the 2:12 pace at the county fair. Opinion gleaned along the curbstone holds that the whole thing could have been avoided if Sheriff Virgil Ezra hadn't parked his car on the left side of the street in courthouse square four or five months back.

According to fellows with virile mustaches and a tremendous capacity for biting tobacco, it is really this incident, trivial in itself, which will bring a grim-faced grand jury trooping into courthouse square tomorrow. The jury will decide who did what to whom, and why, concerning county slot machines.

Jail Sledge Hammered.

State's Attorney Tom Sweeney told Circuit Judge J. T. Bullington he wanted the jury called to investigate an unusual situation of corruption and a conspiracy to prevent law enforcement in the county.

The jury also will look into the matter of the sledge hammer raid Sheriff Ezra made on the city jail last Friday. Ezra arrested Chief Zemke, battered down a door, broke open three cells, and carted off 108 slot machines which Zemke was storing for Sweeney as evidence in pending gambling cases resulting from raids on taverns and a warehouse.

Sweeney ordered Justice of the Peace D. E. Noonan to release the police chief. He said there was nothing political about the whole thing—he's just going to clean up the county.

The View Along Main Street.

But the sages along Main street don't agree. They hark back to the time the city introduced restricted parking and the sheriff insisted on parking his car on the left side of the street in courthouse square. The city protested, and this irked Sheriff Ezra.

He retired and sulked a little, it is reported, and then came forward with his revenge. No more, he said, would the city hold band concerts on the courthouse lawn each Wednesday night.

"There they were," said Sheriff Ezra, who is a genial fellow with tousled hair. "Those concerts right agin the courthouse. They weren't doing the grass any good, and I thought if the city's going to be that dirty about parking they can hold their concerts in the street."

Yes, Sir; Right in the Street!

And that's where they're being held now.

Feeling of the community apparently was summed up by Dick Simpson, clerk of draft board No. 1. "I don't care who wins," said Simpson, "but she sure is exciting."

Taylorville apparently waited with cheerful disregard for the next step in the slot machine squabble. Whittling production along the curb at courthouse square was at a low ebb as the habitues considered the county fair, where, it is reported, a bet can be put down on a fancied trotter or pacer.

"If they allow one to run, let 'em all run," said J. W. Mackey in a conference on the courthouse curb.

Mr. Sharp Concurs.

D. D. Sharp dispensed with his pipe long enough to allow that he "was a good deal like Mackey."

"Same damn way," opined David Durbin, "they're bad things, but if one runs, all runs."

While these gentlemen did not say so, consensus was that tradition in Christian county has been for slot machines to whir inconspicuously in the county as long as the city remains shut.

"I'm agin 'em on the grounds of women and children," said J. A. Piper. "I've got lots of kin folks with children, and I know how they do with 'em. I've got one boy who wouldn't miss a wheel. But it's only fair to throw 'em all open or close 'em all down."

Jess Spangler said he wasn't very upset about the matter because the slot machines "didn't bother him and he didn't bother them."

Meanwhile the community mulled some pretty startling rumors about who owned the slot machines. Town folk worried about the possibility this squabble, started in good clean fun, might go on until some one gets hurt.

Seeks Tax Refund

MADELEINE CARROLL.

Hollywood, Cal., July 22 [Special].—Madeleine Carroll, film actress, today filed suit in United States District court to recover an over payment of $9,092.56 of income taxes which she asserts was illegally assessed and collected for 1936 to 1939. The action is directed against Collector of Internal Revenue Nat Rogan. She filed under her legal name of Madeleine Carroll Astley.

MORIARITY CASE WILL BE GIVEN TO JURY TODAY

State to Demand His Death in Electric Chair.

The fate of Daniel Moriarity, suspended state's attorney's policeman, is expected to be submitted to a jury of seven men and five women this afternoon in Judge John A. Sbarbaro's Criminal court. The state is demanding the death penalty for Moriarity, and the defense is contending he was temporarily insane when he shot and killed Miss Ada Jane Martin.

Dr. Francis Gerty.

The state's attorney's office charges that Moriarity shot Miss Martin by mistake; that he intended to shoot her mother, Mrs. Ada Martin, alleged head of a million dollar abortion ring. Miss Martin was sleeping in her mother's room on April 29 when Moriarity emptied his service revolver into her sleeping body.

$100 a Month Payoff.

Evidence produced by the prosecution and Moriarity's own confession, made personally to State's Attorney Courtney, show that the policeman was on the pay roll of the abortion ring at $100 a month for several years. He acted as "fixer" for the ring and bribed at least two former assistant prosecutors and a fellow policeman, the confession says.

He tried unsuccessfully to bribe Assistant Prosecutor Sam Papanek with $3,000 to settle the latest case against Mrs. Martin and some of her associates, the state charges. Then, the state adds, Mrs. Martin threatened to exposé the bribes, and Moriarity went to her home with the intention of forever silencing her, but shot the daughter by mistake.

Taking of evidence was formally closed at a late session of court yesterday. Judge Sbarbaro announced that closing arguments would be started this morning and that he would keep court in session today until the case is handed over to the jury. Assistant State's Attorneys Richard Austin and Alex Napoli will argue in behalf of the prosecution, and Attorney James M. Burke will plead for Moriarity.

The Possible Findings.

The jury can find Moriarity guilty of murder and fix his punishment at death in the electric chair at life imprisonment, or at any term of years not less than 14 years in the penitentiary. Or it can find him not guilty or insane at the time he committed the crime, but since recovered and therefore not guilty. The defense is not making any contention that he is now insane, and therefore the jury could not send him to an asylum for the criminal insane.

Dr. Francis Gerty, for 19 years head of the Psychopathic hospital and now professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois, closed the testimony in the case. He appeared as a rebuttal witness for the prosecution.

Moriarity for the time being was turned into a hypothetical person. After listening to Prosecutor Napoli propound a hypothetical question for 1 hour and 40 minutes Dr. Gerty said in his opinion the hypothetical Moriarity had the power to distinguish between right and wrong and to choose between right and wrong.

Capt. Gilbert Heard.

The prosecution produced a dozen or more witnesses—hospital attendants, jail guards, and assistant prosecutors—to testify that in their opinion Moriarity was sane. Among these was Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office and Moriarity's superior officer.

Capt. Gilbert said he visited Moriarity in the Chicago hospital almost immediately after the murder.

"What the hell happened, Dinny?" Gilbert said he asked, and quoted Moriarity as replying:

"I got rid of that ——, Ada Martin. She caused me a lot of trouble and put a lot of pressure on me. You had my room filled with wires and dictographs and tried to get it on me, too." [The defense contends this last statement was one of Moriarity's hallucinations.]

Mrs. Martin, a chic figure in a black dress trimmed with white, spent the day at the trial. She said she wanted to be a state's witness.

Will He Keep His Promise?

President Roosevelt, on October 30, 1940, speaking to fathers and mothers on the selective service act:

"And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers, I give you one more assurance.

"I have said this before, but I shall say it again and again. Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars.

"They are going into training to form a force so strong that, by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.

"The purpose of our defense is defense."

PORT SAID FIGHTS BUBONIC PLAGUE; DWELLINGS RAZED

CAIRO, Egypt, July 22 (AP).—Government agencies acted swiftly today to check an outbreak of bubonic plague at Port Said, ancient city at the Mediterranean end of the Suez canal. Workers began demolishing a section of the city made up of wooden dwellings. Homes for residents there will be built elsewhere of stone. The minister of public health described the situation as well in hand.

THE GAMBLING SITUATION? IT'S JUST A GAMBLE

Sheriff O'Brien Replies to Crime Board Head.

Predicting what will happen to the gambling situation in Cook county appeared to be more than a gamble yesterday.

Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, quoted Monday by Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission, as saying he was too busy collecting taxes to bother about slot machines, accused Cahn of misquoting him. But, he added, collecting taxes does take up most of his time.

List Given to Laird.

The sheriff said he had turned over to Lester Laird, chief of the highway police, a crime commission list of Cook county places where slot machines were supposed to be operating. [Cahn disclosed on Monday that he had given such a list to O'Brien.]

Chief Laird said the resorts named in the Cahn list were "fly-by-night places." Besides, Laird asserted, his police force is not fully staffed to visit every tavern in the 750 square miles of the county outside Chicago.

State's Attorney Courtney contributed to the gambling round table by calling attention to crime commission reports that gambling joints are running without interference in Cicero. Al Capone's old bailiwick. "The new state superintendent of crime prevention, William J. Smith, ought to start his job there," said Courtney.

The prosecutor said also that he wondered why Sam Hare, operator of the old Dells roadhouse on Dempster road in Morton Grove, had been allowed to open a new spot across the street after the prosecutor had closed the roadhouse and asked licensing agencies to refuse Hare a license for anything at all times.

Scene of Factor Kidnaping.

It was from the old Dells roadhouse that John [Jake the Barber] Factor was kidnaped for ransom in 1934 by the Touhy gang, five members of which are now serving sentences of 99 years each in prison. After Courtney closed the place it burned down.

Asked if he plans to take any action concerning the county situation, Courtney said: "I do my duty. I can't be accountable for the failure of others to do theirs. If the state police come in to enforce the laws it will not be due to any dereliction on my part."

Meanwhile T. P. Sullivan, director of the state department of public safety, who two years ago led 100 state policemen in a slot machine cleanup in Cook county, left for Springfield to confer with Gov. Green, who commented last Saturday on the lack of enforcement of anti-gambling laws.

Die in Wisconsin Lake

Three members of a Chicago family were drowned yesterday when their boat upset in a sudden squall in Camp lake, 17 miles west of Kenosha, Wis. The victims were Matthew Ashe, 31 years old, his wife, Bridget, 30, and their son, Matthew Jr., 2. Their home was at 1015 East 52d street. Ashe was employed at the stockyards.

Three other Chicagoans, Mrs. Michael Callahan, 40, and her daughters, Mary Jane, 16, and Marguerite, 9, of 3525 Wrightwood avenue, were occupants of another boat that upset. They were rescued by Miss Rae Boddy, 22, a Salvation Army camp lifeguard, and two campers, Evan Ransdale, 14, and Fred Atkinson, 14.

5 NEW ILLINOIS INFANTILE CASES APPEAR IN WEEK

Five new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in Illinois last week, Roland R. Cross, director of the state health department said yesterday.

Three of the new cases were in western Cook county and one each in McLean and Ogle counties. Fifty-three cases have been reported for the first 29 weeks of this year, Cross said.

A special research project on poliomyelitis [infantile paralysis] is being conducted by the state in coöperation with the Cook county public health unit, Cross said.

HEWITT OFFERS AIRPORT FUND FEE SCHEDULE

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt yesterday asked the city council finance committee to approve an ordinance to provide funds for maintenance and operation of the enlarged Chicago airport, which he called one of the world's finest. The source of this revenue, under the ordinance Hewitt offered, would be the commercial air line operators, the principal users of the field's facilities.

Hewitt's schedule of landing fees would produce $153,000 annually, he said. This, plus approximately $43,000 from hangar rental and concessions, would relieve the city of an annual deficit for the maintenance of the field. Before the field was enlarged the city appropriated $121,000 annually, in addition to revenues from hangars and concessions, for field upkeep. The expansion which was completed about July 4 will increase this cost, Hewitt said in presenting the $153,000 figure.

The fee schedule as set up by his office is comparable to that paid by air lines in New York and other cities, Hewitt told the committee. He asked for $50 a month for every scheduled trip in a plane grossing less than 15,000 pounds' weight; $100 a month for trips in planes of 15,000 to 24,000 pounds, and $200 a month for trips in planes of more than 24,000 pounds' gross weight. The committee referred the proposal to the aviation committee, which will hold public hearings on it soon.

OAK PARK GETS NEW BLUE LAW TO SHUT BAKERY

Robert McMaster, president of the village of Oak Park, yesterday signed several ordinances revised at a council meeting Monday night. They provide that henceforth all baked goods sold in the suburb, whether made there or elsewhere, must be inspected; that no village employés but police and firemen may work Sundays, and that the penalty for business places remaining open Sundays in violation of village law shall carry a minimum fine of $25 instead of $5.

Oak Park is in the middle of a hot fight to prevent the Schlosser chain bakery branch at 1145 Lake street from being open Sundays. If no village health department employés may work Sundays there can be no baked goods inspection, therefore baked goods made late Saturday could not legally be sold on Sunday.

The bakery is carrying on litigation against both Oak Park and state blue laws which forbid Sunday business. John Tyrrell, corporation counsel, said the revised ordinances are intended as a health safeguard and do not apply to the sale of wrapped bread, available in Oak Park delicatessens, which are open Sundays.

Cronin's Novel Kindles Faith in Nobility of Life

"The Keys of the Kingdom," by A. J. Cronin. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published Monday. August choice of the Book of the Month club.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

A. J. Cronin is a fabulously successful novelist, and to be a fabulously successful novelist one must not only write the kind of novels that people want to buy but he must have something of the same instinct for time and opportunity that great historical characters have always had—he must ride the tide of time. A good reader of the spirit of the public is at the same time its chronicler and its prophet. All of which philosophizing is an inevitable result of reading "The Keys of the Kingdom."

"The Keys of the Kingdom" is a long and unwaveringly interesting novel about a simple and good man, a Catholic priest who, his whole long life, never lost his faith in man or his trust in God, who was tried by fate like a modern Job, who was a failure in the eyes of his superiors, but whose footprints in the sands of time, even if evanescent, were too big to be followed by men walking less swiftly and less surely toward heaven.

Such undramatic material — 30 years as a missionary in China, following a not too happy time in Catholic seminary and college, and preceded by a miserable childhood and the suicide of the girl he loved—has been made fascinating by Mr. Cronin because Mr. Cronin has a superb gift for storytelling.

But what is most fascinating about "The Keys of the Kingdom" is not the story but the way it makes one realize that man is today hungry for a belief in just such simple faith in man and simple trust in God as its hero manifests on every page.

This unquestionably will be one of the year's most popular books. Even before publication 250,000 copies were sold, and by the estimate of six readers to every copy sold, 1,500,000 people will immediately read this record of a simple goodness that never asked whether it "paid" or didn't pay.

Have men become so satiated with their fellows who have produced tragic chaos on a rich and lovely world that seems to have crumpled under them like a bridge of matches, that by sheer necessity they are groping back to simple human goodness?

Father Francis, the book's hero, is not powerful. He is not clever. He sometimes even seems stupid. But he is good — thru and thru transparently pure in heart. He will answer an inner necessity of many, probably most, readers.

Another Worthy Hero

"The Sound of Wings," by Arthur Goodrich. [Appleton-Century, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

Maybe we're in the midst of a trend. The hero of "The Sound of Wings" also is a good man, a long-suffering man, an honest man, a kindly man. His spiritual strength does not come from religion, but it is as firm as granite. And in the days between the two wars which the book covers, while all of the hatred and inhumanity of man toward man was germinating, men with spiritual strength, fighting a keen winning battle in business and in life, weren't to be had for a dime a dozen.

Arthur Goodrich, who is best known to most of us as a very successful dramatist ["Capponsacchi," for instance], tells the story of Tom Clary, whose wife selfishly left him to satisfy her ego, who brought up his three young children practically alone, who made a phenomenal success in the then infant airplane manufacturing business, and who never compromised with his simple faith in human kind.

Like "The Keys of the Kingdom," "The Sound of Wings" is not at all sloppily sentimental, and they both record "something which seems rapidly growing extinct," as one man puts it, "namely, character." Perhaps because readers are so fed up on the obvious lack of character in life they are turning eagerly to records of it in books. Anyway, here are two very successful writers who believe so.

Tells Moving Tale

A. J. Cronin, whose touching story, "The Keys of the Kingdom," is reviewed in adjoining column.

True Epic of the Sea

"Two Survived," by Guy Pearce Jones. [Random, $2.] Published last Friday.

Probably the most grueling ordeal in modern records of the horrors of the sea was that suffered by Robert Tapscott and Wilbert Widdicombe, two young Englishmen on the ship Anglo-Saxon, which was torpedoed in midocean by a German raider. Seventy days later they were beached near Nassau, the Bahamas, sole survivors of the seven who escaped from the Anglo-Saxon in a jolly boat. The tale of the savage attack of the raider and of the 10 weeks at sea in an open boat is an epic of courage, endurance, and sheer ghastliness. Hunger and hurricane, thirst and madness stalked their days and nights.

Told by an artist, this tale would have been a classic. Guy Pearce Jones is no artist, and his rehearsal of the saga is not literature. But even his obvious literary heaviness cannot wholly dim the dramatic brilliance of the record. Mr. Jones spends many pages of preliminary dull writing preparing the reader for the real drama, and many readers may never get beyond the first 50 pages. But once the real panorama of the 70 days begins to unfurl, no reader will be able to take his eyes off its gripping scenes or ever afterwards, forget it.

Army Has Its Cultural Side: Book Reading

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

The United States army, 1940-'41 model, is learning how to shoot rifles, fire guns, and drive tanks. But there is also a cultural side to this new army of draftees, National Guardsmen, and regular army soldiers. The army is reading books, many books, a surprisingly wide assortment of books.

In each of the dozen southern army camps visited by this writer on a recent tour the army has established a library. Some of the larger posts have more than one library. All are operating or are about to open, and each, when its shelves are full, will hold more than 5,000 books.

One would expect to find the usual type of escapist books with which a man could relax and forget about drill and dust. And they are there, tiers of adventure stories, wild west yarns, mysteries, and thrillers.

But there also are tier after tier of books which would be a credit to any metropolitan library. This is not so surprising when one considers that this new army is a cross-section of young America, with a high percentage of high school graduates and a large number of college and university graduates.

An army uniform does not change their reading habits. Realizing this, the army permits each librarian to choose whatever books she wants. Many of the first 1,000 books at each camp were selected from an official army list of suggestions, but this list itself contained a wide variety in every field of literature.

After ordering her original list, the librarian, in most cases, based further purchases on the requests of the men. Miss Virginia MacDonald of Atlanta, Ga., librarian for the 32d division [Wisconsin and Michigan] at Camp Livingston, La., reported that many of her clients take books out into the field on maneuvers.

The range of selections is vast. One soldier at Camp Wolters, Tex., comes in regularly to read Emily Post in order to correct his tent mates. Others at Camp Livingston are reading books on the Civil war in order to argue more effectively with some of the southern soldiers in camp there.

There are technical books on aviation, physics, chemistry, mathematics, and mechanics. There are many rows of biography, history, military tactics, military history, politics, and current events.

By far the most popular are books on the present war situation. Winston Churchill's "Blood, Sweat, and Tears" is in great demand, as are Jan Valtin's "Out of the Night" and William Shirer's "Berlin Diary." Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" leads the fiction field.

Short Story Author

Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose short story collection, "Familiar Faces," is reviewed below.

"Familiar Faces," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

Eleven "stories of people you know," as the subtitle says, make up this album of "Familiar Faces." They vary in age, disposition, and attractiveness as would the faces that would greet you if you walked leisurely from number 2 to number 20 of any street in any American town or city.

The first story is about the American spirit, as exemplified by Grandfather Rogers, who visited Washington when he was in his 90s.

There's a pretty funny story of a middle aged author who always got into trouble over pretty girls between books, but whose wife knew how to manage him. There's a grisly tale about a murder which came to light thru "The Dog in the Orchard," and a near murder mystery that turns out to be only a woman mystery.

A middle aged philanderer is dealt with lightly in one tale, and there is irony in the story of a woman who returns to her family after 20 years of living the great romance in Paris.

The best, I think, is "The Empire Builders," the story of a group of prep school boys. It is alive with the same verve that made Mrs. Rinehart's famous "Babs" stories classics of adolescence. F. B.

REPORT HOOKING WALL-EYED PIKE IN GIANT SIZES

Chicago Anglers Find It's a Lucky Season.

BY BOB BECKER.

Judging by reports from Wisconsin and Minnesota, this is a lucky season for Chicagoans who like to angle for big wall-eyed pike. This week's "wall-eye sweepstakes" include fish of this species weighing 11, 9½, and 8¾ pounds, as well as others in the 6 to 8 pound class.

Paul Rusdorf of 1432 East 73d street hooked several nice strings in the lakes of the Superior National forest, north of Ely, Minn., but his pride was an 11 pound wall-eye boated from Alice lake. Most of the Minnesota waters along the Canadian border, from Kabetogama, thru Namakan, Lac La Croix, Basswood, Saganaga, and on to Lake Superior, are good producers of wall-eyes, bass, and northern pike. So it's not surprising that pike in the 11 pound class are taken from those lakes every year.

Report Lots of Excitement.

The waters around Manitowish, Wis., also have been giving the wall-eye fishermen lots of excitement in the last few weeks. Martin Hahm of Milwaukee took a 9½ pound specimen from Manitowish lake, and John F. Beier of Chicago came home with an 8 pound 12 ounce one hooked in Vance lake.

Other entries in the Manitowish waters contest include a 7 pound 14½ ounce fish caught by Walter H. Struve of Chicago; one weighing 7 pounds 10 ounces and boated by W. W. Storius of Racine, Wis., and one weighing 7 pounds 5 ounces and caught by Mrs. J. C. Potucek of Michigan City, Ind.

The area around Eagle River, Wis., produced several thrills last week. Arthur Mueller of 1423 West 81st street caught a 15 pound muskellunge in the Wisconsin river, and Mrs. L. R. Newell of 3240 Lake Shore drive brought home a 14 pound muskie taken in Big St. Germain lake. The best wall-eye hooked by a Chicagoan in the Eagle River district recently was a 7½ pounder landed by Hokan Carlson of 1521 Foster avenue. It was taken from Buckatabon lake.

Howard Preston of Wilmette had all-the fish he could handle the other day when a 6½ pound bass almost pulled him out of the boat. It provided a spectacular battle, since Preston was using only a 4 ounce flyrod for his expedition into Round lake, near Hayward, Wis.

Big Bass in Gages Lake.

G. F. Waldvogel of Cicero proved recently that all the big fish aren't in the far north. He caught a 5½ pound bass in Gages lake, 10 miles west of Waukegan.

A number of sportsmen have been having good luck in the lakes around Park Rapids, Minn. B. L. Woodburn of Lansing, Ill., and W. B. Stone of Peoria caught wall-eyes weighing 6½ and 5¾ pounds, respectively. Christ Iversen of Chicago hooked a 4½ pound bass in Big Mantrap lake, near Park Rapids, and Kenneth Price of Valparaiso, Ind., brought in a 4¼ pound bass from Lower Bottle lake, in the same area.

Lake trout have been hitting the spoons being trolled thru Lake Superior, Lake Michigan, and other big bodies of water. Bill Hansen of Washington Island, at the tip of Wisconsin's Door county peninsula, reports that one party came back with 11 lake trout averaging 16 pounds each. The largest was a 24 pounder.

Paul Movinski of Ecorse, Mich., landed a 30 pound lake trout in the Derby sponsored by the Munising [Mich.] Development club in the waters around that city. Other recent entrants in this novel event included 24 pound fish caught by Dr. J. R. Dunwell of Grand Rapids, Mich., and K. J. Lincoln of Detroit.

STATES SPENDING 6½ MILLIONS TO LURE TOURISTS

New York, July 22 [Special].—A total of $6,516,837 has been appropriated by state legislatures for tourist advertising for the current season. California, with $1,058,847 set aside for the purpose of attracting travelers and vacationists, heads the list. Others with large funds at their disposal include Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and Washington.

TOURISTS FLOCK TO BLACK HILLS; FIND RAIN, COLD

Illinois Contributes to the Record Season.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Custer, S. D., July 19 [By Mail].—"They say there was a colder and wetter summer when I was 7," said a high school girl in riding boots and polo coat as she sold pop and candy at a gas station here.

A drizzle was falling. In The Tribune road car on a wet sightseeing tour in the Black Hills, we had enjoyed occasional use of the automobile heater.

"It's been like this for two or three weeks," the girl continued. "But it's been a good summer for the gasoline business."

It's the biggest season for the travel business in the Black Hills, despite the weather. At resorts in Rapid City, the eastern gateway to the Black Hills area, there were estimates that 1941 tourist business will exceed the best previous year, 1940, by 20 or 30 per cent.

Illinois Big Contributor.

Illinois is the big contributor to this increase. The yellow and black license plates are so numerous that you would think you were in the Wisconsin woods or in western Michigan on a summer week-end, instead of 1,500 miles from Chicago.

There is no longer a barrier of dirt roads in South Dakota. Our only taste of dust was on a side trip thru the Bad Lands National monument. The dust bowl in the semiarid hills west of the Missouri river was green and harvest yellow, thanks to the wet early summer. But the weather, even at its best, isn't entirely kindly to those who till where grazing thrived a quarter of a century ago. A path 30 miles wide was hit by a hail storm 24 hours before our crossing, stripping the leaves from waist high corn and flattening wheat, both the cut and the uncut.

Must Have Hail Insurance.

"Most of us have hail insurance," said a farmer, "and the big tourist season is going to help this part of the country a lot this year."

Vacationists fill the cabin camps, hotels, and dude ranches of these timbered mountains. But a large portion of the 1941 additions to the travel volume are transients.

These ever-on-the-go vacationists drive thru tall woods and wind high for a perspective of the heroic faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Roosevelt [Theodore], cut into the granite side of Mount Rushmore. They see the Needles, stop for a soft drink in Deadwood and other haunts of Calamity Jane, Wild Bill Hickok, and Deadwood Dick, and then they are off. That's a current vacation vogue.

FIESTA TIME IS TO START SOON IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22 [Special].—August is fiesta time in southern California.

Community celebrations this year will take forms as diversified as Laguna's Festival of Arts, Santa Barbara's Old Spanish Days, and Newport Harbor's Tournament of Lights.

Also on the program for August are Inglewood's Centinela Days, reminiscent of California's Indian past; Costa Mesa's Scarecrow carnival, Huntington Beach's Black Gold Days, and Hynes' Hay and Dairy festival.

The Pasadena Drama festival, opening tomorrow, will continue until Aug. 16, and the "Symphonies Under the Stars" will be given in Hollywood bowl on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday nights until Aug. 30.

All Expense Tours Lead to Ozarks of Missouri

A series of all-expense vacation tours from Chicago to the "Shepherd of the Hills" country in the Missouri Ozarks was announced yesterday by P. W. Wilson, district passenger agent of the Frisco Lines. Each trip will last a week. The tourists will leave this city over either the Illinois Central, Alton, or Wabash Lines, and will be picked up by the Frisco at St. Louis.

We have been having a friendly argument as to how long it would take to fish all of the lakes in the Minnesota Arrowhead country, devoting one day to each lake. What would you say? —D. M.

If you fished six months of each year, it would take you about 28 years, inasmuch as there are approximately 5,000 lakes in that area.

Please give me the dates of this year's Days of '76 celebration in Deadwood, S. D. —R. L. A.

When do the new streamliners, City of San Francisco and City of Los Angeles, start running? —W. J. C.

The City of San Francisco will begin its first trip next Saturday; the City of Los Angeles will go into operation Sunday, Aug. 3. Both will head westward from Chicago. In each case the first eastbound trip will begin three days later.

I frequently see and hear Rocky Mountain National park referred to as Estes park, and vice versa. What is the distinction? How did Estes park get its name? How did Long's peak? —E. S. G.

Rocky Mountain National park, embracing 405 square miles of Colorado scenery, was created by act of congress in 1915. Prior to that time the eastern part of the area was known as Estes park. This name now applies only to the village situated at the eastern entrance to the playground. The first white settler in the region was Joel Estes, who went there in 1859 and built a cabin there the following year. Long's peak, highest in Rocky Mountain park, was named in honor of Maj. Stephen H. Long. As commanding officer of an exploring party sent out from Washington, D. C., in 1820, he was the first to sight the mountain.

Three of us wish to attend this year's Mesquake Indian powwow. We are told it is held annually somewhere in Iowa. Please tell us when and where. —P. T.

Aug. 14, 15, 16, and 17, on the reservation three miles west of Tama.

Where are the Carlsbad caverns and Grand Coulee dam? —F. W.

ASHEVILLE PREPARES FOR ITS 14TH ANNUAL HILL MUSIC FESTIVAL

Asheville, N. C., July 22 [Special].—Yodeling, clog dancing, and the age-old tunes of the hill country will be on tap here July 24, 25, and 26. The occasion is the 14th annual Mountain Dance and Music festival.

The celebration has grown from a one-night event in 1928 to a three-day musical convention which attracts large crowds, including many students of folklore. It is credited with making progress in the movement to preserve the mountain customs that have been disappearing elsewhere in America. It is held outdoors at McCormick field.

In the square dancing events, teams of eight couples each assemble from the highlands. They bring their own string bands, and they hail from communities with such unusual names as Soco Gap, Thickety, Cashiers Valley, and Spooks Branch. Whole families sometimes compete in the string band competition.

These events get a big hand from the audience. But the most applause greets the contestants for the individual fiddlin' championship.

Florida Tarpon Get Bigger as Contest Nears Its End

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 22 [Special].—Tarpon, swimming in great schools in the Gulf of Mexico, are getting bigger and tougher as St. Petersburg's $3,000 fishing tourney enters its final stage. So far the 160 pound silver king landed by Robert Lassing of Burlington, Ky., is the largest caught.

GLADIOLUS TIME IN MOMENCE—IT'S EARLY IN AUGUST

Momence, Ill., July 22 [Special].—On Aug. 7, 8, and 9, Momence, on the Kankakee river, will be the scene of another pageant of beauty. The occasion is to be the fourth annual Gladiolus festival.

What are said to be the world's largest gladioli gardens are situated nearby. They comprise 600 acres and have 260 varieties of the flowers.

More than 50 million flowers will be in bloom. Their colorings will include yellows, pinks, reds, purples, orchids, blues, and white.

Nowadays no such celebration is complete without a queen, and Momence will have one. The Gladiolus queen will be crowned at the opening of the fête, and on the same day there will be a three mile parade of floats, with as many as 30,000 blossoms used on a single float. Similar parades are scheduled for the other two days. On Saturday evening, Aug. 9, gayly decorated boats will cruise down the river.

A flower show is to be held in the high school gymnasium thruout the festival.

WORD TO WISE: TAKE THAT TRIP WHILE YOU CAN

Car and Train Travel May Be Curtailed Later.

New York, July 22 (AP).—Enjoy your vacation trip this year. Gas up the buggy. Pile in the wife and both the kids. Or hop the excursion train and go up to the big town for a week. Have fun. It's a fast moving world. Roll while the rolling's good.

That's the boiled down, private advice of some smart men in business, government, industry, finance.

This may be the last summer for some time when you can do exactly what you please with your time off, and, if you're like most Americans, time off from the job means going places. Places may not be so easy to go to soon. Maybe sooner than you think.

Why? Well, especially if you live east of the Mississippi and north of the southernmost tier of states, by next summer, maybe sooner, you may not get gasoline for fun purposes.

50 Tankers Already Taken.

The government already has taken from the oil companies 50 tankers which formerly brought crude petroleum from the fields around the Gulf coast to the big refineries of the east coast, where it was turned into gasoline.

Last week reliable sources in the oil trade heard that the government needed 14 more of the tank boats in the next 30 days, and a total of 50 before the year is out.

That would leave the oil carrying routes from the gulf to the seaboard with about 65 per cent of normal carrying space.

When the first 50 boats went to the United States navy and Britain, oil men carried on somehow. Old pipe lines were used, in some cases their direction of flow reversed. Tankers were loaded below their Plimsoll lines. More tank cars were rushed into use. New pipe lines were planned—they'll take a year or more. Ships were made to run faster, turn around more quickly, make more trips a month.

Oil men were agreed the eastern seaboard could get along without any official action to cut your gas consumption, tho the government still was not sure.

Situation May Change.

If more tankers go and new ones the oil companies are building are taken over as fast as completed for the navy the situation may be different.

Oil and Gas Journal, a trade authority, says that, while it has been believed that emergency measures have offset the requisitioning of the first 50 tankers, "it is agreed the industry cannot balance its present supply and demand if another 50 tankers are removed from coastwise service over the next few months."

If you live west of the Mississippi river, you probably won't have this problem yet. But, it is pointed out, more tank cars needed in the east may mean fewer in the west.

Wherever you live, a cheap excursion on the train may not come your way so easily. Maybe not at all, later.

Tip-off came last week when the Association of American Railroads asked the roads of the southeast to cut out all excursions to facilitate troop movements. No time limit was set on the request.

Heavier Troop Movements.

This may be significant. Railroads moved 1,452,303 members of the armed forces in the first half of this year. Transportation men say they are informed troop movements for the balance of the year will be notably heavier. It may also prove important later, rail operating officials say, that, while priorities on materials have been granted them to build more freight cars, additional passenger coaches rank merely with other civilian needs for such necessities as steel, skilled labor, electrical equipment, air brakes, and the like.

Farther north along the eastern seaboard, from Washington to the border, the principal passenger carriers report they have received no requests to curtail vacation and excursion services, tho they already have had to do so of their own accord at times when troops were moving in volume, especially when furloughs were given for holidays.

An official of one railroad said: "We are planning special trips only from week to week, instead of for the whole vacation period. Anything can happen."

Another said: "Who can see more than a few weeks ahead at a time like this?"

Tricks of the Trade.

Railroad men have tricks by which they can stretch passenger carrying ability, and most of these tricks are apt to be used before the emergency is over. The Interstate commerce commission, railroad men hear, is about to urge them to eliminate duplicating facilities—two trips on parallel roads to the same place about the same time is an instance.

But, they add, the additional space may well be used for more important things than cheap vacation travel.

The Automobile Manufacturers' association, working with seven state highway departments, has estimated that more than 50 per cent of your gasoline is burned in "necessitous driving"—to get you to and from the job, to make your rounds as a salesman, to take the kids to school, or to bring supplies home to the farm.

These are the things the government must go out of its way to protect, men who have studied the problem say.

Yucca Time

Like most of the other desert plants, the yucca is blooming in unusual profusion in the country around Phoenix, Ariz., this summer. Last winter's heavy rains were responsible.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR ILLINOIS AND CHICAGO

Save Our Republic

WHAT IMMINENT PERIL?

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, told the reporters that the government has information regarding the aggressions planned by Germany after it has subdued Russia. Mr. Welles would not say where the Nazis were going next, but he wanted it understood, apparently, that the attack would carry a grave threat to the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his message to congress, said "I do believe—I know" that the country is in infinitely graver danger than it has been before. Why can't the country be told what its great peril is? Some of the alarmists intimate that when Hitler has destroyed bolshevism and carved up Russia he will jump Spain and Portugal, grab the Portuguese islands, hop to Dakar and from there to Natal in Brazil, and then soon will be pounding at our shores.

Mr. Churchill, in the speech accepting soviet Russia as the new ally, suggested that if the Nazis panzered their way thru Russia they might soon be carrying their atrocious slavery to India. Apparently the inexhaustible Fuehrer can send one end of the pincer deep into Asia and the other into South America and before Leon Henderson can get a fair start on his price ceilings have our country in his grip. We don't believe it.

The Germans say everything is going by timetable in Russia and that the advance is according to calculation. That may be so. Russia is a large place and has a large army. It may be taking a beating but it is taking it and not lying down. The Nazis may clean up according to their schedule and again they may not. Their successes may not clear them of their enemy and they may have their hands full for a very long time. It isn't yet determined that this will not be an exhausting war. It isn't yet determined that the German war machine will not take enough punishment to cause even it to need a long period of recuperation and reorganization.

Any one would be inclined to think that when a country has plunged into such an adventure as an invasion of Russia it has decreased the danger to other lands rather than increased them, particularly if another land is as far away from the direction now taken by the aggressor as is the United States. Certainly Washington is not in greater peril because Hitler is headed for Moscow and probably for points far beyond. A danger to the Urals, the Volga, and the Sea of Azov does not promise an immediate disaster to the Great Smokies, the Mississippi, and Lake Minnetonka. If it does, there would seem to be no military reason for not telling the American people just how it is to come about.

If this country were preparing a descent upon Africa, Asia or Europe, if the troops were at their points of departure, if the transports were all ready and the fleet were prepared for the convoy, secrecy would be the order of the day. But if these conditions are reversed and the forces are preparing for an invasion of this country, this continent, or this hemisphere, it is hard to see a reason for protecting the enemy's secret.

Possibly it is the American plan of campaign to seem to be caught napping, unaware of where the blow will fall, and then make the invader pay for his silly conception of our unawareness. We doubt that any competent military authority hopes to lure an unsuspecting aggressor into a trap which appears to be merely a bit of peaceable American countryside unknowing of the fate intended for it but in reality bristling with arms.

The case of secrecy in this imminent peril which has suddenly endangered the security of the United States is not proved. The British don't feel that they're in more imminent danger of invasion with the Nazis busy in Russia. They think their condition is very much improved and that if Hitler turns from east to west he will find the island a much tougher military problem than it was before he decided to polish off his onetime comrade in arms, Joe Stalin. If the alarmists can give any form of substance to the fears they endeavor to increase and magnify in the minds of the people, they should do so. If they don't, it must be assumed that they can't. It is to be assumed they are trying to stampede congress with bogey stories.

THE LONGEST WAY 'ROUND.

Representatives of the prairie provinces of Canada want the proposed Alaska defense highway to run across the plains region of Canada and the United States. If it is to be most useful for defense, they argue, it must tap Chicago and the great manufacturing pool of the middle west, from which weapons would flow to strengthen Alaska against attack.

An international commission has fixed the route from Prince George, British Columbia, to Dawson, capital of the Yukon territory, as the one on which construction would be most feasible. The prairie route would join that laid out by the commission at Prince George, east of most of the mountains that make road construction on the Pacific coast expensive.

The international commission proposed two alternative routes from Prince George southward, both thru British Columbia and the state of Washington. The prairie representatives have won support from Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who recently suggested their route as a third alternative.

The prairie route would be an illustration of the longest way 'round being the shortest way to the objective. Purely from the standpoint of mileage, the routes thru British Columbia and Washington would provide a more direct connection between the United States and Alaska. But from a military standpoint the prairie route, tapping the principal munitions sources of the United States, would actually be the shorter, since most of the arms needed in Alaska would be produced in Chicago or to the eastward, not on the Pacific coast.

NEGRO SUPPORT FOR AMERICA FIRST.

A colored people's division of the America First organization is being formed under the leadership of J. Finley Wilson. The movement ought to have a pronounced success. There is no divided national loyalty among the Negroes of this country. They are Americans from 'way back, with no ties which bind them to one or another of the European belligerents. If any group in this country can view our international relations with an eye solely to the welfare of our country it should be the Negroes. With the fewest exceptions their ancestors have been in this country for 150 years or more.

In a letter addressed to prominent colored people in various parts of the country Mr. Wilson has called attention to the peril which war presents to all the minority groups in America. The warning is a timely one. It is no accident that the Ku Klux arose after the last war. The klan was born of the disillusionment, the economic distress, and the social unrest which were the direct consequences of the war. The race riots at about the same time in Chicago and other cities had much the same origin. If our country gets into the present war the same sort of consequences are to be expected, but the scale of intolerance may be expected to rise far higher.

We started the last war with a negligible national debt. Today the debt approximates 50 billion dollars. In the last war the government spent something like 40 billion dollars. Congress has already appropriated more than that amount for armament and that is only the beginning. If we get into this war we can hardly expect to emerge with a debt of less than 200 billion dollars. Inflation or repudiation or both would follow. Hitler and his movement of intolerance followed inflation in Germany because the middle classes which might have checked his rise had been wiped out and were without hope.

Great wars lead to great depressions. If we get into this war it will be the greatest of all wars and may well be followed by the deepest of all depressions. In such circumstances the minority groups always suffer the greatest hardships. Their people are the first to be fired and the last to be hired.

The Negroes of this country have no connection with Europe and can look at our problem with clear eyes. The Negroes, like all of us, have an immense stake in the preservation of peace. As Mr. Wilson well said, war will imperil the position of all minority groups and set the country back 50 years. He has reason and experience on his side.

LINDBERGH SCORES AGAIN ON ROOSEVELT.

Nothing in the public events of the last two years has been more surprising than the fact that Col. Lindbergh, a superb aviator, should also turn out to be a far greater public speaker than Mr. Roosevelt, who has done little else all his life.

Col. Lindbergh's cause has been so good and his logic so sound that the New Dealers have not dared reply to his arguments. Instead, they have undertaken to blackguard him. In that incident Col. Lindbergh has again scored on Mr. Roosevelt.

Lindbergh's courteously worded request that Mr. Roosevelt require his Thersites to apologize for his false and misleading attack puts the President on the horns of a dilemma. Either he must disavow his lieutenant, admitting the truth—that Col. Lindbergh received his German decoration in the American embassy at Berlin, where he was present at the request of Mr. Roosevelt's ambassador to assist in creating the better relations between the embassy and the German government which the ambassador desired—or he must indorse Secretary Ickes' falsehood and thereby lower himself all the way to Ickes' standing.

AUSTRALIA DEBATES CONSCRIPTION.

Reports from Australia say that the opposition to conscription for overseas service is very strong and is led by politically powerful labor members of parliament. A dispatch to THE TRIBUNE said that the debate, precipitated by the suggestion that conscription was the democratic way of providing the necessary men, was so heated the government prohibited the publication of the discussion.

One reason for the opposition might be read with interest here. Labor members said that Australia was in grave danger and its men should be kept home to defend it from an impending attack. America is told that it is in some great peril. The alarmists don't say what it is, where it arises, or where it will hit, but they say we should keep our conscripts indefinitely and that to defend America we should send these soldiers to some other part of the world—wherever Mr. Roosevelt thinks he can get a foothold.

Australia is in the war and we're supposed not to be, but Australia apparently believes that the defense of its territory requires an army reserved for that territory.

Editorial of the Day

"LENDING" THE FRANK.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

One Henry Hoke, publisher of the Reporter of Direct Mail Advertising, is disturbed because, he says, congressmen have lent the use of their franks to subversive groups. Tons of postage free matter, he declares, have gone thru our mails in the interests of Nazi, Fascist, and communist propaganda organizations. He demands that this abuse of the frank be stopped.

Mr. Hoke's charges should be investigated. We do not want foreign propaganda flooding our mails, under frank or otherwise, and we do not want the franking privilege abused by congressmen, even for worthy causes.

It is time for congress, which is not too busy these days despite the present crisis, to do something constructive about the frank. The present law governing it is subject to various interpretations and there is no penalty for violation. The law should be changed so that the use of the frank is confined to personal correspondence and to documents to a member's own constituents, prepared for mailing in the member's own offices. Even that would be a minimum change. A better solution of the problem would be to abolish the frank entirely and substitute for it a postage allowance.

The idea that quantities of franked matter should be delivered in New York under frank of a member from Montana is absurd. The idea that a member should furnish envelopes to an organization for the dissemination of that organization's views is contrary to the spirit if not to the letter of the law.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

FOREFATHERS OF THE HAMLET.

Discovered: A photograph of Col. Edward E. Knox, who raised the money that built the First Regiment armory and died in 1890. Printed matter on its back states that it was taken for Mosher's historical albums of prominent Chicagoans, which were to be preserved in the courthouse, opened with "appropriate and imposing ceremonies" every 25 years from July 4, 1876, and placed on exhibition at the second and third centennials of the republic—1976 and 2076.

Reaction: Never heard of such ceremonies, or of these pictures. Where are they now?

Report of investigation: Charles D. Mosher [died 1897] made about 7,000 photographs of eminent citizens of Chicago and Illinois, including Lincoln and his contemporaries. His collection was accepted by the city council in 1876 and stored in a vault in the office of the commissioner of public works [temporary city hall].

This trunk was moved into the new city hall, completed in 1885; moved again to temporary quarters about 1908; moved to the present city hall [room 406] in 1911.

In 1915 the trunk, which had become a mystery, was opened by a curious clerk, who reported the discovery of thousands of possibly valuable pictures. It was then sent to the Municipal Reference library. On Nov. 15, 1915, the council passed an order authorizing the librarian to lend the photographs to the Chicago Historical society.

The Mosher collection, carefully arranged and indexed, accessible to any researcher, may now be found in the Historical society's museum. It has been augmented by two similar collections, gifts of the Calumet club and J. M. Johnson, and now runs to over 8,000 items.

(Frederick Rex, Municipal Reference librarian, did the research on this assignment. He says: "We could not find anything about appropriate and imposing ceremonies every 25 years.")

THE STRAUSS CHIMES.

The bells ring in another morn;
The maddening tempo of this life
Is theirs to keep . . . and theirs to warn:
"Time moves upon a fleeter wing
Than any harbinger of spring."

On city streets the great tones fall,
Bright bubbles from the hand of fate,
To echo down the canyon wall:
"O, hurry, lest you be too late,
Lest vespers hail the setting sun
And find you with your work undone!"

The Duke Risks a Haircut.

Hon. Linemaster: So she tells me that if I dont get my hair cut and one of tha kids should happen to trip over it, she's gonna sue tha barbers' union fer not picking me up. Course I aint sure that we aint gonna still have some snow, an I tole her if I ketch my death of cold she cood be tried fer manslaughter and she says she cood beat tha rap cause my lawyer wood hafta first prove that I was a man.

Ennyway here I am again at Wally's Barberschool an they sure was surprised. They said they didn' expect me until Labor day. You shood see tha new improvements what they got. Wallie must of won a 2 bit show bet. Tha linoleum is all fixed up an it looks like new. Tha old barber chairs is covered with bright red leather—seems they picked this color as its such a soothing cool shade on a real hot day. If ya ask me, Wally picked the color fer economick reasons; he figgers that every time one of his pupils cuts a guy tha blood woodn show.

Two of his pupils, Chester an Amos, had a grent streak of luck. Tha day after they graduated and got their diplomas a certain uncle offered them a one year contract which absolutely guarantees them 21 bucks a month plus khaki an grubke. Kenny, who is taking a course in advanced shoe shining, is also invited to Delano's party an has asked Wally for some old razors, claiming past experience wood enable him to do better work as against using them heavy shootin ryefuls. He also insists that his colored regiment ought to get more pay cause tha government woodn hafta spend dough buying black-outs.

The newest stunt Wally got stung on is a 40 buck sun-lamp. He's got a sign what says, "Why go to Florida—get sun-tanned here." Well, he charges 35c fer 3 minutes which if ya figure that's $7 an hour, 10 hrs. is 70 bucks and a week wood hit near 400 smackers—which wood figure twice as much as 2 months right down in Miami.

"Do you want bay-rum, Duke?" "No!" "Which-Hazel?" "No!" "Tonic?" "No!" "Massage?" "No!" "Wood you like a cigarette?" "Yes."

Duke Bakrak.

THE TOPSY-TURVY SLOTH.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

The two-toed sloth is seldom found
Perambulating on the ground;
His feet and claws are made like hooks,
And all the pictures in the books
Depict him dangling with his toes
Much higher than his tail and nose.
But, ere you laugh, please meditate
Upon humanity's sad state
And wonder if it's us or him
That's upside down, out on a limb.

Quizzicuss.

"A Good Song Ringing Clear."

Sir: If you'll excuse my lapse from modesty, I would like to tell you an incident or two of my early life. In my younger days I was considered quite a singer. They tell me my voice was so strong and resonant that I could rattle the bottles on the bar shelf. If the bottles contained just the right amount of liquor, it was even possible to play a tune on them. Of course, it was necessary to drink a little out of some of them to give them the right pitch, but that was no hardship to me. Once they were in proper pitch I could play a tune as sweet as any marimba player.

THE VENOMOUS BITE OF THE BLACK WIDOW.

KIPLING'S famous statement, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male," is all too true. Adams the world over are perfectly willing to agree that Eve is to blame. This characteristic is observed also among insects and we think particularly of the Anopheles mosquito, which transmits malaria, and the black widow, which carries such a noxious venom.

Mrs. Black Widow, also known as the "hourglass" or "shoe-button" spider, because of her shape and markings, is found in all parts of the United States. Her web is coarse, stringy, and not at all attractive in design. She depends upon vibrations of the strands to inform her that food has been caught.

The specimens mature in about four months, after the eggs are hatched. It is when the young have developed sufficiently to forage for their own meals that they become dangerous—altho, at all times, the female will guard her eggs and strike when disturbed. Favorite habitations are dimly lighted corners of vacant buildings, outdoor privies, hollow stumps, brush piles, or abandoned rodent burrows.

The immediate effect of the poison is an intense stinging pain. Later—perhaps only a few minutes—distress is experienced in the abdomen. Because of the spasm of the muscles in this area, unless a careful investigation is made, the victim may be rushed to the hospital with a diagnosis of a ruptured stomach ulcer or a gangrenous appendix. Unfortunately, the white blood cells are increased in number, just as they are in appendicitis. Perspiration is profuse and nausea may be pronounced. In addition, chills and retention of urine may complicate the picture.

As a rule, however, the stabbing sensation at the site of the wound will point to the source of the trouble. A laboratory worker, who permitted himself to be infected in a finger, described the agony, which began in the extremity and spread rapidly to the muscles of the back. His shoulders, chest, legs, and abdomen were involved likewise and these structures became almost boardlike.

Treatment included periods of intense sweating, aided by hot water bottles and plenty of blankets. Generous quantities of fluid were administered, and sedatives were employed to control the agony. Strong laxatives were required to combat constipation. The sense of tightness in the abdomen and back was most annoying. Because of the specific influence of the toxin upon nerve tissue, the injection of calcium gluconate directly into a vein proved helpful.

During the season when these bugs are abroad in the land and likely to launch an attack, we should caution our children not to play about unused rubbish-filled garages, basements, or near old woodpiles. The egg sacs can be burned when discovered, as ordinary vermin chemicals will neither kill the black widow nor destroy her eggs. Kerosene, however, is fatal—but it is not safe to use because of the fire hazard. Good brooms, vigorously wielded, are of more value than disinfectants.

The good old summertime is a grand and glorious season—for insects as well as humans. We must pit our intelligence against the instincts of these pests, in order to make the most of our vacations. Screens, swatters, and sprays are part of the campaign against flies, mosquitoes, and other invaders.

SKIN TUBERCULOSIS.

Mrs. T. K. writes: I have been told that a small round irritation in the center of my chest is tuberculosis. Is this possible?

REPLY.

Skin tuberculosis is usually confined to the face but it may appear on other parts of the epidermis. A careful diagnosis is suggested as the lesion may arise from some other cause. However, wartlike growths are occasionally the result of tuberculosis.

SUNBURN.

M. C. writes: What can be done for sunburn?

REPLY.

Prevention is simpler than cure. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on the subject. In the meantime, stay out of the sun and apply soothing lotions or creams.

WORK OF THE TEACHER.

Chicago, July 21.—Why didn't Conrad Bringmann, who bears such resentment against the teaching profession, become a teacher if he considers the position such a sinecure? The opportunity for the necessary years of preparation leading to a Chicago teaching certificate is available to all men and women who can pass an entrance examination to the Chicago Normal college.

Contrary to Mr. Bringmann's complaint, Chicago teachers are not paid for spring vacation, summer vacation, Christmas day, New Year's day, et cetera. They are paid only for their 40 weeks of work. This salary does not compare favorably with salaries paid to those in other professions requiring a like amount of preparation.

I have worked in a downtown office for an eight hour day, and I have never been so fatigued as I have been following a day in the classroom.

I should like some of our critics, who become so weary when they supervise one child for a day, to teach reading, arithmetic, grammar, spelling, history, geography, music, art, and science to 45 children for one week. Then their opinions might have some value. M. S. R.

Chicago, July 20.—Regarding the letter of Conrad Bringmann on the work of the teachers: Any high school student should realize that a teacher spends considerably more than seven hours a day doing schoolwork. My mother was principal of a suburban elementary school so I can speak with some knowledge.

If there is a schoolteacher in the city who can truthfully say that he or she spends only 35 hours each week on schoolwork, and is doing an acceptable job of it, the board of education is overlooking a veritable genius!

A TEACHER'S SON.

THE BRITISH OPPORTUNITY.

Chicago, July 20.—The diversion of 75 per cent of Hitler's effective land and air forces for the fighting on the Russian front gives the British an opportunity to deal the Nazis a smashing blow in the west. The British now have, according to authentic reports, a clear superiority in men and planes over Hitler's army stationed on the western front.

But will they avail themselves of this opportunity to help their new found allies, the Russians, by attacking the Nazis on the western front and thereby relieving the Russians of some pressure. The answer is probably no.

Too bad that the efforts of the British to involve America in a shooting war have not progressed to schedule so that while the Russians are doing the fighting for the British on the eastern front the Americans if they could become involved now would be doing the fighting for the British on the western front and any other front Churchill deems necessary.

TOUCHING ON RACE TRACKS.

Chicago, July 20.—The decent element will applaud Gov. Green's veto of the bookie licensing bill and the reasons he gives for doing so.

But what of the race tracks? Are they not condemned by the same arguments? If city governments can be criticized for permitting gambling are not state officials at fault for allowing Arlington to accept bets which on a big day approach a million dollars?

Is betting at the track less demoralizing than in a book? Is a race track any less a gambling joint than a place in a Chicago alley? S. E. H.

TO A GIRL OPTIMIST.

Chicago, July 19.—To Twyla: You certainly handed it to me but I can take it on the chin. Your day was certainly wonderful.

You probably have heard the old gag, "What is the difference between a pessimist and an optimist?" The optimist sees the doughnut, while the pessimist sees the hole. And so there are reasons for everything, and with youth, a job, and evidently, good looks, there was reason for your exuberance and truly my wish for you is that you always can sing the song: "Happy Days Are Here Again!" MABEL B.

TOUGH ON THE TAXPAYERS.

Chicago, July 18.—Postoffice employés are seeking a wage increase. This is a continuous performance with them. They are already on record as seeking a 35 hour week. Less work and more pay!

I don't blame them, but I feel sorry for the taxpayer if they get away with it.

Seven to $9 a day for an average clerk. Forty hour week. Pay for holidays, but no work. Pay during vacation. Pay during sickness. Extra pay for night work. Easy work. Whoopee! FAIRPLAY.

TORY ANCESTRY.

Chicago, July 19.—People are saying that the Roosevelts were disloyal in the Revolutionary war. Is that so? J. G. D.

[James Roosevelt (born 1760) was in New York City during its occupation by the British and there took the oath of allegiance to King George III. After the revolution he was (still in New York) pardoned by the American government. He was Franklin D. Roosevelt's great-grandfather.]

WHY NOT STOP AT PEACE?

Chicago, July 15.—In 1915 the following lines were printed in the Melbourne Age:

War begets poverty:
Poverty peace.
Peace begets plenty,
Then riches increase.
Riches bring pride,
And pride is war's ground.
War begets poverty—
So goes the round.

I thank THE TRIBUNE for all the good peace work it has done, also for the poli on war. DELTA M. MILLER.

WHERE IS DEMOCRACY?

Chicago, July 17.—After reading your editorial on "Georgia in Chains," I was much puzzled at the Georgian, Armand May's article in Voice of People saying: "You [THE TRIBUNE] are hurting the cause of democracy." How funny? F. M.

THERE'S "GOERTH" STREET.

Waukegan, Ill., July 18.—I for one am not in favor of naming any street Paderewski because not more than two in ten pronounce the name correctly. Some people would get a pain in the neck when the conductor on a street car would call "Padderoosky"! A. E. G.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

PARENT'S SUPPORT.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the law require a married daughter to help in the support of her mother? Can the law compel a son-in-law to help in the support of his mother-in-law? S. T.

Sections 1 and 2 of chapter 107 of the Illinois revised statutes provide that poor parents who are unable to earn a livelihood in consequence of bodily infirmity or other unavoidable cause shall be supported by the following relatives in the order named, if of sufficient ability: 1. Children: 2. Parents: 3. Brothers and sisters: 4. Grandchildren: 5. Grandparents. Married women are not required to contribute unless they have separate property. Application should be made to the Bureau of Public Welfare in the County building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INTERLOCUTORY DECREE.

Chicago, July 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can you give me the meaning of the word "interlocutory" when used in divorce cases? Is it a divorce or separate maintenance? Can one marry after one year? J. V.

In California and certain other states the routine procedure is to enter first a so-called interlocutory decree which does not become final until a year later. This more effectively prevents the parties from contracting a marriage during the interval than does a mere prohibition of the marriage. Illinois has no provision for such interlocutory decrees. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MEXICAN DIVORCES.

Chicago, July 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can an American citizen who resides in the United States obtain a divorce in Mexico?

2. Is such a divorce recognized as legal in both Illinois and California? T. E.

1. Practically all such divorces are invalid.
2. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 24.

1. In which one of the following is the word "strike" not used? Bowling Fishing Basketball Baseball.
2. A member of the lowest class at West Point would be called a Tenderfoot Cub Plebe Rookie.
3. The number of days required for hen eggs to hatch is 11 15 21 35.
4. The usual cash discount for payment in 10 days is 1% 2% 3% 5%.
5. The berry with a hollow center after it has been picked, is the Strawberry Gooseberry Raspberry Blackberry.
6. The use of animals in developing vaccines and testing the potency of important drugs saves many lives each year. You deserve one point for each correct matching of these creatures with their outstanding medical uses.

[a] Guinea pig	[v] Source of anti-tetanus vaccine which prevents lockjaw.
[b] Horse	[w] Injected with suspected sputum as a delicate test for tuberculosis.
[c] Cow	[x] Used to standardize the strength of insulin.
[d] Mouse	[y] Used with references to vaccines for poliomyelitis, or "infantile paralysis."
[e] Monkey	[z] Source of vaccine which prevents smallpox.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

Stanley Keith, Mrs. Kersey C. Reed to Wed

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE most exciting luncheon—and dinner table—conversation in Lake Forest these days concerns the approaching marriage of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed and Stanley Keith. The village is a-buzz over the wedding, which is scheduled to take place in the next couple of weeks, according to their friends. However, the prospective bride and bridegroom, each of whom has grown children and young grandchildren, are being as quiet as possible about their plans.

Mrs. Reed, daughter of Mrs. John G. Shedd and the late Mr. Shedd, early Chicago merchant, is particularly active on the board of the St. Luke's hospital and in the management of its annual fashion show. She has one daughter, Mrs. John P. Bent, the former Mary Reed, and one son, John Shedd Reed. Mr. Keith, a widower, has two daughters, Mrs. Robert F. Macdonald and Mrs. Sewall Gardner. Mrs. Reed and Mr. Keith each has a Lake Forest home. Mr. Keith will close his home and he and his bride will reside in the latter's house in North Lakewood, one of the show places of the north shore.

English Garden Keynote of Lake Geneva Flower Show.

The women who run the Lake Geneva Flower show never are at a loss for something attractive and different to use as a theme. This summer the keynote is to be an old-fashioned English dipping well in an old fashioned English garden.

However, while the main hall in Horticultural hall will look like a bit of old English, the grassy patio will be all-American in decoration. The committees are busy now with plans for decorations for the three day event, Aug. 8, 9, and 10. Capitalizing on the Inland Lake Yachting association regatta to be held the following week at Lake Geneva, the tea tables in the patio will go nautical with tiny yachts as centerpieces and more yachts adorning the table linen and the costumes a group of pretty young girls will be wearing to serve tea.

Mrs. Robert Tarrant is general chairman of the show with Mrs. William F. Petersen and Mrs. E. Perry Ellwood as co-chairmen. Mrs. William O. Hunt heads the committee on table arrangements; Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley and Mrs. Hans H. Reese will have the vegetable displays and Mrs. John E. Warner and Mrs. William C. Grunow will preside over the dairy section.

Three Generations of Lake Families to Assist in Show.

The coming show will find three generations of lake families active, for Mrs. Ellwood and her grandson, Peter Ellwood, will be helping Mrs. I. Leonard Ellwood with the cake booth. Mrs. Madlener Sr. will assist Mrs. Madlener Jr. and Nancy and Skipper Madlener with the accessories. Mrs. Albert W. Harris, Mrs. Norman Harris, and Josephine Harris make another family trio. Mrs. William H. Emery and Mrs. S. Austin Pope are co-chairmen of flower arrangements.

A number of women who have been associated for many years in the show have been assisting with invitations and will be serving as hostesses. Among them are Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, Mrs. Albert Harris, Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt, Mrs. William M. Spencer, Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. C. Grommes Rehm, and Mrs. Earle J. Zimmerman.

Women who have gardens never tire of hearing about other gardens, it seems, so a large turnout of members of the Lake Geneva Garden club is expected today at the Lake Geneva Country club for an illustrated lecture by Mrs. Ella Hoyt Flanders. Mrs. Flanders, a well known landscape architect of New York, recently inherited a charming old house at Oconomowoc, Wis., where she is spending the summer. Mrs. William H. Emery and Mrs. Everett N. McDonnell will be hostess at the meeting.

Arden Shore Is Holding Annual Picnic at Camp Today

Today the annual picnic for board and committee members and other friends of Arden Shore, will be held at the camp on the lake, just north of Lake Bluff. The guests have been asked to bring their own box lunches, which they will eat at tables under the trees. Afterward there will be a pageant staged by the Arden Shore campers; mothers, grandmothers, and boys and girls who enjoy a fortnight's outing at the camp.

Miss Anna Belle Ferrier is executive head of the camp, which is run for eight weeks each summer for mothers and children, and for underprivileged boys from October to May. Mrs. Robert B. Gregory and Mrs. J. Eugene Davis head the board and Mrs. George H. Williamson is chairman of the Chicago committee.

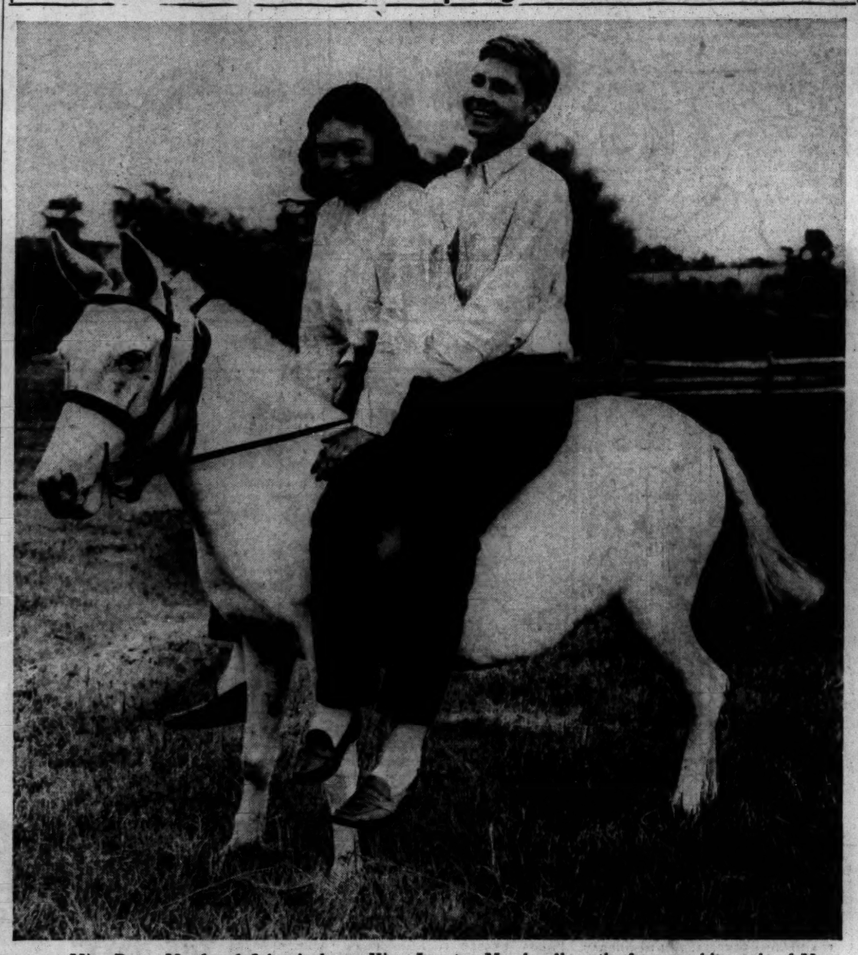
Settlement Junior Board Meets in Evanston Today.

The Northwestern Settlement Junior board will meet today in the home of Miss Evelyn Swift of Evanston, carrying on its summer program of making needlepoint and knitted articles to be sold for the settlement's House in the Woods, a summer camp for children. Mrs. Thomas Morgan, the board's project chairman, is assisted by Miss Marie Stevenson, Miss Mollie Meaker, Mrs. George D. Wolf Jr., Mrs. Arthur F. Allen, Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, Mrs. Allen Howard, Mrs. Donald Eddy, and Mrs. Hayden Macdonald.

The Sunbeam league is meeting for luncheon at the North Shore Country club today to discuss plans for a horse show on Sept. 20 and 21 in Harms wood. The show is sponsored jointly by the league and the Town and Country Equestrian association, and the league receives the proceeds.

The second breakfast ride this season of the association will be held from 10 until 1 o'clock next Sunday, starting from the toboggan slide in Palos hills. More than 150 riders will participate in the 12 mile circle ride. Breakfast will be served at 1 o'clock in the park's picnic shelter.

Two Exhibitors in Galloping Hills Horse Show



Miss Betty Mead and John Andrews King Jr., atop Marshmallow, the famous white mule of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Swift at their Wheaton farm, Galloping Hills. Miss Mead and Mr. King will exhibit in a horse show to be held at the farm all day next Sunday. The show is open to the public. Admission will be 50 cents. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Rummage Shop Has Party and Stocks Shelves

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The last question in a quiz of the "Whiz Kids" conducted by Albert B. Pattou yesterday afternoon in the Bell school in Lake Forest was not written in the script. But it was the most easily answered of all and drew the loudest applause from the audience when the five bright "Kids" yelled the answer, "Mrs. Samuel T. Chase."

The question, of course, was "Who has done the most for the White Elephant Rummage shop during the 22 years it has been running?" Mrs. Chase, it was, who had written the quiz and who has written all the jingled invitations on the shop the committee has sent out during the years, as well as all the amusing skits that have been given at various times at parties to benefit the shop.

The quiz was part of an afternoon of entertainment provided for the guests who brought "white elephants" to swell the stock of the shop at 27 East Ohio street that is conducted for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital.

Most of the questions dealt with Lake Forest persons and places so tough little Brenda [Mrs. Joseph C. Belden Jr.], stuttering but studious Eva Mae [Mrs. Kent Chandler], Mazie from Groton [Mrs. Michelson Maher], Angela from Foxcroft [Miss Sarah Hinds], and freckled Patrick [Mrs. John C. Murphy] had no difficulty in giving the correct answers. Preceding the quiz the young Lake Foresters who study dancing with Mrs. J. C. Emma performed, to the delight of their proud mothers and grandmothers.

Among the wee dancers were Jean Arvey, Susie Chappell, Marina Galitzine, Sharon Pirie, Mary Martin, Katherine Farwell, Bumpsey Elting, Susan Porter, Lola Fain, Nancy Cummings, Nancy Clow, Andrea Rowley, Audrey Fentress, Gwen and Adrienne Osborne, Deirdre and Lynn Kelley, Dede Carton, Edith McBride, Jean McBride, Modista Brewton, Jean and Marilyn Munkers, Anne Lackie, Ethel Anderson, and Rose Mary Emma.

Some of the two hundred in the audience were Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney and her daughter, Mrs. Henry Stimson of Rye, N. Y.; Mrs. Hambleton Kirk and her daughters, Mrs. Kirk Williams and Mrs. Norman Merrett; Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, a devoted friend of the Rummage shop and a luncheon hostess before the party; Mrs. Orville E. Babcock Jr., Mrs. John B. Morse, Mr. Chase, and Mr. Belden, who with Mr. Pattou and Fairbank Carpenter [the announcer of the fake radio program] were the only men at the party; Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. C. Morse Ely.

Mrs. Ambrose Cramer and her daughter, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson; Thomas A. Connors, Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, who had driven from Lake Geneva for the affair; Mrs. Bryan Reid, Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mrs. Julian Soames, Mrs. John G. McDonald, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, and Mrs. Francis Beidler Jr., who was the only one prepared for the sort of afternoon it turned out to be. She had a blue raincoat and an umbrella hanging on one arm when she entered so her crocheted yellow dress was protected when she departed. No one else had a coat or an umbrella, but every one had such a good time that the rain did not matter.

Music Teacher, Concrete Mixer, Fund Raiser.

A young man in Chicago this week is John Evarts, instructor in music at Black Mountain college, Black Mountain, N. C. In addition to teaching music and musical theory, Mr. Evarts, Yale graduate and European music student, has been pouring concrete and hauling rocks at Black Mountain for the new college main classroom building, and now is working to help raise the $15,000 necessary to complete the interior of the building.

• • •

Black Mountain college was founded eight years ago by a group of teachers and students interested in the idea of a co-educational college where new methods might be tried and where there would be participation in responsibility by students as well as faculty. Appointments and financial matters are handled by the board of fellows, members of which are elected for three year terms by the faculty from its own membership. No student works his way thru Black Mountain college; all students share in the work, waiting upon themselves and one another at meals; working in the bindery, the print shop, on the stage, and doing farm work.

• • •

Last year there was a dilemma. The buildings rented by the college since 1931 would not be available in 1941. There was only one alternative to closing the college, that was for students and professors to build, with their own hands, an additional building and renovate the summer buildings for year 'round use. A. Lawrence Kocher, former editor of the Architectural Record, and resident artist sponsored by the Carnegie Foundation, designed the buildings and is superintending their erection.

"Every afternoon between 1:45 and 5:00 students and professors work at putting up the buildings," said Music Instructor Evarts. "They cut down a hillside, mixed and poured concrete, hauled rocks for the walls and foundation, put up joists, built subflooring and cut down oaks to provide the lumber. Not quite a year ago the ground was broken. Now the exterior, of modern construction, with continuous steel sash windows, is done, but we have to have money to complete the interior, and get it ready for use in the autumn." The young professor paused and grinned. "And that is my present job," he concluded, "trying to help raise that $15,000."

Willing.

Jonas Periberg tells of the southern Negro who upon receiving his draft questionnaire, struggled helplessly with the list of questions. Finally he gave up in despair, and returned the blank to the draft board with the notation: "I've ready when you is."

Camp MacLean, 11th of Chicago Y, to Be Dedicated Sunday

Camp MacLean, the 11th camp of the Chicago YMCA, will be dedicated at 3 o'clock Sunday. It is on Rockland Lake, one and one-half miles northeast of Burlington, Wis. The tract includes 120 acres and the camp is valued at near $100,000.

The camp is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. M. Haddon MacLean of 1128 Ridge avenue, Evanston. It was given in memory of their son, John Barlett MacLean, who died in 1939 at the age of 15. Mr. MacLean is a vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank and treasurer of the board of trustee of the Chicago YMCA.

Jeffrey R. Short, president of the association here, will accept the camp site and building from Mr. and Mrs. MacLean. Mayor H. J. Runkel of Burlington, will give an address of welcome.

The camp will include a lodge, cabins, handicraft shops, gamerooms, and a hospital unit. A room in the tower of the lodge will contain the library and articles used by the MacLean son in his camping days. The camp will accommodate 100 boys. More than 5,000 boys attend the YMCA camps each summer.

Carlos Chavez Brings Mexican Fire to Ravinia

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Short, dark, rugged, and Mexican to his finger tips, the distinguished composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, came to Ravinia park last night to begin a four concert engagement as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and to make his first appearance in the Chicago district. An audience that the rainy weather kept smaller than it should have been heard him direct a program consisting of four symphonies.

He began with Johann Christian Bach's in B Flat, a charming and little known 18th century work by the youngest son of Johann Sebastian Bach. Its cheerful first and third movements profited by Chavez's spirited tempi and crisp accents, its second was glorified by long, serene lines and an almost liquid beauty of tone.

The performance of Schumann's "Rhenish" symphony, which followed, was full bodied, songful, and possessed of that bursting, rhapsodic quality without which Schumann is but a pale reflection of Schumann. Phrases leaped from the orchestra with a seeming joyfulness of their own. The performance had a great emotional momentum, and built up to a big climax at the end.

Having paid his respects to the 18th and 19th centuries, the conductor addressed himself to the 20th. He programmed the Shostakovich First symphony and his own Sinfonia India, a work which has never before been performed in Chicago.

With the memory of the Shostakovich Fifth symphony fresh in our ears [it was played last Thursday at Ravinia], the First seemed tame and almost parsimonious, but very likable in a youthful, diffident way. After one hearing of the Chavez work one can only say lamely that it is "interesting." It is based on Mexican Indian folk melodies, a fact which automatically takes it outside of all our normal esthetic experience.

One may admire the way these themes are integrated, and exclaim over the actual sound of the symphony [the use of instruments like water gourds and rattles gives its texture a remarkable wild beauty] but when it comes to assimilating the piece's content and relating it to one's own experience, that is quite another matter.

The audience liked Chavez greatly. There was a major ovation after the Shostakovich. The conductor has a nice way of directing applause away from himself by calling upon the orchestra to rise or by turning to shake hands with Concertmaster Weicher.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., July 22.—The last of the Hollywood press previews is to be held next Tuesday. The gentlemen in the New York business offices of the motion picture factories have ruled out advance showings on the grounds that, in their own quaint phrase, a critical paragraph might injure their product.

This last of the previews is to be an affair. The picture is "New Wine," a musical starring Ilona Massey, and George Glass, its exploiter, has decided it shall be shown in a big winery at Cucamonga, about 45 miles from here. After an hour of devotion to the study of the grape in its perfected state, and another hour of investigating a barbecued supper, there will be a ceremony of commemoration and then "New Wine" will be shown in a wine cave.

The ceremony will consist of the burial, in a cave, of a time capsule. A metal cylinder will be interred, supposedly for exactly a thousand years, and in it will be souvenirs of Hollywood, the Wonderful City of Oz. In 2941 somebody in search of a drink is supposed to dig up this thing and from its contents be able to picture what kind of place this really was and what kind of people we really were. Mr. Glass has asked all the correspondents on the Hays list to suggest items for burial. He, for one, will toss in one of Marlene Dietrich's stockings, altho just how he proposes to get it he does not state. Maybe he will just ask her for it, the chump.

Well, no three-foot time capsule is ever going to hold the authentic record of Hollywood. It would be much better, dear George Glass, if you took over the whole wine cave and then asked everybody WHO, not WHAT, should be buried there. O, boy! This would be very useful to the historians of 2941 and even more useful to us Hollywoodians of 1941. Such a project would have more public support than Paul Gallico got, many years ago, when he started a list of sports figures who should be sent over Niagara falls in a barrel.

My own list of people who should be buried there would take a lot of room, even if they were stacked up as case goods. There would be, for instance, several studio heads and executive producers who, being dull and illiterate fellows, have had years of failure in their jobs; men who, despite their records for having driven companies into bankruptcy, always pop up with new executive jobs with other studios. Hollywood is quick to drop an actor who isn't very good—because the public has the say in such matters. But Hollywood cherishes the incompetents in its executive ranks, giving them new jobs when the old ones blow up—because the public does not care a hoot.

There would also be, in the Chapman wing of the cave, a number of screen writers—the Sammy Glicks who steal, borrow or revise and who have made themselves important: the small, frantic snipes who cannot write, and who would not be worth $35 a week as newspaper reporters.

Souvenirs for the time capsule are many to choose from: An old Joan Crawford mouth, which influenced the youth of a nation when it first came into view. There must be a lot of them lying around the Metro stages, because they don't sweep the place very well . . . and not a Garbo shoe, but a Hedy Lamarr shoe, because it's larger . . . An old Garbo bob, which also influenced the youth in its time . . . A feather from a Dietrich costume, rather than a stocking: it's just as characteristic and will pack better . . . A William S. Hart six-gun . . . A C. B. De Mille puttee . . . One of Walt Disney's grins—about the pleasantest thing you see hereabouts, and it's too bad labor squabbles are keeping him from grinning as much as he used to . . . A microphone, the greatest single influence on Hollywood of any time. The movies have not yet recovered from the wonder of it, and even now too many of them are so busy talking they forget to move . . . The carefully detailed outline of a Mack Sennett chase, for the chase is the keystone of all good comedies—and all good melodramas, too. Look at "Night Train" and "Man Hunt"; full-length chases.

A Wallace Beery eyebrow . . . One of Jimmy Stewart's dropped eyes. . . A Harry Langdon sneeze. . . Or one of Billy Gilbert's. . . A W. C. Fields glare at an infant child. . . A Don Ameche collar. . . A Gene Autry shirt . . . A thirty foot telephone cord, to memoralize the extras and bit players who stay at home day after day, carrying the phone with them about the house and waiting to get a call about a job. . . A Lubitsch touch—packed in cotton and marked Fragile . . . And, if room, a set of D. W. Griffith pictures. You'd be surprised at the number and high caliber of important people here who insist that Griffith is the only artist, the only great man the movies ever had.

An engraved wedding announcement going something like this: "Mr. and Mrs. Finkel McGillihooley announce that their daughter, Shirley Delovely, will elope secretly to Las Vegas with J. Herbert Ham as soon as her divorce from Cuthbert Q. Twitch becomes final—provided, of course, that J. Herbert Ham's divorce from Mrs. Ham has also become final at that time."

A boom shot starting with some chorus girls' legs and trucking back to include a ballroom the size of Grand Central, without which there never would have been any musical movies. . . The other Wallace Beery eyebrow. Might as well have a complete set. . . A twinkle from Clark Gable's eyes—a better trademark than the mustache or the ears. . . . A Jack Benny gag man. He's got so many he can spare one. . . A bottle of aspirin and a bottle of vitamin pills, to show what people lived on in 1941.

It's Deadline Day for Sally's Party Letters

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

If you're coming with me to see Mr. Bumble, Mr. Slout, Mr. Blathers, or Mr. Chickweed, you'd better hurry up with your letters, boys and girls. All those unusual names belong to characters in "Oliver Twist," and today's your last chance to write a letter which may win an invitation to our July 31 party.

We're going to see a play taken from that famous old story by Charles Dickens. There will be three acts and seven scenes, including the miserable orphanage in which poor Oliver lived, Fagin's den where he is forced to help the thieves, and finally the home of the good Mr. Brownlow, who gives the poor boy a helping hand.

One hundred boys and girls are coming with me to enjoy this performance given especially for us by Marie Agnes Foley's talented young Jack and Jill Players. If you expect to be my guest at the pleasant little studio-theater, you'll have to mail your letter today, because the winners will be chosen tomorrow.

The youngsters who will give the play are of various ages, but the majority of them are so talented that they've done professional work on the stage, screen and on the radio.

If you'd like to come to this party, write a letter telling me why you think seeing this play would be fun, and maybe, if you write a convincing letter, you'll see your name listed with the winners in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

You must remember, however, to tell me your full name, address and your age. Do try to be careful, boys and girls—so many of you get excited and forget these bits of information.

Any child is eligible to try for an invitation, so hurry to the mail box with that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

500 Books Received at Library for 6th Corps Area Camps

Miss Mildred Bruder.

The Chicago public library reported yesterday that so far 500 books, most of them detective or western stories, had been turned in at the downtown building since the collection for 6th corps area soldiers started on Monday. At the three branch libraries, at 6247 Kimbark avenue, 4536 Lincoln avenue, and 115 South Pulaski road, less than 100 more books have been received. The books are to be boxed for shipment to army camps Friday and Saturday at the main library after book pockets and lending cards are added. Miss Mildred Bruder, who is in charge of the drive, explained that back copies of magazines are not being taken. She urged that old magazines be sold for waste paper and the proceeds used to buy magazine subscriptions for camps.

"A Debt Is Paid"

By Olga L. Rosmanith

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

When Kathleen Murray, New York secretary, inherits an income and a home on Lake Willow, in California, she resigns her job and goes there to live. She meets Hugo Lang, whose play is being produced in the local Summer theater and soon finds herself falling in love with him. A rich girl, Carol Keyes, is backing the production and insists that she and her current infatuation, Maurice Reed, play the lead rôles in spite of their mediocre ability. Jeanie Payson, daughter of the Willow Lake hotel keeper, and Ellen Mount, Hugo's foster mother, have minor rôles. Kathleen brings Toby Allerton from New York — at her expense — to improve the cast. The theme of the drama is murder and it holds the audience tensely, but Kathleen has an uncomfortable presentiment when Wilkie Stokes, another member of the colony, discusses the fascinations of killing. Hugo tells Kathleen he loves her, but will not marry her until he makes some money.

INSTALMENT IX.

MOTHER-IN-LAW TROUBLE.

It was Kathleen's nature to hang on like a terrier whether the thing she had seized was worth the trouble or not. She got up.

"The man has no right to be sleeping if he's on fire duty. You wait here. I'll go by myself."

This stirred Hugo into action. He preceded her down the path between the trees to the lonely house which proved to be a solidly built log cabin with a stone and cement chimney. The back door was shut and shades drawn over the windows. They went round to the front facing down the canyon and found another shut door and two more blind windows facing on a roofed veranda. There was a faintly marked path leading down thru the trees.

"The solitude got them down," said Hugo. "There's nobody home."

Kathleen tried the handle of the door. It yielded so unexpectedly that she almost fell inside. Hugo pulled her back.

"Any one in?" he called loudly.

There was no answer. They went in and looked around. Kathleen's pulses racing with youthful excitement. The front of the cabin was one large room with hooked rugs on the boarded floor, two old rockers with fringed doeskin cushions, a bulging magazine rack, a table with a green cloth on it. Bookshelves with a few old books hung in one of the fireplace recesses, a small table bearing a portable radio stood in the other. Charred wood and ashes lay in the fireplace.

"The radio is almost new," observed Kathleen.

Hugo was not listening. A door led into a kitchen at the back and a door from the kitchen opened into a bedroom with cabin bunks against the walls, two upper and two lower ones. He looked into them. There were mattresses and old patchwork quilts, but no bed linen. Kathleen called to him from the kitchen.

"Fun here I'd say. But where would they get water?"

"Look at the pails on the floor. There's a spring somewhere near." He came out of the bedroom. "Looks like no one's lived here for months. Given up the unequal struggle."

Kathleen spoke from the cupboard she was looking into.

"They're very carless, whoever they are. There's enough canned stuff to feed a family for a month. I call that wasteful."

Hugo shut the cupboard door, "Come on. Let's get out of this."

But Kathleen had to see the bedroom, too. She went in alone while Hugo went out into the air again. A scarf lying on one of the mattresses caught her eye. A chic little scarf knitted in frail wool, wine, blue and string color. She picked it up turning it over in her hands with a strange feeling of unease in her. She had seen it knotted round a girl's neck. A girl wearing a wine colored shirt and blue slacks. The girl was Jeanie.

"Come on," Hugo called. "It isn't even a tomb full of old bones. It's just plain uninteresting."

Kathleen threw the scarf down on the mattress, pulled the shade down again and joined him out in the bright sunlight. Hugo had almost a mania for being out-of-doors. He took her arm and turned her towards the path leading up behind the cabin.

"What about going down this side of the mountain and going home in the bus?" she said.

"I don't know this side of the mountain. We might get lost."

"We couldn't get very lost."

"All right. If you really wish to——"

"Not that much. We'll go your way——"

He laughed and kissed her cheeks, pushed back her hair and kissed her ears.

"I've never understood this silk and velvet boudoir stuff. I like my girl's skin to be warm with the sun on it and smell the wind in her hair——"

"Yours looks like a high wind had gone thru it."

"I'm the way I am. Take me or leave me."

"Everything about you is perfect for me, Hugo—except your mother."

"What's wrong with her?" he said, instantly on the defensive.

"Nothing. It's just friction ahead. I can see it. She doesn't like me."

"Because she laughs at you a little? Foolish one. She isn't laughing at you. She's laughing because that's her way of laughing at life in general."

"Well Hugo—all the same. I mean, your wife is more important than life in general. And if I don't laugh when she laughs, she says I have no sense of humor."

Hugo laughed loudly. "That's unfair. You have a little."

"Now you——"

He put his hand on her head and ruffled her hair.

"Foolisher and foolisher. Trouble is you never had a tough time. It's a tough time that gives you that ripe invincible sense of humor—or makes you lie down by an open gas jet. You must admit the former is healthier."

"Of course. But your mother seems to think a sense of humor is the most important thing a person can have—more than brains and more than honesty. When she says I haven't one, she means she has no use for me."

Hugo shrugged his shoulders, refusing to be impressed.

"Forget it. You don't have to marry her. I come without apron strings."

Kathleen slipped her hand in his as they scrambled down a steep place. "Is that true dear? Do you mean it?"

"Of course I do."

"You mean you'd stop arranging parts for her wherever you are? I mean go on taking care of her, of course, but have her live away from us in another city."

Hugo held Kathleen's arm tight and stared at her. "You don't know what you're saying, Kitten."

"O, but I do. Look Hugo, have you never heard that a man and his wife get on better without family interference?"

There was a stubborn implacable look about him. "Ellen isn't that kind of family—and she'd never interfere with my happiness. Now what is rankling in you that led up to this suggestion?"

Kathleen remembered her humiliation with a recurrence of the same hot shame. "Right in front of all the people at the club she said I couldn't get off my high horse if I wanted to because it was so high I'd need a ladder, and all because I didn't laugh when she said a cold winter was no excuse for a girl to go wrong for a mink coat when it took no time at all to get one from two 50 cent guinea pigs."

"You thought that was vulgar?" said Hugo gravely.

"Don't you think it was?"

"No. You see I've been cold in the winter and so has Ellen. Cold enough to know that a girl who can laugh about it rates a half pound emerald in her heavenly crown. And if you're so scared of a little razzing you want my mother in the next town, you won't even rate a dime store diamond."

"Oh, Hugo—well all right, I'm sorry——"

"Good. And now I'm going to tell you funny stories till you learn why Ellen Mount and others like her set such store by ability to laugh—at life and at themselves, too. Watch that root. Did you ever hear the story about the church mouse and the conjuror's rabbit?" Soon they were both laughing.

They were still in their bright mood of laughter when they got back to Lakes End early in the evening. A tall thin boy wearing thick glasses unfolded himself from a deck chair as they came up the steps to the high veranda.

Kathleen looked at the script in his hand. "Why Toby, you've been studying. I told you to take the canoe up the lake and explore the backwaters."

"I've had a wonderful day. I swam twice. It's heaven sitting reading here with all the summer sounds and smells going on—or just staring at the dragon flies darting over the water. What did you do?"

"Climbed an alp and found an abandoned castle in the heart of the mountain. I'm going up to get a shower. Hugo, you know where to find the cocktail things. Toby, you tell Susan we're famished and please get the supper early."

The boy went at once to do her bidding.

200 More Children Depart for Vacation at Camp Algonquin

This week 200 more youngsters who spend most of their summer in stuffy rooms or on hot pavements, streets, and alleys, are beginning a two week vacation on the grassy slopes of Camp Algonquin along the Fox river.

But back in the city there are still hundreds of boys and girls who will never glimpse the clean cottages, the wide expanse of grass and trees, or the rippling river that mean camp to the fortunate few who finally reach Algonquin. Gifts from Tribune readers will make it possible for more children to attend.

Yesterday's donations included $25 from F. J. L. and $5 from Mrs. G. F. Robinson and an anonymous person, bringing the total to $589.71 for the summer. Contributions for the camp fund sent to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will be gratefully acknowledged in these columns.

2 Mistakes Wives So Often Make

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use over-strong solutions of acids which can burn or scar delicate tissues. Today risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Booklet Tells Intimate Facts. Get this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today"—FREE, sent postpaid in plain wrapper. Send name and address to Zonite Products Corporation, Dept. 338C, 370 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If you're addicted to hamburgers, or even if you're not, you'll probably like them prepared in a new way, baked in a mushroom soup sauce.

Hamburg Patties in Mushroom Sauce.
[Serves four.]
1 pound ground round steak
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper
Bacon slices
Flour
½ can mushroom soup

Mix meat with crumbs and seasonings and shape into patties. Dip patties in flour and wrap each patty with a bacon slice. Brown on both sides in a little hot fat. Reduce heat, add mushroom soup, cover, and bake in a 350 degree oven for 35-40 minutes.

If you like onions, slice some and brown them with the hamburg cakes. They make this dish twice as good, in the opinion of all but antionionists.

CRISCROSS ROLLS.

Criscross rolls may be made from baking powder biscuit dough or yeast roll dough. Roll the dough out a fourth inch thick and cut it into two inch strips, an inch wide. Use three strips for each roll. Place the first one in a greased muffin pan. Cross it with a second. Place the third in the same direction as the first. Brush the roll over with melted butter. Bake at 400 degrees. If you use a yeast dough, let the rolls rise until light before baking.

FRESH FRUIT ON PINEAPPLE SHELL.

This is an attractive way to serve a fruit dessert for company as well as for the family. Cut a washed pineapple lengthwise, thru the leaves, leaving them attached. Cut each half again lengthwise, so that you have four quarters, which will serve four portions. If the pineapple is large, you can make it do for six.

Cut out the meat and, discarding the core, dice it. Combine with any other fruit you choose, honeydew and watermelon balls are attractive. So are sweet cherries, blackberries. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve cold on the pineapple shell. A little sherry may be sprinkled over the arrangement, if you like it.

Another attractive, partified way of serving fresh fruit is to cut off the top of a pineapple, hollow it out and fill it with a combination of diced fresh fruit, including the pineapple. Pineapple, sliced peaches, and some kind of colorful berry make a pretty picture. The whole pineapple is served by the hostess, who removes the cover by its leaves and serves the fruit with a spoon, or spoon and fork.

Red Cross to Provide 500 More Comfort Kits

Five hundred additional comfort kits for British women who have been bombed out of their homes will be provided by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, Mrs. James A. Cathcart, chairman of volunteer special services, said yesterday. The kits contain a comb and mirror, hair pins, wash cloth and towel, toothbrush and powder, soap, flashlight, sewing and darning materials, and first aid supplies. The new quota will bring to 2,000 the number of kits assembled by the Chicago chapter this year.

Children's Summer Frocks

CHILDREN'S SUMMER STYLES.

Both these fashions will keep Sissy cool and smart thru the most torrid days. At the left, a princess style play dress with matching bloomers and bolero, a complete ensemble for her active hours. At the right, a princess style pinafore with beruffled shoulders. The panties match, too.

Style No. 3395 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10.
Style No. 3459 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10.
Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

The average defender does not take the proper inferences from the declarer's play. The failure of a declarer to make a play that he probably would have made if he had held certain cards, is, perhaps, the surest guide for the defense.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the three of hearts, dummy's ace was played, and the spade jack was let ride. West won and gave thought to his return. As he afterward said to his partner, he came to the conclusion that the best thing was to cash his own sure tricks, the heart king and the club ace. Then, if he were to find East with either the club king or the diamond king, the contract would be defeated. Unfortunately for his side, his theory did not work out. After he had cashed the two mentioned tricks, declarer spread the hand.

West's reasoning had been somewhat less than logical. True, if East had either of the hoped for kings, the defenders were safe, but there was one other card that could be equally valuable and which it was more likely that East held. That card was, of course, the heart queen. East, on the very first trick, had played the heart eight. Even more important, declarer had, without a moment's thought, put up dummy's ace. Surely, if declarer had held the heart queen, he at least would have considered ducking in dummy and attempting to win with the queen. That he had not done so was virtually proof that he did not hold the queen. West should have jumped at the chance to underlead his heart king. East would have made the obvious return of a club and the defenders inevitably would have taken four tricks.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

July 23, 1941.

Universal day—Keep everything toned down if possible as there might be a tendency to blow up.

August—If you are having a three year this year, then the coming month must be navigated carefully. It might bring some anxiety or tension resulting in nerves and jitters. Watch health and try to keep cheerful. There might be a temptation to feel sorry for yourself. On the whole this is a cheerful and pleasant year so don't let this month throw you out of step. Take it a little more quietly and don't push yourself or others and it might prove an inspirational month, stimulating your imagination. It is possible that you might have the spotlight of publicity thrown on you if you are doing any public work.

School Board Will Name 3 to Aid in Book Buying

Three present assistant superintendents of schools will be given new duties today when the board of education names a three-man committee to aid in the purchase of textbooks for Chicago's 500,000 school children. The committee, in cooperation with Dr. Don C. Rogers, director of textbook purchasing, will supervise competitive bidding for textbooks.

Star Centerpiece Doily

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted centerpiece doilies are effective bits of decoration under lamps, fruit dishes, and for the center of dining tables. This star design measures approximately 14 inches in diameter when completed, and possesses graceful edgings which add to the attractiveness of the central star motif. One hank of ecru, mercerized, crochet cotton will complete one doily.

For instructions in crocheting the star centerpiece, No. 420, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Year-and-Half Old Children Adventurous

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Mother wasn't feeling well that morning, certainly far from being able to take care of small, busy Bunty, exactly 1½ years old. So mother's next door neighbor took Bunty around with her in the car, as she did errands and paid some calls.

The last stop was at the home of a friend who had never seen Bunty. This friend collected miniature animals of jade, ivory, bone, and pottery, all housed in a low, open, corner cabinet.

After Bunty's first shyness had worn off her eyes found the corner cabinet. Then her feet led her to it.

"Don't touch, baby! Come here!" rapped out the neighbor and darted toward Bunty.

"Please, let her alone," remonstrated the owner of the miniature animals.

"She'll pull them down and break them and her mother will be furious!" exclaimed the neighbor.

"No, she won't, not if you'll let her alone," said the friend, and then walked slowly over, sat down on the floor near Bunty and talked in a quiet voice about the tiny monkeys and elephants and horses on the shelves. As she talked, a chubby finger pointed at this one and that, and soon she was given the animals she seemed to like best, to hold.

"Well!" exclaimed the neighbor in charge. "That's not the way she is at home. Della's always having to slap her hands or practically yell at her, she's so full of mischief and so destructive."

"You don't mean her mother has to slap her hands and yell at her," said her friend. "You mean she does. Bunty's all right. She's a darling. She could learn anything if she were given a chance to learn, instead of just being considered naughty and slapped."

This statement is so very true, particularly of small boys and girls when they are 18 months old. This is, in a way, their first stepping out after the months of babyhood, which root them pretty much to one spot and bring into their hands only what some one puts there. At around this time they have their first chance for adventure and experiment, and so to learn. Our business is not to check their curiosity and venturesomeness, but to satisfy it, within reason and within the bounds of safety to them.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

The young skin that's excessively oily and prone to blackheads is inclined to tune up more pronouncedly than ever in warm weather.

We're of the opinion that exquisite cleanliness is the most important phase of treatment. At least, if the skin isn't kept immaculate no other steps toward correction are worth a hoot.

As a cleanser for this kind of skin, one that is wonderfully efficient but at the same time not harsh, we are enthusiastic about a preparation described as "liquid lather." We're enthusiastic about it for all types of skin, as a matter of fact. We've never seen it used unsuccessfully. And as a summer cleanser, when even the dryest skin is inclined to exude oil that grime clings to, we think it's tops.

This is used with a complexion brush, one of the best. The scrubbing is vitally important to the adolescent complexion, not only for its cleansing value but for the normalizing benefits of the friction. The big point about this is that the skin doesn't feel taut or roughened after the scrubbing. There's a soothing ingredient or two in the white liquid, which lathers like—but isn't—soap.

The liquid lather, in small quantity, is applied to the moistened complexion brush. It removes every trace of grime and makeup and after rinsing and drying the skin looks and feels immaculate and stimulated.

PEORIA BANS USE OF STRAY DOGS IN MEDICAL STUDIES

Council's Action Assailed by Physicians.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., July 22.—Chewing his cigar, Mayor E. N. Woodruff growled an almost inaudible "aye" that broke a city council tie vote tonight and aroused the medical profession by prohibiting the city health department from continuing to send unwanted dogs to Chicago medical schools for research in curing disease.

There was no debate tonight such as almost brought fisticuffs to the council chamber two weeks ago when opposing views were expressed by Dr. Anton J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, world famed physiologist, and Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, sponsor of the Orphans of the Storm dog shelter.

Decided in 10 Minutes.

The controversial issue was decided in 10 minutes. None of the 20 aldermen appeared excited as the clerk rapidly called the roll. There was utmost calm when the result was announced as 10 to 10. It was like a well rehearsed play.

The mayor, 79 years old, stood with downcast eyes near the clerk when he uttered the deciding vote. Wild applause broke forth from a gallery of 50 women partisans.

"What physician's going to attend the mayor now?" said a citizen wearing a body cast for five fractured vertebrae. He was Peter Merkle, a painting contractor who sustained the injuries in a fall at work.

"There isn't a man in the council, on up to the mayor, qualified to say what is needed to train a doctor or for research," Merkle added.

Blind Alderman Alters Vote.

Alderman Grover Callahan, who is blind, attended his first council meeting in months. He changed his vote to oppose the doctors after first voting in their favor.

Alderman Alfred Schuh, a coal dealer, and James Manning, a shipping clerk, voted for the anti-vivisectionists tonight, altho they voted the other way two weeks ago.

Physicians in spectators' seats silently arose and filed out, gathering in the halls to unravel some of the background for the council's action.

"This will make Peoria the laughing stock of a nation which favors the scientific practice of medicine," said Dr. Sumner Miller, head of the health department, which a year ago began sending unwanted dogs to the laboratories. "However, the effect on research will not be great because of this loss of 300 or 400 dogs."

Heavy Fines Provided.

The ordinance amendment adopted tonight provides for fines of from $100 to $200 for each offense of disposing of unclaimed dogs in the Peoria pound by any means other than killing them immediately.

A full page advertisment in a Peoria morning paper, costing $357 and ostensibly paid for by the Peoria Animal Welfare association, stirred the ire of the physicians. It was a prime example of "horror" propaganda, depicting dogs in medical laboratories under such captions as "somebody's pet?"

"I am amazed at the lobbying activities which have been shamelessly carried on here for the last three weeks," said Dr. E. E. Nystrom, president-elect of the Peoria Medical society. "Aldermen were wined and dined to get this support for the anti-medical amendment."

MERCURY GOES TO 94; SHOWERS PROVIDE RELIEF

Thundershowers brought some relief in Chicago yesterday afternoon after the temperature reached 94 degrees at 2 p. m. It was the hottest day of the month and lacked only .5 of one degree of being the hottest day of the year. A reading of 94.5 degrees was recorded last June 27.

The temperature is expected to climb into the 90s agai ntoday, Forecaster A. J. Knarr said, but no cooling showers are expected. The heat wave will continue for two or three more days, he added.

The entire nine state north central district experienced 90 degree weather yesterday. Knarr sail low barometric pressure over the far southwest, Great Plains, and upper Mississippi valley caused warm, moist air to flow northward over the Rocky mountains and veer eastward over the plains and to the upper Great Lakes.

SEIZE FUGITIVE FROM PRISON IN MOTHER'S HOME

Edward Twardowski, 25 years old, who escaped Friday from the Menard penitentiary by swimming the Mississippi river, was captured last night in the home of his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haag, at 8519 Colfax avenue. Two detective bureau squads headed by Sergts. Walter Paradowski and Edward McCabe seized Twardowski while he was eating dinner. He told them he had arrived there only a few minutes earlier.

Twardowski was sent to Joliet penitentiary for 1 to 20 years in March, 1934, for the theft of an automobile in Cook county. He was paroled in February, 1936, but was returned to Joliet in October of that year when he violated his parole by stealing another car. In 1937 he was transferred to Menard. Prison authorities said he had only 28 more days to serve.

Before going to the Haag home last night Twardowski stole a bicycle at 79th street and Chappel avenue, abandoning it later.

FINISH TRIBUNE TOWER ELEVATOR MODERNIZATION

Tribune Tower is now provided with the most modern elevator service in Chicago with the installation of new mechanical equipment costing $83,065. The work was begun 13 months ago under the supervision of John Park, production manager. One shaft at a time was closed off while work proceeded on the five express and four local elevators.

New micro-leveling devices provide much quicker floor leveling at stops than the former equipment, and a highest call return system with an automatic selection to eliminate stops at floors where there are no waiting passengers has increased round trip speed.

The new elevator equipment, electrically operated, was installed by the Otis Elevator company and replaces equipment in use since Tribune Tower was opened in 1925. Park said that from the standpoint of both speed and safety the new service is unexcelled in this country.

FEARS MISSING HUSBAND, 39, IS AMNESIA VICTIM

The police were asked yesterday to search for William C. Brining, 39 years old, an official of the Softwater Service, 205 Wacker drive, who disappeared July 6. His wife, Betty, who reported his disappearance, said that she believed that he was a victim of amnesia. They have been married 18 years and have one son, William C. Jr., 6. Their home is Three Rivers, Mich., but they have been living recently at the Bismarck hotel.

Retires After 49 Years in City Water Division

Charles H. Goll, chief clerk of the water pipe extension division, retired yesterday after 49 years in the city's service. He was born near Canal street and Roosevelt road, and his father, Bruno, a druggist, has been quoted as saying he turned in the first fire alarm on the fire of 1871. Goll now lives at 1521 Birchwood avenue.

Mother Not Sorry

Louisville, Ky., July 22 (AP).—Mrs. Charles Franz is not sorry that her 2 year old triplets—Faith, Hope, and Joy—are not getting the publicity that they formerly received because of the to-do over the Leitchfield, Ky., quadruplets born about four months ago. There was a time when the most intimate details of the lives of Faith, Hope, and Joy were on the lips of most Louisville residents. Then came obscurity with the birth of the quadruplets.

OPPOSES DELAY IN CONGRESS ST. SUBWAY PROJECT

Work on the Congress street subway extension of the Dearborn street subway should not be held up until a decision is reached on whether to build the proposed 40 million dollar Congress street superhighway, James C. Gilruth, director of public relations of the Illinois Automobile club, declared yesterday.

Gilruth's statement was issued after Joshua D'Esposito, federal project engineer on the subway, had asserted that the 23 million dollar grant toward Chicago's 60 million dollar subway is endangered by Gov. Green's failure so far to approve the Congress street superhighway plan. D'Esposito said the subway section under Congress street, from Dearborn street to the river, and the highway development are to be built jointly and that right of way is to be acquired for both projects at the same time.

"There is certainly no reason to mix these two projects together," Gilruth said. "If the subway is to be built with federal funds, why not go ahead and build it? Then, if the Congress street plan later goes thru, some of the right of way costs can be allocated to the highway. Gas tax moneys are to be used for the highway, and such money doesn't enter into the subway at all."

STATE TRAINING SCHOOL TO HAVE NEW HEAD TODAY

Dr. H. B. Knowles, assistant managing officer of state institutions, will assume charge today of the Illinois Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, replacing William T. Harmon, who has been managing officer there for several years.

Dr. Knowles will head the school until a permanent managing officer is chosen. Decision to replace Harmon followed a series of escapes and crimes of violence by parolees of the school.

In Evanston yesterday the Kiwanis club heard Municipal Judge James M. Corcoran assail past conduct of the institution and demand that Gov. Green clean house there from top to bottom. Judge Corcoran, who is recognized as an authority in dealing with juvenile delinquency, said that wherever possible he avoids sentencing boys to the state school, which he termed a political football and a crime mill.

Fox River Absolved! That Alligator's from Florida!

A three foot alligator trapped Monday in the Fox river near Oswego, in Kendall county, was claimed yesterday by Billy King, 15 years old, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. King, Oswego farmers, brought it from Florida as a pet. The explanation confirmed suspicions that alligators are not native to the Fox river. The reptile was discovered by Miss Barbara Dix, 18, of Aurora, and fetched out of the water with a net by Roy Hyte, a farmer.

TOMMY TO GET A FATHER AND MOTHER TODAY

Won't Be His Own, for They Haven't Been Found.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Tommy, the tow-haired, brown-eyed pet of the Juvenile home who was found wandering around in Brookfield zoo 10 days ago, will be given a mother and father today.

They won't be his own, not the "daddy in the pink twuck" to whom he is constantly referring, nor the "sick mama with the cut in her throat" whom he mentions rarely. They will be temporary parents in a comfortable foster home where it is hoped by juvenile authorities that some definite clew to his former life will awaken in his 3 year old memory.

Keeps Scientists Busy.

Since he was found by Robert Bean 10 days ago gazing at a giraffe in the zoo, Tommy has sent more scientific wheels turning than any abandoned child in the history of the city. He has been studied thoroly from the shape of his baby head to the dust in the pockets of his corduroy coveralls by scientific experts in the fields of anthropology, criminology, finger and foot printing, psychiatry, and pediatrics.

Thru it all, Tommy has behaved like the little gentleman somebody taught him to be. If given a drink of water, he raises his big, soft, brown eyes, smiles and offers it to the giver first. If given a piece of gum, he hunts for a waste basket to put the wrapper in. If he stumbles over a rug, he immediately straightens it.

Telephones Arouse Him.

His only restlessness occurs when he sees a telephone. He immediately dashes to it, picks up the receiver, dials a half finished number and inquires plaintively of the operator, "Tell my daddy to come by for me in his pink twuck." Once yesterday he told the operator, "Mama, when you get thru working I want to go by my daddy's twuck."

From his childish babble and the results of the scientific investigations, the apparent story of Tommy pieced together is this. He is probably of Italian or Greek extraction and around 4 years old, according to Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, anthropologist of the University of Chicago. He is a normal, well cared for child from a home where he was treated with affection.

Alert and Intelligent.

Tests given him by Dr. Paul Schroeder, director of the Institute of Juvenile Research, reveal him to be alert and unusually intelligent for his age. He is used to medical care and has been vaccinated and given the Schick test for diptheria, according to an examination by Dr. William Jack on the staff of the laboratory at Henrotin hospital.

As Tommy chatted yesterday with Miss Minnie Jones, investigator for the Juvenile court for the last 31 years, he gave indication of being a rural child.

His "daddy's twuck" is the center of all his conversation and it is thought that his family might possibly have lived in a trailer. "My daddy shaves in the twuck," he confided. "I always go with my daddy in the pink twuck." When shown a red truck by Miss Jones he replied scornfully, "That's not like my daddy's," and pointed quickly to a white car. "That's like the pink twuck."

The mystery around Tommy's abandonment darkened ominously yesterday when he was asked about his mother. "Mamma?" he answered in some confusion. "Mamma has a big cut in her throat and the police came and took her away to the hospital." His big eyes filled with tears as he looked at the woman visitor who asked the question. "Are you my mamma?" he asked.

Parents Sought

TEARFUL MOTHER TELLS HOW CHILD WAS CULT 'BRIDE'

Accuses Sect Leaders in Suit for Million.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22 [Special].—Tears rolled down the cheeks of Mrs. Ida Weber in court today as she recalled the night eight years ago that her 11 year old daughter was chosen as a "bride" for a disciple of the reorganized Mazdaznan Temple association of Associates of God.

Irma Weber.

Mrs. Weber told her story before a jury in Superior Judge James D. Garibaldi's court as the first witness in a suit for a million dollars' damages brought in behalf of her daughter, Irma, now 19 years old, against the Mazdaznan association and a disciple, Henry Sorge.

The story had its beginning in 1923 in the village of Herrliberg, near Zurich, Switzerland, where Mrs. Weber then lived and where she first met Dr. Otoman Zar-Adusht Ha'nish, the late founder and for many years master of the Mazdaznan movement.

Story Shifts to California.

In that year and in the following three years, Mrs. Weber recalled, Ha'nish conducted so-called gahanbars,—that is, conferences—in Switzerland as well as in other European countries.

In 1927, Mrs. Weber testified, she and her husband, William, a landscape gardener, deeply under the influence of Ha'nish, decided to move to California with their two children, Irma and William Jr., now 21, to be near the Los Angeles headquarters of the Mazdaznan association.

All went well, Mrs. Weber continued, until the last week of June, 1933, when she and her children attended a gahanbar at the Mazdaznan camp at Norco, Cal. At the camp, the mother said, was Sorge, whom she had first met in Switzerland as one of Ha'nish's disciples.

"My daughter and I occupied one of the tents near Dr. Ha'nish's bungalow at the camp," Mrs. Weber testified. My little girl spent the first two nights with me, but not the third."

Night in Bungalow Described.

The complaint charges that Ha'nish induced the child to spend the third night in his bungalow, where, it is alleged, he and Sorge took advantage of her.

Several days later, according to Mrs. Weber, she learned from her daughter of the alleged mistreatment at the hands of Ha'nish and Sorge, whom the child has visited on the supposition she was to be taught certain breathing exercises.

"Dr. Ha'nish said he was sorry that it had happened at that time but that he believed we had royal blood and that such a treatment was necessary so that a little girl could gain admittance to the inner circle of the Mazdaznan religion," the mother added.

Attorneys Outline Cases.

In opening statements to the jury, Attorney Otto Emme for the Webers declared he would attempt to prove that Irma was raped under specific instructions given Sorge by Ha'nish in his capacity as master of the organization, while attorneys representing the defendants advised the jury they would prove conclusively no such act took place.

ROBBED OF $200 AND RING.

Bailey Lichterman, 50 years old, 211 East Delaware place, told police yesterday he was robbed of $200, a $500 diamond ring and a watch as he parked his automobile near his home.

How to Make Living an Art by Dale Carnegie

This is the 23rd in a series of weekly columns written by Dale Carnegie for the makers of Old Gold, the cigarette which gives you more pleasure since something new has been added . . . flavorful Latakia tobacco!

"Don't act as if you were going to live forever." That sounds modern, doesn't it? Yet it was uttered seventeen hundred years ago by Marcus Aurelius, an immortal Roman Emperor.

Are you going through life acting as if you were going to live forever? Many of us do. We worry about the dead yesterdays. We fret about the unborn tomorrows. We get all stirred up over a lot of trivialities and forget to live. We forget that this day will never come again and that if we are ever going to enjoy life, we had better be quick about it. For "the bird of time has but a little way to flutter, and the bird is on the wing."

I often repeat to myself some beautiful words written by a Persian philosopher a thousand years ago. Here they are. Why not paste them on your mirror and repeat them each morning to yourself:

"Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course
Lie all the verities and realities of your existence:
The bliss of growth,
The glory of action,
The splendor of achievement.
For yesterday is but a dream,
And tomorrow is only a vision,
But today well lived makes
Every yesterday a dream of happiness
And every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day!
Such is the salutation of the dawn."

A READER SUGGESTS: "Try reflecting on the lessons in Old Gold's Dale Carnegie columns when you get up in the morning. This has helped me and several of my friends establish a new cheerful mental attitude which makes the entire day more satisfactory. With this start and a good breakfast, one is prepared for another something new in what we think the most delightful smoke of the day—the after-breakfast NEW Old Gold."

To Old Gold's already-famous formula has been added something new—a touch of seasoning—a rare, Eastern Mediterranean tobacco called Latakia which gives a delightful new taste to the new Old Gold blend. It is making thousands of additional smokers turn to New Old Golds daily.

Something NEW has been added!

Look for "How to Accomplish More in Life" in this space on this same day next week.

HARMON'S 346,258 LEADS ALL-STAR FOOTBALL POLL

MICHIGAN STAR WINS BACKING IN ALL SECTORS

Little All-Americans Get Big Support.

BY ARCH WARD.

Tom Harmon of Michigan, who has dreamed since his senior year in high school that some day he would be a starting half back in the All-Star game, apparently is going to get his wish. He leads every player in the land in the coast to coast poll conducted by THE TRIBUNE and 264 associated newspapers and radio stations.

Tom Harmon.

Harmon has received 346,258 of the 1,639,000 votes that have been cast. Despite his huge total, he is less than 9,000 ahead of George Franck of Minnesota, who shared the Big Ten and national spotlight with Tom the last three seasons.

Harmon's vote is particularly impressive in view of the fact that he has no organization working for him. However, he is supported robustly everywhere. Even in Minneapolis, the stronghold of the Gophers, perennial opponents of the Wolverines, Harmon is getting a substantial vote. He has not been overlooked in the south, the Pacific coast or the east. Franck is polling his heaviest vote in Minnesota and in Davenport, Ia., his home town.

All $3.30 Tickets Sold.

While the football fans of the nation have been crowding the polling centers in 44 states, prospective spectators have not been idle. The ticket department yesterday announced that all $3.30 seats have been sold. The $4.40 section was disposed of on June 13. This is the first time in the eight year history of the All-Star game that all $3.30 seats have been sold in advance. There are indications the $2.20 tickets will be gone within two weeks.

One of the back field mates who helped to make Harmon famous at Michigan—Forest Evashevski—is leading the poll at quarter back. There is some doubt, however, if he can maintain his margin over Pete Schulte of Rockhurst college, Kansas City, who is riding the crest of a drive for small college candidates which promises to develop some surprises in the personnel of the squad which will face the mighty Chicago Bears, Aug. 28 in Soldiers' field. The "Little All-America" campaign already has landed Bill McMahon of Rockhurst in first place at guard.

Mucha Has a Strong Rival.

Rudy Mucha of Washington, unanimous All-Pacific coast center, is another national headliner who may be inundated by the small college wave. Mucha, who prepped at Chicago's Fenger High school, still leads the standings at his position, but he is getting strong competition from Jack Hall of Warrensburg, Mo., Teachers college.

The Omaha World-Herald yesterday reported 17,037 votes for Warren Alfson, Nebraska guard, who is heading a lineup that includes Herman Rohrig and Walter Luther, star half backs of the Cornhuskers' Rose Bowl squad.

The Davenport, Ia., Times turned in 87,670 for Nick Kerasiotis, St. Ambrose guard, and 51,226 for Franck of Minnesota. Bill McGannon, Notre Dame half back, got 32,351 in the Davenport returns. The Peoria Journal-Transcript reported 22,780 for Ken Olson and 22,645 for Marion Asa, both of Bradley Tech. The Detroit Free Press wired 6,032 for Ted Pavelec, University of Detroit tackle. The Madison, Wis., State Journal added 14,953 for a combined Marquette-Wisconsin lineup that included Lorenz, Embick, Paskvan, Apolskis and Tennant. Harmon and Franck both scored in the Madison returns.

They're Voting in Texas.

The Fort Worth Star Telegram is pulling a heavy vote for John Kimbrough, Marshall Robnett, Ernest Pannell, and Marion Pugh of Texas A & M. Nationally known players like Harmon, Drahos of Cornell, Suffridge of Tennessee, Rankin of Purdue, Hartman of Rice, and Mucha also are running well in the Texas vote.

Andy Marefos, St. Mary's full back, is the leading vote getter in the San Francisco Chronicle returns. Bob Saggau and other Notre Dame men are getting substantial support in the bay district area. Most of the ballots for Norm Standlee, Hugh Gallarneau, and Stan Graff of Stanford are coming thru San José.

Franck led yesterday's returns from the Minneapolis Star-Journal with 5,890 votes. Duke university players, notably Tony Ruffa, tackle, and Jap Davis, full back, are far in front in the voting thru the Durham, N. C., Herald. Some idea of the scope of the drive for the Rockhurst, St. Benedict, and Warrensburg Teachers players can be gleaned from yesterday's Kansas City Star returns which piled up 104,500 votes for McMahon, Schulte, and Jensen of Rockhurst. Foran of St. Benedict's, and Hall of Warrensburg.

ILLINI TRUSTEES SPLIT, BUT PICK ATHLETIC BOARD

Two Oppose Confirmation of Willard's Choices.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The University of Illinois has another new athletic board—its third in three years—and some members of the board of trustees which yesterday confirmed the seven men chosen by President Arthur Cutts Willard aren't too happy about it.

Opposition of three of the seven trustees present, which resulted in vigorous argument, finally was allowed to run its course, after which the new group was confirmed by a vote of 5 to 2. The new athletic board's first task will be to recommend an acting athletic director at Illinois.

Yesterday's meeting was a development of last week's session at which Wendell [Weenie] Wilson, athletic director, was granted a year's leave of absence, regarded as a polite ouster, and Bob Zuppke, 62 year old coach, was retained for one year as football coach.

This Is the Board.

The new athletic board follows:

FACULTY: R. B. Browne, director of university extension, a graduate of Illinois, class of 1922; Fred B. Seely, professor of theoretical and applied mechanics and head of department, a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic institute, class of 1907, and member of the Illinois faculty since 1909; Leslie E. Card, professor of poultry husbandry, a graduate of Cornell, class of 1914, and member of the Illinois faculty since 1922; M. T. McClure, dean of the college of liberal arts and sciences, and professor of philosophy, a graduate of Washington and Lee, class of 1904, and member of the Illinois faculty since 1921.

ALUMNI: Waldo B. Ames, Chicago insurance broker, graduate of Illinois, class of 1917, captain of the track team in his senior year; C. W. Vail, Chicago attorney, graduate of Illinois, class of 1922, captain of the basketball team in his senior year; Frank H. McKelvey, Springfield banker, graduate of Illinois, class of 1907, past president of the Alumni association.

Serves Until March.

The new board will serve until March when the one year term of the group it succeeded would have expired. The three alumni members of the board which resigned last week were former football players and staunch supporters of Zuppke. It was because of their backing of the coach, and the three faculty members'

A Home of My Own.

[To M. and A.]

I've many times wondered just how it would feel
To have a home all of my own,
A sort of a haven or refuge
That belongs just to me alone;
Not an apartment or rented suite,
Not a hotel room or such,
But some sort of place that was every inch mine,
Be it ever so little or much.

A place where when once I had closed the door,
The clamor of life seemed to soften—
No one to tell me I made too much noise
Or cooked cauliflower somewhat too often;
A place looking out on a quiet street,
With old elm trees shading each side,
A harbor to which I might take all my dreams
And my hopes to forever abide.

Well, at long last I have it, a home of my own,
Perhaps you who go riding by
Won't even take note of this white little cot
With its picket-fence just elbow-high;
No, it isn't a show place that ever will be Pointed out or in rotos made known,
But its little green door leads to something much more—
A home—and a world of my own!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Possibly as a way of expressing their pleasure over getting in off the road, where they found business exceedingly dull, the Cubs splattered base hits all over and even out of Wrigley field yesterday. The boys got 16 safe blows which smothered the Braves in the series opener, 13 to 2. All of this was particularly pleasing for Bill Lee, who thus attained his seventh victory.

Lee had nothing to worry about after the third inning. By that time his pals had revealed their intentions to put some thunder into a struggle that was almost an hour late in starting because of showers.

Hack Goes Hitless.

Altho hits were plentiful, some of the Cubs couldn't horn into the party, notably Stan Hack, who totes the choicest of their averages. Hack's lapse, however, was well taken care of by Dominic Dallessandro with three blows, one a double, and by Bill Nicholson with homer No. 18 among his pair, by Lou Stringer with his third round tripper, and by Bob Sturgeon with three wallops.

The Cubs' second inning, which started them on their way, began with Bill Posedel playing bounce with Nicholson's easy tap, followed by a pass to Dahlgren. McCullough sacrificed and Stringer walked, whereupon Sturgeon let go with a single that not only sent a couple of pals bouncing across the plate, but involved one other as well as himself in a twin killing.

Scoring Neatly Done.

The third inning scoring was done quite neatly. Lee and Galan singled and Dallessandro prodded them home with his two bagger. The two fifth inning runs, however, were slightly tainted. Dallessandro singled with one out and stopped at third on Nicholson's double to right. They both scored on Carvel Rowell's error.

In response to the Braves' stunt of scoring a pair on Lee in the sixth on a pass to Hassett, a single by Waner, and a double by Sisti, the Cubs did some extensive business in the home half. Sturgeon led off with a two base poke to left and after two were gone Gilbert limped forth on his left leg to bat for Galan. Gilbert singled and so did Dallessandro, Lee scoring. Then Nicholson pasted his homer.

A lad named Frank Lamanna stood up in front of the Cubs in the seventh and one inning was all he was allowed. His appearance was made brief by Stringer's homer to left, singles by Sturgeon and Gilbert, and a pass to Hack, the yield being three runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 22.—Ted Williams, the American league's leading hitter, and Third Baseman Jim Tabor, both on the injured list for ten days, today resumed their places in the Red Sox's starting lineup. These two, with Capt. Jimmy Foxx, celebrated their return by socking homers off Johnny Rigney. The three homers accounted for five runs in Boston's 6 to 2 victory over the White Sox in the opener of a three game series.

Heber Newsome—Again!

Williams' homer was his fifth of the season off Rigney and his 18th of the campaign. Foxx's was his third off Rigney and his 15th of the season. Tabor's, which was good for three runs, was his tenth of the season and his second off Rigney this year.

Heber Newsome pitched all the way for the Red Sox. It was his 11th victory of the season, his fifth over the White Sox. Rigney, who was nicked for only four hits besides the homers, now has suffered seven defeats as compared with eight victories.

Williams' and Foxx's homers were knocked successively at the start of the second inning. Tabor's came with two out in the fifth with Manager Joe Cronin and Foxx on base.

Knickerbocker Knocks 'Em In.

After the second inning explosion the next eight Sox batsmen succumbed in order, but with two out in the fifth Turner walked and Rigney singled to center, whereupon Knickerbocker scored them with a shot off the wall in left center. Knickerbocker was out when he sought to establish his effort as a triple.

ATTENTION'S ON HAND TO RUN IN CLASSIC STAKES

George Woolf Confirmed as Whirlaway's Rider.

Equipoise Field

THIRTEEN horses were named in the overnight entries for the first running of the Equipoise mile today at Arlington Park. The draw for post positions will be made today. The field follows:

Cherry Trifle	100	No boy	15-1
Samborombon	100	F. Wiseman	20-1
Shaun G	100	D. MacAndrew	30-1

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Attention, Mrs. Parker Corning's well regarded 3 year old, arrived at Arlington Park yesterday from the east to add his challenge to those which will be hurled at Calumet farm's Whirlaway in the $59,000 Classic stakes Saturday.

Other developments of the day included a confirmation that George Woolf will be on hand to pilot the 3 year old champion in the big race. He is to fly to Chicago today from Hollywood Park, where he has been doing free lance riding.

Blue Pair Goes Today.

The possibility that To a Tee might start in the Classic also developed yesterday when his owner, John Marsch, engaged Al Snider to ride him Saturday. Tho To a Tee has been improving steadily, he is not generally considered to be of Classic caliber, but if the field is exceptionally small, his handlers may send him out to shoot for second or third place.

Blue Pair, another doubtful starter in the Classic, is scheduled to go today in the $5,000 Equipoise mile. If he should give a particularly impressive demonstration in this event, he might be sent right back into the Classic. His best work seems to be done at a maximum distance of a mile, however, and there is considerable doubt that he'll be up to that extra quarter of the Classic.

Rain Stops Our Boots.

Whirlaway was on the track yesterday for his last major move before he attempts to add the Classic to his already brilliant sweep toward the undisputed championship of his age. With Al Shelhamer riding him, the winner of the Derby, Preakness, Belmont, and Dwyer went a mile and an eighth in 1:51 3-5. Running effortlessly he was at the quarter in :24, the half in :48 2-5, the three-quarters in 1:12 3-5, and the mile in 1:38 3-5. Trainer Ben Jones was well satisfied with the drill.

Trainer Steve Judge had planned to have Our Boots on the track for a workout between races yesterday afternoon, but heavy rain squalls prompted him to change his mind. This speedy colt will get his final strong drill today instead.

They're Priming Bushwhacker.

Trainer Howard Wells' decision to hold Bushwhacker out of today's Equipoise mile implied that he is drawing dead aim on the Classic in an effort to get R. W. McIlvain's much improved colt ready to deliver a dangerous challenge.

If Whirlaway is to be beaten, Our Boots is the most likely one to do it. Since Whirlaway began his spring campaign at Keeneland, Our Boots is the only horse which has really looked better than the champ on any occasion. Tho Blue Pair whipped Whirlaway by a nose in the mile Derby trial, the Calumet colt was getting to him at every stride after running out on the last turn and he would have been in front in another jump.

Really Beats the Champ.

In the case of his defeat by Our Boots in the Blue Grass stakes, however, Whirlaway really was a beaten horse. The two came into the stretch on almost even terms. Whirlaway, on the outside, went fairly wide, but not far enough to ruin his chances. Moreover, his rival went nearly as wide. Then, in the stretch, Our Boots steadily drew away and was six lengths out in front, running easily, as he crossed the finish.

Whirlaway, of course, is a much better horse today than he was last spring at Keeneland, but the above occurrences simply remind race fans that he can be beaten. And there will be three or four horses in there trying to upset this 2 to 5 favorite.

The Fleet's In So—Mackinac Race Is Over

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 22 [Special].—Yachts which competed in the 34th annual Chicago-Mackinac race scattered today following the arrival of the last of the cruising division entries and the official closing of the event.

Breeze, Sumner W. D. Scott's cruising division winner, departed on a cruise, while Otto Dreher, whose Lively Lady took first honors in the universal division for the second straight year, started back home to Milwaukee.

Class winners were Warrior, Commodore Victor Milliken's 8 meter class racer in the A group of the universals, and Lively Lady in the B class. Batavia, last year's A class winner of the cruising craft, again won the race for Commodore Christen J. Peterson.

Ed Lumbard's Bangalore, sailed by John D. Kinzey, repeated its 1940 B class victory, but failed to retain the division honors by a margin of 2¼ hours. Bangalore was second on corrected time in the division. Batavia won the Old Timers cup for the second time, and Bangalore again won the Harbor Springs cup.

Duchess, smallest entry in the race in its second Mackinac race, placed first in D class to win the James O. Heyworth Memorial trophy.

The last six entries, Shadrach, Red Arrow, Keewaydin, Thunderhead, Nirvanna, and Nor-wester, finished tonight. Final standings:

REDSKINS LIKE TO RECALL THAT REVERSE OF '38

It Produced a Touchdown Against All-Stars.

[This is the seventh and last of a series of articles by professional and college coaches on spectacular scoring plays in Chicago All-Star games.]

BY RAY FLAHERTY.

[Head Football Coach Washington Redskins.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Do I hear hecklers as I join this select group in writing on successful scoring plays? Well, the Washington Redskins have recovered, thank you, after being ambushed by the Chicago Bears, 73 to 0, in the National Football league championship game last December and we're ready to tell you about one of our touchdown runs in the 1938 Chicago All-Star game against the College All-Americans, who were directed by Bo McMillin of Indiana university.

After George Halas' panzer divisions penetrated our lines in the first half of the title game we thought of only one way to dispose of the Bears. That would be to take them on a boat in Lake Michigan and scuttle it. However, we have new ideas now. If Halas and his troops survive the All-Star game on Aug. 28, we're confident of holding a little massacre in Wrigley field on Nov. 16. We have always believed that one who sets so many traps some day will fall into one himself. We hope it will occur when the Redskins play the Bears again.

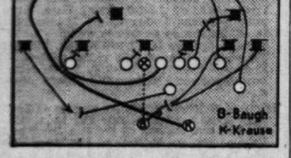
They Mean Business, Bears!

Sammy Baugh and his teammates will soon begin preparations for the 1941 National league campaign and they have their eyes set on the Bears. Sammy certainly would like to return to Soldiers' field. In his last appearance in Chicago's lake front area Baugh was not physically able to play for 60 minutes. We were forced to use two rookie passers, Dick Tuckey and George Karamatic, and each had a pass intercepted for touchdowns, which led to a 28 to 16 All-American victory.

Despite Baugh's injury, we felt we had a victory within our grasp during the first half, holding a lead of 10 to 3. However, in the second half everything went black for the Redskins. Phil Dougherty, Santa Clara center, grabbed one of Karamatic's tosses and ran forty yards to score in the third period. Andy Uram, Minnesota half back, took one of Tuckey's passes in the fourth quarter on the Washington 40 yard line and ran it back for a touchdown.

Redskins Earned This One.

The Redskins' first touchdown against the All-Stars was made the hard way. We started the drive on the All-American 36 yard line. Baugh passed twelve yards to Max Krause. On the next play Krause went thru center for four more yards. Baugh passed successfully again, this time to Charley Malone, who was stopped on the 6 yard line. Krause smashed thru the line again for four yards. Then came our special reverse play for the touchdown. The diagram follows:



Baugh, in the left half back position, received the ball from center, faked a spinner and handed it to Krause, at full back, who went between the defensive right end and right tackle for the touchdown. Wayne Millner, our left end, blocked the defensive right tackle, and Ernie Pinckert, quarter back, blocked out the defensive right end. Jim Karcher, Washington right guard, pulled out of the line to block the All-Star center.

YANKEES DEFEAT BOB FELLER AND CLEVELAND, 4 TO 3

New York, July 22 (AP).—The New York Yankees overpowered Bob Feller today and edged out the Cleveland Indians 4 to 3. Instead of gaining his 20th victory, Feller suffered his fifth defeat of the season.

It was New York's 35th triumph in the last 41 games and the 10th in 14 tussles with Cleveland this year. As a result the Yanks increased their first place margin to eight games.

In the second inning Joe Gordon smashed a terrific home run, his 16th of the year, into the third tier of the left field stands.

THREE AMATEUR BOXING SHOWS CARDED TONIGHT

Amateur boxing shows will be offered tonight in the West Suburban club, 61st court and Roosevelt road, and Northwest stadium, 4043 North Cicero avenue, and a professional wrestling card will be presented in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Johnny Coulon and Battling Nelson, former bantamweight and lightweight champions, respectively, will box an exhibition in an added feature to a series of amateur fights in Logansport, Ind., this evening.

BETTINA POUNDS OUT A DECISION OVER RED BURMAN

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 22 (AP).—The southpaw style of Mello Bettina was too puzzling for Red Burman to solve tonight and the former light-heavyweight champion punched out a 10 round decision before 10,167 in Ebbets field. The gross gate was announced as $20,409.

Both fighters fell out of the ring in the fourth round and in the eighth Burman, unable to do anything using an orthodox stance, switched to a southpaw style and for a few minutes had Mello on the run. Burman twice was staggered by Bettina's lefts.

Yale Club Will Hold Its Outing at Onwentsia

The Yale Club of Chicago will hold its outing Friday at the Onwentsia club, with the day's program to feature golf, baseball, tennis, and swimming. The golf card will be highlighted by a team match between the Yale Club of Wisconsin and the Chicago club, the Wisconsin team to be led by Herbert Kohler of Kohler, Wis., and the Chicago team by Dexter Cummings.

GREENBERG WINS FROM GENE MAKO AT SEA BRIGHT

Sea Bright, N. J., July 22 [Special].—Maybe it's the salt air here at Sea Bright that does things to Seymour Greenberg's tennis. Last year the steady Chicago youngster jumped into the national tennis picture by beating Bryan Grant of Atlanta, Ga., and today he scored another upset by eliminating Gene Mako of Los Angeles, Cal., 6-2, 6-3, in a second round match.

Zale, Harris Meet Tonight at Stadium

BY FRANK MASTRO.

World Middleweight Champion Tony Zale will meet Ossie [Bulldog] Harris of Pittsburgh in a 10 round nonchampionship bout in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena tonight. It will be the Gary boxer's fifth appearance in an overweight contest since he dethroned Al Hostak in Seattle, Wash., a year ago.

Zale won three of these tuneup encounters and lost one. In his debut as champion, Tony was defeated by Billy Soose on the west side last Aug. 21 after having Soose on the verge of a knockout in the first two rounds.

Beats Other Stars.

Zale's nontitle victims were Fred Apostoli, Tony [Ciancicola] Martin, and Steve Mamakos. Tony also has successfully defended his championship twice, scoring knockouts in rematches with Mamakos and Hostak.

Fans who saw Harris beat the clever Nate Bolden in a previous Chicago start believe the 23 year old Pennsylvanian may score an upset.

Vigh vs. Martin.

The card also includes a 10 round semi-windup between Ernie Vigh, hard hitting New York middleweight, and Martin, the Milwaukee challenger, who scared Zale's followers before losing to the champion in that adventure in Milwaukee.

In a 10 round preliminary, Pete Lello, lightweight, also of Gary, will be opposed by Georgie Toy, Chinese fighter from Cleveland. If victorious Lello will be matched with Lenny Mancini in Promoter William R. Rand's next Stadium presentation Aug. 6. Six round events will bring together Matt Dougherty, Milwaukee junior welterweight, and Gene Ward, and Freddy Bey, welterweight stablemate of Harris, and Jackie Cooper.

In the event of rain tonight, the card will be moved into the Stadium.

Evert Brothers Move Ahead in State Tennis

The Evert brothers of Chicago, Jimmy and Jerry, took over the Illinois state tennis tournament yesterday. Jerry, who is playing his first year in the junior ranks, sprang the big upset by eliminating Bobby Jake of Milwaukee, Wis., seeded No. 6, 6-2, 6-3.

And Brother Jimmy, the national indoor junior champion who last week won the eastern junior title, made a successful debut in the men's singles by whipping Clayton Olson of Chicago, 6-2, 6-4. Jimmy is seeded No. 3 in the men's section, and is a cofavorite, with Gardner Larned of Chicago, to win the junior tournament.

MEN'S SINGLES.

First Round.

WILDERNESS HAS NOT DISAPPEARED AT BAIE COMEAU

Still Lakes and Rivers That Are Uncharted.

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAIE COMEAU, Que., July 22.—A brook trout fisherman always is looking for a wilderness area where the fish are abundant and rarely, if ever, see an artificial fly. For this the sportsman and the outdoorsman who loves to penetrate silent timbered areas so wild that all the lakes and streams haven't been charted or named, the many square miles of black spruce forest and the waters above this town are the last word in outdoor fun.

Extending northward from modern, smart Baie Comeau, founded and built by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News as one of the centers for the production of paper, is a tract of forest containing about 2,215 square miles of rough broken country dissected by so many rivers and lakes that no accurate count of them has been possible.

Really Rough Country.

To add to the beauty of this superb wilderness setting are the granite highlands towering 300 and 400 feet above the water courses and lakes, for this is what the loggers call a "rough" country where the black spruce trees [used in the making of newsprint] and the white birches march up and down steep rocky hills to thrust their graceful silhouettes against the sky.

Last night H. A. Sewell, woods manager in this great tract of spruce forest, took us a short distance into the woods above Baie Comeau, where we could see how the French woodsmen under his direction are working in the forest and thrusting a modern road into back country—a road that stands as a sort of symbol of man's dominance over the wilderness. The road leads us thru the rocky highlands, past small lakes covered with short spruce logs which are on their way to be printed newspapers, thru cool, shady gorges between the hills, and over elevations where we could catch glimpses of lakes nestling among white trunked birch trees and masses of black spruces.

Road Only Spearhead.

The road on which we traveled is the only spearhead reaching northward toward the upper limits of this spruce forest. Above the approximately 30 miles of automobile road already built, it's country of paddle and portage, of little known lakes and noisy trout streams, of unsophisticated fish that have yet to see a trout fly or a flashing spoon lure.

Last night we had little time for fishing, for it was late when we reached a little sawmill camp on beautiful Horseshoe lake, where a canoe was waiting for us. But fishing had to play second fiddle to the wilderness setting in which we found ourself. Good natured French guides squatting in the stern of the canoes, wielding their paddles and laughing and chattering as we slipped along over the smooth surface of the lake . . . the calm and peacefulness of Horseshoe broken only by the occasional call of a white throated sparrow . . . and high above us the setting sun . . . these were for the moment far more intriguing than a dry fly.

LIMA PRESIDENT DIES.

Toledo, O., July 22 [Special].—Roy E. Bowersock, president of the Lima baseball club of the Ohio State league, died today.

GREEN SIGNS 50 MORE BILLS AND KILLS 18 OTHERS

Toll Superhighway Plan Receives Approval.

Springfield, Ill., July 22 (AP).—Signing 50 legislative bills and vetoing 18 others, Gov. Dwight Green today approached the end of his task of passing on the 450 measures which the legislature left on his desk when it adjourned three weeks ago.

Approved were bills creating a Cook county toll superhighway authority and legislation revising the system for paroling youthful inmates of the state training school for boys at St. Charles. In the future, paroles will be granted by a board composed of the heads of five youth correction divisions in the state welfare department, rather than by the managing officer of the institution.

Signed by the governor also were the public school teachers' tenure bill, providing dismissals for cause only, and a bill aimed at abolishing small rural schools by denying state aid to those with less than seven pupils after July 1, 1943.

Parking Lot Bill Vetoed.

Major bills vetoed were two which would have permitted Chicago and downstate cities to acquire and operate municipal parking lots, and a measure to authorize a 4 million dollar nonreferendum bond issue by the Chicago sanitary district for operation of garbage disposal plants.

The Chicago parking lot bill would have permitted the city to operate such lots near the Municipal airport, while the second bill, affecting downstate cities, would have permitted municipal lots to be established anywhere inside the city limits. Gov. Green vetoed both measures on the ground they infringed on private enterprise.

Bills Sponsored by Ward.

In vetoing the sanitary district bond issue measure, the governor held the city of Chicago was obligated to make provision for this service out of its own funds.

The parking lot and sanitary district bond issue bills originally were sponsored by Senator Harold G. Ward, senate Democratic leader and recognized legislative spokesman for Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Other bills vetoed by Gov. Green included two companion measures of the previously-vetoed handbook licensing bill, another that would have denied barbers' licenses to aliens, and legislation under which the state would have licensed and regulated used car dealers.

MOTOR CAR KILLS BOY, 9, WALKING ALONG A HIGHWAY

A 9 year old Joliet boy was killed by an automobile yesterday as he walked along the highway near Broadway and Rose street in Joliet. The victim was Nicholas Pastori, 2400 Cora street. Charles Sasso of 1920 South Chicago street, Joliet, was the driver of the car.

Two persons were injured seriously yesterday when a truck skidded on wet street car tracks and overturned in front of 5033 West Chicago avenue. Firemen worked for 40 minutes with hacksaws and crowbars to extricate the victims from the wreckage. Those injured were George Arden, 49, of 8341 South Morgan street, driver of the truck; and Edward Blank, 14, of 7104 South Peoria street, a helper. Both were taken to St. Anne's hospital.

A Negro couple, Bennett G. Gray, 59, and his wife, Marian, 58, of 4925 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, died in an automobile collision near Grand Junction, Mich., yesterday.

Miss Marie Johnson, 18, of 1128 George street, Chicago, died Monday night in Deaconess hospital at Lincoln, Ill., from injuries received Saturday in a collision near Lincoln.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 525 persons had died in Cook county traffic accidents since Jan. 1. Of these, 369 were killed in Chicago, where 13,511 were injured during the same period.

CHARLES PENCE, 55, DIES; HEAD OF SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Charles Edgar Pence, headmaster of the Harvard School for Boys at 4731 Ellis avenue, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital after an illness of several months. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Pence had been at the school since 1912, when he became a teacher of classical languages there. A few years later he succeeded the late John J. Schobinger as headmaster. His home was at 2337 West 108th place.

He leaves his widow, Mary Elizabeth; three daughters, Mary Elizabeth, Nancy Ann, and Mrs. Lionel Andrews; a son, Charles Edgar Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pence, and a sister, Miss Anna Grace Pence. Services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Morgan Park Baptist church. Burial will be in King City, Mo., Mr. Pence's birthplace, on Friday.

Woman Held in Theft of $500 from Visitor

Miss Margaret Thompson, 24 years old, was held to the grand jury in bond of $5,000 by Judge John T. Zuris in Felony court yesterday on a charge of stealing $500 from Willis Hanlin, Rock Island, Ill., jeweler. Hanlin said he had drinks with the woman in a loop hotel last July 11, that he fell asleep and when he awoke the money and Miss Thompson were gone. Miss Thompson, who lives at 104 East Walton street, denied the charge.

CHURCH MAY TRY FOR SENATE SEAT AGAIN NEXT YEAR

Ex-Congressman Seen as Brooks' Rival.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Former Congressman Ralph E. Church was reported yesterday to be surveying the senatorial field and may decide to run a second time against Senator Wayland Brooks, who defeated him decisively for the nomination last year.

At his Chicago law office Church was wary of making a commitment. "I'm just practicing law," he said, but he added, with emphasis, "for the present."

Asked about recent trips downstate, during which he visited the legislature for a few days, renewing acquaintances, the former Evanston congressman said: "I was going around making visits which have been denied me for the last few years."

Three Terms in Congress.

Church left congress last January after serving three terms during which he set up a record for attendance and attracted attention by his work on the naval affairs committee. He is a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve.

Some Republican leaders were inclined to think that Church will make the senatorial race in the 1942 primary. He has been discussing the situation with them both in Cook county and downstate, they said, as well as looking over his own congressional district, the 10th, now represented by George A. Paddock of Evanston.

Senator Brooks is believed a certainty to run for a full term in 1942, and seems assured of support from Gov. Dwight H. Green, with whom he campaigned to victory last November. The governor has repeatedly let it be known that he is for Brooks wholeheartedly, altho he has not yet made a public announcement to that effect.

Results of 1940 Primary.

Brooks defeated Church by almost 200,000 votes in the 1940 primary, poling 618,857 to 419,315 for his opponent.

If Church decides to stay out of the senatorial race and try to regain his old seat in the house, he would have opposition from his predecessor, James Simpson Jr., who said yesterday that he was for Paddock "100 per cent."

On the Democratic side, the talk was still strong for State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney for the senate. No other potential candidates have received much attention in the early discussions, leaders said.

FIRST SECTIONAL MUSIC FESTIVAL WILL BE TONIGHT

Lakeview Event to Have 300 Performers.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The first of a series of three Chicago sectional preliminary music festivals held in connection with The Chicago Tribune's 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldier's field on Saturday night, Aug. 16, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the air-conditioned banquet hall of the Lincoln-Belmont YMCA, 3333 North Marshfield avenue. It will be the second annual Lakeview Community Council Music and Cherry Festival.

Those in attendance not only will be rewarded with two hours of splendid entertainment but also will have included in their 50 cents admission fee refreshments of cherry pie, cake, ice cream, and soft drinks.

300 Will Take Part.

More than 300 will participate in the program. Harry Starr, secretary and treasurer of the council, and Miss Ruth V. Peterson, choral director, are co-chairmen of the affair. Harold E. Giroux is president and George W. Dunne vice president of the council. The Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Chicago, is a member of the council's board of directors.

The second Chicago sectional festival will be the Greater South Side Music festival, sponsored by the Greater South Side Four Arts league, to be held Friday night, Aug. 8, in Jackson park. The third, the Greater West Side Civic Music festival will be held on Sunday night, Aug. 10, in Garfield park.

Feature Events Tonight.

The address of welcome will be given tonight by Mr. Giroux and the posting of colors by Lakeview post of the American Legion. Leo Lerner, editor of the Lincoln Belmont Booster, will speak briefly. Features of the concert will include numbers by a massed chorus of Parent-Teacher association members, directed by Ann Post Bergh; dancing groups, Hawaiian and accordion bands, a musical review by children from the Chicago Academy of Theatre Arts, and a pageant "My Country 'Tis of Thee," presented by the Hamilton PTA chorus, led by Villa Boaz.

A cherry queen will be selected and she will be introduced by John Fleming, north side department store manager.

POSTPONE FCC RADIO DECREES UNTIL SEPT. 16

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—The effective date of the new broadcasting regulations freeing individual radio stations from network domination was postponed today by the federal communications commission from July 30 to Sept. 16. It was explained that the extra time was allowed for further discussion of the practical application of the regulations and to enable the networks to make final arrangements for complying.

The postponement was requested by National Broadcasting company and Columbia Broadcasting system representatives without opposition by the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Thru the regulations, it was said, the whole field of radio will be opened to free competition, at the same time benefiting network operation. The rules have been termed a "magna charta" for American broadcasting stations.

NO 'STRIKE,' BUT JUST A PERIOD OF COOLING OFF

Yesterday's heat wave gave rise to a rumor that employés at the Snow White laundry, 1236 South Pulaski road, were on strike. This was incorrect.

It is true that about 70 employés were sitting idly outside the plant in the middle of what would normally have been a busy afternoon, but Ben Fishbain, the owner, had a simple explanation:

"It was hot. So I said to them: 'Take an hour and fifteen minutes' vacation. Go outside and cool off.' And they did."

He added that it was a vacation with pay.

George L. Helmstadter, 44, Dies; Railway Executive

George L. Helmstadter of 619 Central avenue, Wilmette, general passenger agent of the Chicago and North Western railway, died of heart disease yesterday in a hotel at Lake Louise, Canada, where he and his family had gone on a vacation. He was 44 years old. Mr. Helmstadter began his service with the North Western as a clerk in the New York City office in 1920. He served as a city agent and traveling agent there, then as general agent in Cincinnati, O., and was made general passenger agent in 1936. He was a veteran of the World war. His widow, a daughter, and a son survive.

Approve Purchase of 30 Police Radios for $1,785

Purchase of 30 police squad car two way radio receiving sets at a cost of $1,785 was recommended yesterday by the city council finance committee. Ald. James B. EDISON-HAGUE BATTLE SPLITS JERSEY CHIEFS

Governor Bests Mayor on Rail Tax Bills.

Trenton, N. J., July 22 (AP).—Democratic leadership in New Jersey split today, seven weeks before the primary, when Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, for years the state leader, and Charles Edison, newly risen to power as governor, engaged in a verbal slugfest.

Frank Hague [top] and Charles Edison.

The issue which brought Hague, the Democratic national vice chairman, and Edison, the former navy secretary, into conflict was passage by the legislature after a 19 hour battle of four bills to compromise 52 million dollars in delinquent railroad taxes and penalties.

Mayor Hague had made the measures the target a vitriolic attack. With Edison's blessing, however, they squeaked thru the general assembly with two votes to spare, and then thru the senate with one vote more than a majority.

Democrats Defy Hague.

The bills would have passed neither Republican controled house except for five Democrats who defied Hague.

Hardly had the lawmakers reached their beds when the mayor issued from his Jersey City office a statement echoing a charge made by Assemblyman Peter P. Artaserse, leader of the Hague delegation from Hudson county, that Edison had bartered a judgeship to get the needed Democratic votes.

Hague said he would ask the electorate next November to choose lawmakers pledged to repeal the bills and investigate every legislator who voted for "this sellout." An entire assembly and one-third of the senate will be elected in November.

Edison Issues Reply.

Edison in a reply dictated from his summer cottage at Sea Girt charged Hague sought his political ruin because the governor, by a nonpolitical appointment to the Supreme court, made "public proclamation that Hague was no longer free to carry on his attempts to exert control over the high courts of New Jersey."

Edison added that the sooner Hague is stripped of power the better it will be for New Jersey.

Under the bills awaiting Edison's signature the railroads will pay over a period of years 34 million dollars in back taxes while the state will cancel 18 millions in interest and penalties and reduce future interest from 12 per cent to 3 per cent a year.

Hague says Jersey City will lose 17 million dollars in rail revenues under the plan and the state will lose 121 million in 20 years. Backers say prosperous railroads will pay more than ever before.

Cleaning Plant Appeals Order to Remain Closed

Attorneys for Gaines Dry Cleaners, Inc., filed notice of appeal yesterday from an order of Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe denying the corporation an injunction to prevent the city from keeping the premises at 4631 Cottage Grove avenue closed. The plant formerly was operated as the Klever Shampay cleaners and was owned partly by Murray Humphreys, the one time Capone gangster, according to State's Attorney Courtney.

MILWAUKEE AVE. BUILDING HIT BY 4-11 ALARM FIRE

The second fire in two weeks in an abandoned three story brick factory building at 736 Milwaukee avenue caused damage yesterday estimated by Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan at $10,000. A 4-11 alarm brought more than 30 pieces of apparatus to the scene. Firemen worked under difficulty because the street is still torn up from subway excavation.

Fireman Charles Mackin, 39 years old, of Engine company 4, was treated at Alexian Brothers hospital for a contusion on the right leg suffered when a length of hose he was holding broke from his grasp.

Because the building is being dismantled, all firemen were ordered out of it for fear that the walls might collapse. The blaze was blamed on sparks from an acetylene torch in the hands of a workman. The previous fire, also started by sparks, caused $2,000 damage.

The building was occupied until two months ago by Rusetos & Co., ice cream manufacturers.

ASKS QUICK OIL PIPE LINE JOB TO SUPPLY EAST

Ickes Favors Route Thru Illinois.

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—Acting to prevent the possibility of a long oil shortage in the east, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes recommended to the petroleum industry today that it build immediately a $70,000,000 pipe line system and construct 50 large high-speed oil tankers.

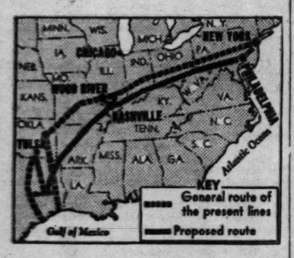
The line, which would have a daily capacity of 250,000 barrels, would funnel crude oil from the east Texas and mid-continent fields to refineries in the Philadelphia and New York areas. Officials said it would be the largest pipe line system in the world.

Ickes, who is defense petroleum coordinator, said representatives of large oil companies had expressed a willingness to construct the system jointly.

Congress Votes Authority.

His action followed final congressional approval of legislation authorizing construction of interstate pipe lines, with rights-of-way obtainable by condemnation proceedings.

He also urged the industry to consider "the question of constructing a petroleum products line from the gulf to the Atlantic seaboard." Such a line would carry refined gasoline and possibly fuel oil.



Map shows route of proposed new oil pipe line.

Ickes recently called upon consumers in 16 eastern states and the District of Columbia to cut gasoline consumption. He said that the proposed pipe line could not be constructed in less than eight months, and therefore could not be a factor immediately relieving the threatened oil scarcity.

The oil emergency in the east was precipitated by transfer of one-fifth of the American coast-wise oil tanker fleet to British service.

Outlines Probable Route.

With major petroleum companies differing on the route and type of line, Ickes recommended that it originate in the east Texas fields and run as a 20-inch line to a point in Illinois east of St. Louis, probably Nashville, Ill.

This line would have a daily capacity of 200,000 barrels. At Nashville it would connect with a 16-inch line originating at Wood River, Ill., where other lines from the mid-continent and Texas fields now terminate. The proposed 16-inch line would have a maximum capacity of 115,000 barrels daily.

At the junction of these two lines, a 24-inch crude oil pipe line, with a daily capacity of 250,000 barrels, would be constructed extending to the Atlantic coast—terminating in the Philadelphia-New York refining areas.

Lines to Press Pleas for 250 Air Transports

Washington, D. C., July 22 [Special].—Far from retreating in their fight to prevent the administration from taking more of their air liners for British service, the country's 19 domestic air lines are prepared to demand priorities for at least 250 new commercial planes of large size for delivery to them during the last quarter of 1942 and the first quarter of 1943, it was learned today.

Notice that the demand will be made already has been served upon the Office of Production Management, which has authority over the numbers and types of airplanes to be built in this country. A hearing may be called at any time, and strong support for the lines is developing in congress, the navy, the civil aeronautics board, and virtually every department except the army.

Two Points Are Stressed.

This support is based on the following points raised by air line presidents and by the Air Transport association—the air lines' trade association:

1. With the same number of airplanes that they possessed at the end of 1940—about 350 in all—the air lines today are being asked to carry 35 per cent more passengers, 40 per cent more express, and 30 per cent more mail. Most of this traffic is, one way or another, connected with the nation's armament program.

2. There is a world shortage of transport planes and the United States army must depend upon the air lines' equipment to move troops to any point in the western hemisphere where they may be needed in an emergency. Any further reduction in the number of commercial transport planes places the country in jeopardy, and a rapid increase in the total number of transports available should immediately be made.

[Air line officials revealed in New York last night that they would not be required to turn over to the British government the last half of the 24 transport planes due for transfer to England on Aug. 1. Twelve transports were turned over to the government for Britain's use by the air lines on July 1. Air line officials revealed their gratification at the prospect at not having to cut their air fleets further. To date, it was said, they have released 103 of their planes to the British for war service.]

Keyed to Arms Program.

A spokesman for the air lines who insisted on anonymity amplified these points:

"Air line traffic now is made up largely of business executives, and men who are trying to key their production to the government's demands. There are so many such travelers that the lines constantly turn down hundreds of persons.

"The lines also are being asked to carry large numbers of ferry pilots who fly bombers and pursuit planes from west coast factories to points on the eastern seaboard, where they are flown on or shipped to England. These pilots all have excess baggage—their portable radio equipment that is taken out and returned with them to the factories—and this necessitates a reduction in westbound passenger and mail loads.

"Finally the situation in air traffic already has reached the point where men and companies asked to give up their own transport planes to Britain are refusing to do so because they cannot get seats on the regular transport schedules."

Expect Increase in 1943.

This spokesman said that the air lines will have to take their chances with the military services, with the British, the Dutch, and the Chinese in asking for their new transports. He said that the OPM probably will order a larger proportion of transport planes constructed for 1943 than in any prior year of the air arms expansion period because so many different interests are demanding them.

He said the British were warned as long as a year and a half ago that if they wanted transport planes they should order them. The orders were not placed, but the British now are pressing demands for transport type planes to carry troops, cargo, and their transoceanic ferry pilots.

Our own army was almost equally slow in ordering transports, this spokesman declared. For any swift troop movements to Alaska, to our island bases, to the Canal Zone, Brazil, Hawaii, or elsewhere the army must depend on commandeering commercial fleets in the nation, he said.

Reports Big German Fleet.

"We understand the Germans have more than 5,000 Junkers Ju-52 trimotored transports attached to each of their five air armies," he said. "This country needs about the same number."

The house of representatives committee investigating air line accidents is studying the productive capacity of west coast aircraft manufacturers with a view to recommending an immediate increase in transport production, it was learned. The committee was represented as prepared to make a strong plea for the air lines before the OPM.

12 CENT 'L' FARE PLEA SUSPENDED UNTIL DECEMBER

Chicagoans were assured yesterday that the present 10 cent fare on the elevated lines will remain in force at least until Dec. 15. The Illinois Commerce commission, meeting in Springfield, suspended until that date the 12 cent "L" fare sought by the Chicago Rapid Transit company.

The commission set a hearing for Sept. 9 on the proposed rate schedule, filed last week, which would increase all classes of rates by an average of 20 per cent. The new rates would have gone into effect Aug. 18 if the suspension had not been ordered.

The commission, under the law, can suspend the elevated lines' proposed schedule for another six months after Dec. 15, if it has not completed hearings and hence is not ready to make a ruling.

M'CANN SENTENCED TO 6 YEARS IN JAIL ON MAIL FRAUD CHARGES

New York, July 22 (AP).—Gene McCann who once lost a $45,000,000 suit against the New York Stock exchange and more than 600 bankers and brokers whom he charged with restraint of trade, was convicted today of mail fraud. He was sentenced to six years' imprisonment and fined $600 by Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis.

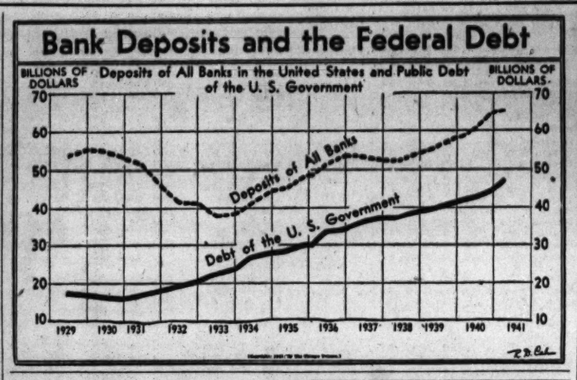
His own lawyer during the trial, the 46 year old McCann sought in vain to call as witnesses the grand jurors who indicted him, Postmaster General Frank Walker, United States Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, Financier Thomas W. Lamont, and members of the federal district attorney's office.

McCann was charged with using the mails to defraud in preparing stock prospectuses for filing with the Securities and Exchange commission. Judge Otis commented that the defendant had assured various persons that certain rich widows in Westchester county were ready to invest upon his recommendation.

CHICAGO FIRM GETS 100,000TH CAR OF PRODUCE

Chicago's position as the "nation's gateway" in the distribution of fresh fruits and vegetables was emphasized yesterday when the L. Gillarde company, 79 South Water market, received its 100,000th car from the nation's producing centers. It has taken the company 16 years to amass this total, but currently it is handling around 10,000 cars a year.

Department of agriculture officials said 127,823 cars of fresh fruits and vegetables came into Chicago in 1940. Of this total 84,000 were unloaded and the remainder shipped to eastern centers. The 100,000th car of the L. Gillarde company contained "iceberg" head lettuce shipped from Salinas, Cal., and was resold to a firm in Buffalo, N. Y.



Car Output Cut Just a Shift of Labor—F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—The proposed 50 per cent cut in automobile and refrigerator production, President Roosevelt told a press conference today, means substitution, not curtailment of work.

The President's views were made known in the midst of growing concern among automobile workers over the possibility of widespread job dislocation if consumer goods machinery is shifted over to production of such military items as airplanes and engines.

The President said that the process of cutting production on such things as automobiles and refrigerators involved not the cutting off of manufacturing, but the production of something else in the same plants with the same men and machines.

Workers Protest Slash.

A 50 per cent cut in automobile and refrigerator production was proposed by Leon Henderson, government price administrator.

Coincident with the White House press conference, a delegation of CIO's United Auto Workers from the Hudson, Packard, Studebaker, Willys-Overland, and Nash-Kelvinator companies issued a statement voicing concern over the effect of a cut on automobile industry employment.

"We are acutely concerned over the proposed percentage reductions in making automobiles," the union men said.

May Bankrupt Companies.

"We are convinced that if anything like the reductions that are being talked about now are put thru, the result will be bankruptcy for the independent producers. The effect on relief costs and the morale of our communities will be disastrous."

The proposed cut in motor car production, the delegation declared, should not be put into effect in any plant until plans are worked out for the transfer of the plant and its employés to armament work.

The President said the change would be gradual and that the Office of Production Management and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply were working on the problem.

EXPORT-IMPORT LOANS TO LATIN NATIONS RAISED

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, today announced new Export-Import bank loans to Colombia and Chile.

In the case of Chile, he said, $10,000,000 was added to a previous $12,000,000 credit to the Fomento corporation for purchases in the United States. A $6,000,000 credit to the Colombian government was raised to $12,000,000 to finance public works and industrial improvements.

REARMING CARRIES 19 DAY U. S. SPENDING ABOVE BILLION MARK

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—The government spent more than a billion dollars in the first 19 days of the new fiscal year which began July 1. The treasury disclosed today that spending during the period aggregated $1,018,609,659, or nearly double the $561,344,521 in the similar 1940 period.

Armament accounted for $582,301,735 of the cost in the 19 days, compared with $105,396,369 a year ago, and was nearly equal to the aggregate of the first three months of the last fiscal year.

So far this month, military expenditures have been running slightly over $30,000,000 a day. If this average holds, the total for July will exceed $900,000,000, against $177,325,479 a year ago. The record month, so far, was $836,606,782 in May.

Federal revenues, increasing by a smaller proportion, were $267,365,311 in the 19 days, leaving a deficit of $751,244,348. In the similar period last year revenues were $221,177,173 and the deficit $340,167,348.

Rising to record heights every day, the federal debt was $49,269,033,197.

FARM DELEGATES OPPOSE WHEAT PROGRAM CHANGE

Urbana, Ill., July 22 (AP).—Midwest farm bureau training school delegates adopted a resolution today urging congress not to amend the wheat program. The 654 bureau delegates from 11 states particularly opposed proposals to provide exemption for feeding to livestock wheat grown on acreage in excess of federal allotments.

Edward A. O'Neal.

The delegates acted after Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, read a telegram from his Washington, D. C., office reporting "an alarming congressional trend in favor of feeding amendments."

O'Neal advocated the stabilization of industrial prices and wages "to prevent undue inflation." He estimated that American farm income during 1941 will be increased at least 1½ billion dollars, asserting:

"That will mean that farmers will have virtual equality of purchasing power with other groups for the first time in more than 20 years."

Australia Sheep Census Shows All-Time Record

CANBERRA, Australia, July 22.—A census report today showed that Australia has 123 million sheep, an all time record and the largest for any country. The next wool clip is estimated at 3,590,000 bales of about 300 pounds each for a total value of more than 60 million pounds in Australian money.

Agree on Steel for Grain Bins; Talk of Loan Hike Stirs Market

Storage Need Told

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—Representative Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.], chairman of a congressional delegation seeking storage facilities for a bumper wheat crop, today said that government administrative officials had agreed that priority should be given for 16,000 tons of galvanized steel for construction of farm storage facilities.

Mundt declared there was a need for 24 million bushels of additional storage facilities.

Confers with OPM Aids.

His statement followed conferences with representatives of the department of agriculture, the Office of Production Management, the Commodity Credit corporation, and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Mundt said John B. Smiley, OPACS representative, told the group he would have to consult with his superiors to be certain the 16,000 tons of steel could be supplied for use with 1,600 tons of zinc, needed to make black sheet steel into galvanized steel.

"He indicated there would be no difficulty on that score," Mundt said.

CARS AWAIT UNLOADING.

More than 600 cars of wheat were reported sitting on railroad sidings in Chicago last night waiting to be unloaded. Several grain elevator operators reported handling of the wheat had been impeded by a large number of cars of government owned corn requiring attention.

The government grain storage committee's weekly report issued last night showed space for 16,480,000 bushels of wheat in Chicago. Little of this space will be available for the storage of loan wheat, however, the committee said.

Senate Action Eyed

Reports that a senate committee was tinkering with the so called "parity" prices and that there was a chance of a higher loan on basic agricultural products attracted widespread attention from grain traders yesterday. Wheat futures fluctuated rapidly within a narrow range and closed at gains of ¼ to ½ cent.

Operations in corn were light with futures finishing ⅛ cent lower to ½ cent higher. Oats advanced ⅛ to ¾ cent, the former on July. Soy beans were active with July closing ¾ cent higher and the deferred months ¼ to ½ cent lower.

Storage Situation Unchanged.

Hedging pressure on the wheat market has slackened considerably in the last few days, brokers said. Little improvement was reported in the local storage space situation, and cash grain interests were said to have practically ceased buying carlots of wheat in the spot market.

Minneapolis received its first car of new spring wheat of the season yesterday, from Menno, S. D. If weather continues favorable, comparatively large receipts are expected in the northwest by the end of the month.

Heat Cuts Canadian Outlook.

Recent hot and dry weather in the three western Canadian provinces was estimated by Winnipeg interests to have curtailed the prospective yield of wheat 25 million bushels or more. The Winnipeg market, however, closed ½ cent lower.

Trading in July grain, soy bean and lard futures will cease at the close of business today. Trading will begin in soy beans for March, 1942, delivery. This is the first time that the March futures has been traded on the exchange.

PLAN SHIFTING RAIL EMPLOYES TO ARMS JOBS

Need 100,000 in Ship and Plane Plants.

Railroad and labor representatives conferred yesterday in the Union station on a government request for the transfer of 100,000 skilled maintenance workers to rearmament industries.

The meeting was arranged at the request of Eli L. Oliver, labor advisor to the Office of Production Management, who asked for the shifting of as many railway men as can be spared to shipbuilding and aircraft production.

Coincident with the conference, Sidney Hillman, associate OPM director, appealed to the railroads and their employés' unions from Washington, D. C., for "critically needed" skilled workmen.

Additional Men Needed.

He said new surveys indicated aircraft factory personnel must be increased to 1,000,000 from 200,000 at present, and that shipbuilding will require a boost from the current 375,000 workers to 555,600 by July, 1942.

Railroads have on their pay rolls more than 400,000 maintenance workers, including machinists, welders and electricians, Hillman said, and such workmen are needed in rearmament. Railroad officials said such a transfer would be entirely voluntary.

[In Washington it was understood that Ralph Budd, defense transportation commissioner, had expressed his "sternest opposition" to the Hillman proposal to divert railway shop workers to key rearmament industries Budd's position was said to be that the railroads cannot now sacrifice man power, that their part in preparedness is as vital as that of any other industry, and that the Hillman plan as a result threatens the transportation structure during the emergency.]

Oliver said the transfer problem involves the availability of men having the skills required and the possibility of releasing them. He said the conference was "exploratory," with other meetings to precede joint management and labor action for making the labor supply available.

Both groups were "greatly interested" and pledged coöperation, Oliver said.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and Bert M. Jewell, president of the railway employés' department of the American Federation of Labor, were among those at the conference.

FINE MAGNESIUM FIRMS $76,500 IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

New York, July 22 (AP).—Fines totaling $76,500 were assessed in Federal court today against four corporations, including one concern in Germany, and seven individuals, who pleaded nolo contendere to an indictment charging violations of the anti-trust laws in the production and sale of magnesite and magnesite bricks, used for furnaces in steel and copper mills.

Judge Louie W. Strum, of Florida, temporarily sitting here, imposed the following fines:

Harbison-Walker Refractories company, Pittsburgh, $15,000; General Refractories company, Philadelphia, $15,000; American-Austrian Magnesite corporation, Pittsburgh, $12,500; Austrian Magnesite Company, Lt., of Germany, a wholly owned subsidiary of American-Austrian Maghesite, $12,500.

Individuals and their fines were: P. B. Mossman, vice president, $5,000; W. B. Couille, general sales manager, $3,500, and P. R. Hilleman, secretary, $1,500, all of Harbison-Walker; F. L. Greene, president, $5,000; E. P. Heuer, vice president, $3,500; L. Y. Greene, vice president, $1,500, and N. G. Myrelius, secretary and treasurer, $1,500, all of General Refractories.

RECORD TAX BILL WILL BE BEFORE HOUSE MONDAY

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—Virtually completing formal ratification of individual provisions in the record 3 billion 504 million dollar new revenue bill, the house ways and means committee disclosed today it planned to bring the measure up for house debate next Monday.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] said a special rule would be sought to prohibit all but committee approved amendments to the bill once it reached the floor. He expects general debate to start Tuesday.

The committee disclosed it had voted to make permanent current excise taxes which have been in effect on a temporary basis since 1932, including the federal tax of one and one-half cents a gallon on gasoline. It agreed to reduce proposed increases in the excise taxes on wines, cordials and liqueurs.

PREDICT ACTION ON N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE PLAN

New York, July 22 (AP).—Action on the final steps in the administrative reorganization of the New York Stock exchange is expected by many to be taken at tomorrow's meeting of the board of governors.

The proposed plan would call for a reduction in the size of the board of governors, abolition of the standing committee system, the granting of wider powers of administration to the salaried staff, and a rewriting of the constitution in simplified form. There are 32 governors.

The exchange received notice that Paul V. Shields, a leader in the exchange reform movement since its inception in 1936, would resign from the board of governors and other executive posts.

Loan of 425 Millions to Britain; U. S. to Buy Russian Materials

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—Two additional steps for aiding the embattled "democracies" of Great Britain and Communist Russia were taken today by the administration. These were a loan of 425 million dollars to Britain and an offer to buy substantial quantities of Russian materials.

Both were announced by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, whose lending agencies are the instruments by which the deals will be handled.

The 425 million dollar RFC loan to the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland will be used to pay for war purchases in the United States prior to passage of the lend-lease act last spring. Since this act became effective the British have obtained war materials in this country thru credit.

Seven Billions Nearly Gone.

Altho the act was titled "lend-lease," no financial arrangements have been made yet by President Roosevelt for repayment. At a recent press conference he said such arrangements still are under study. The first seven billion dollar allotment for lend-lease aid is just about exhausted and a new request for funds is expected soon.

The British parliament must approve the loan.

Jones said the loan was made to provide the British with dollar exchange—to pay the old bills—without disposing of British held assets in the United States at forced sale. British investments in the United States have been estimated conservatively at more than one billion dollars—including 800 millions in direct investments and 400 millions in marketable securities.

Required to Post Collateral.

As part of the loan arrangement the British are required to post collateral, the value which the RFC estimated at 500 million dollars. This includes securities of corporations listed on the New York stock exchange valued at 205 million dollars [present quoted prices], 115 millions in unlisted securities of American corporations, and capital stock of 41 British owned United States insurance companies estimated to have an aggregate net worth of more than 180 millions.

In addition, the British will assign to the RFC the earnings of the United States branches of the 41 British insurance companies.

This income will be applied to the payment of interest and principal of the loan and should amortize the loan in the 15 years until maturity. Interest on the loan will be 3 per cent annually.

U. S. to Buy Russian Ore.

Concerning the Russians, Jones told a press conference this government is prepared to buy substantial quantities of strategic materials, such as manganese and chrome ore, from the Reds in order to give them dollar exchange in the United States with which to purchase war materials and supplies.

He said the offer to purchase Russian materials developed from discussions with representatives of the soviet government who are anxious to obtain military supplies in the United States. "They have a good supply of cash," Jones said in explaining that they had not requested a loan yet.

London 'Delighted'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 22.—City financial circles, delighted at the new United States loan [of $425,000,000] are not even kicking at the high interest of 3 per cent for the government loan under security. A considerable source of satisfaction is that the British government has obtained vital dollars without selling assets outright. It also is pointed out that the stocks themselves probably will earn more than the interest on the loan, especially in the wartime boom in America. The market reacted favorably, with gilt edged stocks showing up steady and rises occurring in foreign bonds, while speculative buying brought gains in shipping, brewery, and oil shares.

Letters Reveal the Plight of Little Business

"Unless relief from the raw material shortage comes promptly, we will have to close our plant and put 80 employes out of work."

"We may have to close our plant and discharge 75 employes unless we can obtain arms contracts."

"Our company has lost a great amount of regular business and laid off some of its men because of inability to get coiled steel and brass."

"Our suppliers of materials have told us we are going to be out of luck unless we can get armament orders to give us priority ratings."

These are typical statements from small Chicago area manufacturers contained in scores of letters received by the Illinois Manufacturers' association as a result of the government's regulation of the use of raw materials, particularly metals.

Cannot Get Orders.

One manufacturer who staved off a financial crisis by twice extending bond maturities in lean years and is only now entering a period of good business reported:

"We have been trying to get armament orders, but apparently our bids are not low enough. More than 200 people depend directly on our operations for a livelihood. Most of them could not find work easily if displaced. If companies such as ours cannot operate because of material shortages, federal taxes will have to come from others which have arms work."

A die casting company wrote: "We have had to reduce employment, and our operations are seriously affected by zinc and aluminum shortages."

"We are preparing to close our Chicago plant because of inability to get delivery on sheet steel," a maker of kitchen cabinets reported.

Production Stopped.

A vacuum cleaner manufacturer declared: "Many small businesses will be unable to survive unless some aid can be given. The company has ceased production and is supplying customers from inventory. These deliveries will be halted soon and the company may have to shut down completely."

A tire chain maker said he had orders from the British government, but had not been able to cut thru Washington red tape to get approval, in spite of several trips to the capital.

A maker of scales reported "difficulty keeping going" because of lack of steel.

Several small companies complained that the government does not give them enough time to prepare bids. Others said conferences with war department and defense contract service officials do not produce any results.

FANCY FOREIGN PERFUME NAMES BECOME ENGLISH

Lucien Lelong, Inc., 55 East Washington street, has promised to cease using "Paris," "London" or other terms implying foreign origin of its cosmetics and toilet preparations, the Federal Trade commission announced yesterday in Washington, D. C.

The country of origin of the ingredients may be stated if accompanied by a statement that the products have been compounded in the United States, the commission said.

No foreign terms may be used to describe perfumes, cologne or other cosmetics unless the English translation appears in conjunction with them.

BRITAIN ASKS LABOR TO FORGO PAY HIKES AS INFLATION DANGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 22.—In a new effort to stave off price and wage increases which might bring "the danger of inflation," the government today issued a white paper asserting that it is "incumbent upon employers and trade unions, with what help the government can give, to prevent the cost of production from rising, from whatever cause."

The memorandum urges the "maintenance of wages and employers' remuneration at a reasonable level," pointing out that uncontroled increases in wages will defeat the whole object of price control.

However, the white paper admits, "there may be proper grounds for adjustment of wages in certain cases," adding that the government hopes to leave voluntary organizations and wage tribunals "free to reach their decisions in accordance with their estimate of the relevant facts."

The British Trades union congress general council immediately issued an answer to the white paper, emphatically reiterating its view that "any attempt to control movements for increases of wages is impracticable and undesirable."

REPORT FREEZING ORDERS LEAVE AN AXIS LOOPHOLE

Presidential orders freezing the funds of continental European countries have not stopped axis use of at least part of these funds, according to the Columbia Law Review, publication of the Columbia university law school.

The orders can be avoided by the axis powers, the publication states, because assignment of frozen assets, or trading in "blocked dollars," has not been expressly invalidated if the transactions take place outside the United States.

The result, according to the review, is that German police and fiscal authorities already are forcing French holders of frozen American assets to assign these assets to "neutral strawmen" or to speculators outside Europe who are willing to buy them at big discount.

The funds eventually reach the German government, according to the survey.

Ruling Electric Railroad Is 'Steam Road' Upheld

The United States Circuit court of appeals yesterday upheld a ruling of the federal District court holding that the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric railroad is classified as a "steam railroad" and is therefore subject to the provisions of the railway labor act. This classification places the road under provisions of the railroad retirement act rather than the federal social security act, attorneys said.

BIG COMPANIES REPORT VARIED PROFIT TRENDS

Rising Taxes Slash Earnings of Some.

Numerous earnings reports issued yesterday by large corporations disclosed that profit trends are showing an increasing lack of uniformity, with rising taxes helping to slash some companies' net incomes below year ago levels.

R. S. Reynolds [top] and Edgar M. Queeny report profit gains.

Among companies announcing lower earnings were William Wrigley Jr. company, Chicago chewing gum maker, and Glenn L. Martin company, aircraft builder now concentrating on warplane production.

Better showings were reported by Reynolds Metals company, big metals producer which is sharing in the government's drive to expand aluminum making facilities; Monsanto Chemical company, products of which include explosives; Republic Steel corporation, and Butler Brothers, Chicago distributor of dry goods and general merchandise.

Wrigley Earnings Dip.

Wrigley's consolidated profit for the three months ended June 30 slipped to $2,067,563, equal to $1.05 a share, from $2,342,848, or $1.19 a share, in the corresponding 1940 period. For the six months ended with June net income was down to $4,438,982, equal to $2.26 a share, against $4,800,653, or $2.44 a share, in the first half of 1940. Provisions were made for an estimated $1,789,563 of income taxes for the three months and $2,916,441 for the six months, compared with $905,211 and $1,607,499 in the respective 1940 periods.

Glenn L. Martin company's report for the six months ended with June disclosed that soaring costs and taxes more than ate up the added revenues resulting from a large gain in sales. Net income dropped to $2,950,640, equal to $2.69 a share, from $4,275,487, or $3.91 a share, in the 1940 period. Sales rose to $27,383,291 from $20,112,476. State and federal tax provisions climbed to a total of $4,330,200, compared with a total of $1,216,600 in the 1940 half year.

Martin has boosted its personnel to 22,500, and expects to have 42,000 employed by next spring, Glenn L. Martin, president, said.

Boosting Aluminum Output.

Reynolds Metals netted $1,886,853, equal to $1.71 a share, in the first six months of this year, against $1,312,477, or $1.15 a share, in the 1940 period. Federal taxes totaled $1,480,204, compared with $749,323.

R. S. Reynolds, president, told stockholders: "In June the company shipped more than four million pounds of fabricated aluminum, and expects to reach 16 million pounds a month before the year is over."

Monsanto's June quarter profit rose to $1,945,977, equal to $1.40 a share, compared with 82 cents a share in the second quarter of 1940. Six month 1941 profit was equal to $2.38 a share, against $1.70 in the 1940 period. The six month tax provisions of $4,703,968 were nearly one and a half times the net income.

Monsanto Sales a Record.

Sales, said Edgar M. Queeny, president of Monsanto, "are limited only by ability to produce," and reached an alltime record of $16,075,620 in the June quarter, 54 per cent larger than volume for the 1940 period.

Republic Steel's June quarter profit was $5,428,749, equal to 87 cents a share, compared with $3,337,730, or 47 cents a share, in the 1940 quarter. Six months net income jumped to $13,618,716, equal to $2.22 a share, from $6,449,453, or 90 cents a share, in the first half of last year.

Butler Brothers reported consolidated profit of $511,762 for the first half of 1941. In the corresponding 1940 period it had a net loss of $419,180. Consolidated net sales, amounting to $41,459,000, were 18.6 per cent larger than the volume for the 1940 half year.

CASHING PROFITS HALTS ANOTHER RALLY IN STOCKS

Early Gains Cut or Turned Into Net Losses.

New York, July 22 (AP).—The stock market attempted another rally today, but many of those who were aboard in Monday's sharp runup cashed in sufficient profits to halt the move. Gains of fractions to a point or so were posted at the fastest opening of the year to date. Rails and other favorites changed hands in blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares and for a brief interval the ticker tape was slightly late for the first time since Dec. 14.

Sizable offerings then began to appear and the pace slackened. Advances were substantially reduced or transformed into declines at the close. Transfers were 1,350,630 shares, the second largest since Nov. 12.

A. P. Average Declines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed with a net loss of .1 of a point at 44.1, but still was near the year's peak established in January.

Southern Pacific and New York Central were the liveliest performers. The former hit a new 1941 top and ended up ⅝. The latter finally was thrown for a loss of ¼. Many new high marks were registered in the forenoon.

Lower at the close were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, United States Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line, Du Pont, J. I. Case, Western Union, Anaconda, Texas corporation, and Montgomery Ward.

Chicago Rise Continues.

Chicago Stock exchange prices continued higher yesterday. Four issues reached 1941 highs: Signode Steel at 17, up ⅝; Standard Oil of Indiana at 33½, up ½; Swift International at 22⅝, up ½; and Wisconsin Bankshares at 5⅞, up ⅜.

Volume leaders included Commonwealth Edison, which rose ⅛ point to 26⅝; Armour of Illinois at 5⅛, unchanged, and Marshall Field at 16½, up ⅜. Of the dually listed issues traded from 2 to 2:30 o'clock, only Butler Brothers showed a change from the final New York price, closing ⅛ higher at 8⅛.

HAY MARKET.

Timothy—No. 1 or light clover or alfalfa mixed, car lots, $16.00; No. 2, $13.50@15.50.

AFL PICKETERS ROUTED BY CIO IN TOLEDO TILT

Mediation Board Studies Air Plant Strike.

Toledo, O., July 22 (AP).—A massed group of CIO unionists routed an American Federation of Labor picket line at the Textileather corporation plant today after police failed in an attempt to usher CIO textile workers into the factory.

A score of deputy sheriffs and police walked with the retreating pickets. Four men were hurt in a clash at the plant last week.

Textileather officials reported 80 to 100 employés entered the gates and said production would be resumed without delay. The corporation granted the CIO a union shop agreement and an AFL union called a strike.

Board Begins Hearing.

Washington, D. C., July 22 (AP).—A defense mediation board began hearings in a closed session today on the strike at Air Associates, Inc., Bendix, N. J. The plant, which manufactures parts for airplanes, is shut down by a strike called by the United Automobile workers [CIO] on July 14. Officials said the principal issue was the reinstatement of employés allegedly discharged for union activities.

The National Labor Relations board ordered the Interlake Iron corporation, Chicago, to cease "discouraging membership" in CIO's Steel Workers' Organizing committee, and to reinstate with back pay eight employés found by the board to have been discharged for union activity.

Murray Signs Contract.

Detroit, Mich., July 22 (AP).—Officials of Murray Body corporation and the United Automobile Workers [CIO] announced today the signing of a working agreement providing for a union shop and check-off of union dues. It is the second such agreement in the automobile industry, the Ford Motor company having reached a similar arrangement. The contract guarantees there shall be no strike unless approved by a majority of the workers in a secret election under joint supervision of the company and the union.

PUT UP TO WASHINGTON.

A final decision on the June 18 election at the International Harvester company's Rock Falls, Ill., plant was left to the National Labor Relations board yesterday. Charles A. Graham, regional NLRB director, announced he had overruled union objections to his report on the election and referred the matter to Washington.

The report showed 101 votes for the CIO Farm Equipment Workers' organizing committee, 97 for the AFL federal labor union, No. 22647, one for neither, and nine which were challenged. Both unions filed objections but Graham ruled there was no dispute on material issues and affirmed his findings.

Sale by Order of Court

Public notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a Decree of partition made and entered by the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, on July 23, 1940, in the cause entitled IDA YEDOR, plaintiff, v. CHICAGO CITY BANK AND TRUST COMPANY, a corporation, individually and as Trustee under Trust Agreement No. 1090, Arthur G. Rathje, Georga O. Carlson, Howard C. Kinesbery, Victor E. Yiterberg, Robert Anderson, W. W. Beymer, Charles Palmer, Frank J. Burke and A. Henry Goldstein, and "Unknown Owners of the premises" defendants case No. 39S-14118, which decree was subsequently affirmed by the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois on April 8, 1941, in case No. 25068, and in further pursuance of a Decree of Sale under Partition, made and entered by the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, in the aforementioned cause on July 16, 1941, I, JOHN F. O'TOOLE, Master in Chancery of the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, will on MONDAY, AUGUST 4, 1941, at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon Daylight Saving Time (twelve o'clock noon Central Standard Time), at the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Cook County, Room 437 County Building, in the City of Chicago, County of Cook and State of Illinois, sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder, for cash, all and singular the following described premises and real estate in said Decrees mentioned, situated in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, to-wit:

Lots seven [7], eight [8], nine [9] and ten [10] in Block two [2] in Richardson's Subdivision of the Northeast quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section thirty-six [36], Township thirty-eight [38] North, Range fourteen [14], East of the Third Principal Meridian.

Said premises consist of a three [3] story brick building located at the southeast corner of 79th Street and Crandon Avenue. The building is approximately fourteen [14] years old and in excellent physical condition both in its interior and exterior. The premises contain five [5] stores and thirty-three [33] apartments [6 4s, 23 3½s and 4 2½s], on a lot 108.38x125 feet. The present income is $19,344.00 per year. 1940 taxes: $2,838.12.

Commissioners appointed by the Superior Court of Cook County have conservatively appraised this property at $90,617.00, and have so reported to the Court. Said premises will be sold, as aforesaid, provided there is a bid of at least two-thirds [⅔] of the valuation put upon the same, as shown by the said Report of the Commissioners heretofore appointed by the Court to make such appraisal, and at least ten per cent [10%] of the sale price shall be paid in cash, certified or cashier's check at the sale, and the balance within thirty [30] days from the date of the approval of the sale.

Dated at Chicago, Illinois
July 17, 1941.

A panoramic view of Manezhnaya square in Moscow, Russia's capital, where soviet officials reported one of bombs dropped by Germans in air raid had blasted crater in front of the United States embassy. The Russians said this was the only sign of damage in the center of the city. The Germans, however, reported the raid left city in flames. (Story on page 5.)
